Dirigible R-100 Starts Flight From England to Montreal

Airship Is Ready To Begin Atlantic Trip This Evening

Crew of Thirty-seven and Seven Passengers Called to Mast to Begin Air Voyage From Cardington, Eng., to Montreal at 6.30 p.m. Victoria Time; Route Chosen Is Northerly One.

Canadian Press
Cardington, Eng., July 28.—The Air Ministry this evening announced the British dirigible R-100 would begin its flight to Montreal at 3.30 o'clock to-morrow morning (6.30 this evening Victoria time).

The route of the R-100, according to indications this evening, by way of Northern Ireland, Greenland and Newfoundland, down to Cape Farewell and along the St. Lawrence to Montreal.

BOOTH IN COMMAND

Squadron leader R. S. Booth will be in command. There will be five officers and thirty-two men aboard. This is two-thirds of her normal crew. The others have gone to Canada to prepare for reception of the R-100.

There were seven passengers on board. Their identity had not been disclosed to-night by government officials.

The R-100 was at her mooring tower here this morning, having completed a 1,200-mile trial trip over England and Wales preparatory to the voyage to Montreal.

The airship left the mooring mast Friday night and returned Saturday after twenty-four hours in the air.

When the R-100 returned to Cardington Saturday evening it was stated the weather chart of the Atlantic indicated an early start was unlikely. The orders for the dirigible had been issued, however, so the weather had turned mostly fair and uniformly promising between England and the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

The R-100 during her stay in the Montreal district, is to be moored at the big mast the Federal government built at St. Hubert Field, near the city, where a trained landing crew is awaiting her arrival.

SUICIDE ATTEMPT

Drummond, Alta., July 28.—Frank Telling, twenty-three, a farm laborer, shot two .22 calibre rifle bullets through his forehead yesterday. He was laid out as dead. A coroner arrived and found him still alive. He numbered the wounds as self-inflicted. To-day he is in a hospital in a precarious condition.

TWENTY IN ADRIANOPOLE DIE IN STORM

Istanbul, Turkey, July 28.—A tornado and hailstorm killed twenty persons and injured hundreds in Adrianople Sunday. Eight per cent of the houses were destroyed and crops in the surrounding country were laid low.

Nine minibuses crashed to the ground, as did the tops of the four minarets atop the famous Mosque of the Sultan Suleiman, one of the greatest treasures of Moslem art.

The Red Crescent Society, or Turkish Red Cross, has rushed aid from Istanbul.

NEW GRAIN ACT WILL OPERATE FROM SEPT. 1

Mixing of Canadian Grades Will Be Barred After That Date

Ottawa, July 28.—A proclamation in the current issue of The Canada Gazette states the Grain Act, as amended, shall come into force September 1.

The act was rewritten following recommendations made by the agricultural committee of the House of Commons and was passed last session.

A lengthy investigation of the operation of the act was conducted during the last two sessions of Parliament and numerous amendments were approved.

Small grades were given new definitions, clauses were inserted to prevent mixing of grades and the whole field of the act's operations was reviewed.

JAMAICA HAS EARTH SHOCKS BUT NO LOSS

Kingston, Jamaica, July 28.—Two sharp earth shocks were felt here late yesterday afternoon. Reports said no damage had been done.

RECORDED AT NEW YORK

New York, July 28.—Earthquake shocks recorded at 2.45 a.m. yesterday on the Woodam University seismograph were believed to have centred in Guatemala. The distance was estimated at 2,200 miles from New York. The shocks were not nearly so violent. It was reported, as the Quake-mania shocks two weeks ago.

WASHINGTON RECORDS

Washington, July 28.—Two earthquakes of moderate intensity were recorded on the seismograph of George Washington University here yesterday. The quakes apparently centred 2,600 miles away.

The first shock was recorded at 10.06 a.m. and observers estimated it was 1,900 miles away.

The second was recorded at 2.05 a.m. with a secondary phase four minutes later. This was believed to have been 2,000 miles distant.

The direction of the earthquakes was not determined.

Vancouver Thugs Rob Store of $600 And Make Escape

Manager and Two Clerks of Shoe Shop Menaced With Revolvers at 8.40 a.m. by Two Robbers; Saturday's Cash Receipts Taken by Robbers, Who Flew Through Lane at Rear of Building.

Vancouver, July 28.—Staging a daring daylight robbery as dozens of persons passed by on their way to work, two armed bandits held up the K Boot Shop Limited at 506 Granville Street here and escaped with $600 at 8.40 a.m. to-day.

Three employees of the store were forced to the rear of the premises and made to face the wall while one of the thugs scooped the cash. Saturday's receipts, from the counter where the cashier was counting the money.

The front door was locked by one of the bandits and they were about to tie up their victim when a customer tried to gain entrance. Fearing detection, the men fled through the back door and escaped through a lane.

THREATENED WITH REVOLVERS

A. J. Barten, manager of the store, told police the store had been open a half hour and a customer had just left when two men who had been looking in the windows walked in. He went to wait on them, to sit down, and one of the men, producing a revolver, ordered him to the rest of the store.

Miss Barbara Wilson, cashier, was counting Saturday's receipts. John Wilson, a clerk, was also in the store and was ordered to the rear of the premises.

Mr. Barten thinks the bandits were acquainted with the lay-out of the store because an iron bar, used by the gunmen to lock the door, while they staged the robbery, has always been kept in a special place behind the counter and they had no trouble in locating it.

Invasive Hordes Reported to Have Taken Nanchang; Now Lootng Changsha

Canadian Press

Shanghai, July 28.—Foreigners fled aboard British, United States and Japanese gunboats at Changsha, capital of Human province, to-day as a Communist horde poured into the city. The reds are reported to have looted and burned a portion of Changsha.

Meanwhile Nationalist forces, in the course of a speaking tour, gave an address at Sunyi in which he continued to urge the Congress party to strengthen its forces and fight to the finish.

He urged the Nationalists not to pay a single copper in taxes to the government, and also exhorted his hearers to ignore the peace talks and concentrate on the non-violent resistance campaign with renewed energy.

INTERVIEW NEHRU

Allahabad, India, July 28.—Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and Mr. Jayakar, Indian Liberal leaders, agreed to mediate between the government and the leaders of the civil disobedience campaign, yesterday had an interview. In the Naini jail with Pandit Motilal Nehru and Jawaharlal Nehru, prominent All-India Nationalist Congress leaders.

The interview lasted four hours and presumably discussed a message sent by Mahatma Gandhi from the Yeroda prison, where Sir Tej Sapru and Mr. Jayakar last week saw him.

The discussion was continued to-day.

LARGE GROUPS HAVE BATTLES IN LIVERPOOL

Many Police Patrol Streets to Prevent Spread of Religious Contests

Three Policemen and Six Civilians Slightly Injured in Clash Yesterday

Liverpool, Eng., July 28.—After a night of ceaseless vigilance, with hundreds of police patrolling the streets and ambulances parked for emergencies, fighting between Roman Catholics and Protestants in the Metropole Road area was resumed to-day.

The religious partisans stormed a police court where several persons arrested in yesterday's disturbances were being brought before a magistrate and held for trial.

Outside the court building a huge crowd gathered, divided into two factions which boozed and shouted at each other when the prisoners appeared.

PRISONERS JUSTLED

The trouble started at the doors of the courtroom when several women took the initiative, jostling the prisoners, screaming and refusing to be quieted.

Soon the place was in an uproar and one woman was arrested for assaulting another. Subsequently three others were taken into custody.

The fighting had been fierce yesterday, the authorities had an ample force of officers on hand to prevent development of serious rioting to-day.

After the trouble had subsided three women were taken before the magistrate, charged with disorderly conduct and admitted to bail for to-morrow.

NINE INJURED

Three policemen and six civilians were slightly injured in the street fighting yesterday.

An unfounded rumor that Dr. Richard Downey, Roman Catholic archbishop of Liverpool, was to visit the Metropole road area, which is strongly protestant, brought out a large and threatening crowd.

A strong force of police was sent to the district, but could not check the excitement of the protestant crowd. They drew their batons to defend themselves, finally subduing all the hot heads.

Special guards were assigned last night to three Roman Catholic churches in the neighborhood.

Georgian Puts British Heavy-weight Away in Second Round at Wimbledon

Scott Goes Down Four Times in First Round; 30,000 Fans in Attendance

Wimbledon Stadium, London, July 28.—Young Stirbling, from Macon, Georgia, stepped back into the front ranks of the heavyweights to-night by knocking out Phil Scott, the tall Englishman, in two rounds, after flooring him four times in the first session.

A crowd of 30,000 was in attendance. Stirbling, in a blue dressing gown, with the insignia of the reserve air corps on his back, bounded into the ring first with his manager and father, "Pa" Stirbling at his heels. He was generously applauded, but the big roar that filled the stadium came Scott, smiling and apparently not the least bit nervous, climbed to his corner a few seconds later. Stirbling weighed 186 pounds, Scott 205.

Both fighters were dark purple tight with small Union Jacks on each leg. The referee was announced as Sam Russell of London.

ROUND ONE

Stirbling boxed with the Englishman for a few moments and then landed his famous right to Scott's chin, following it with a series of lefts to the head. The men were warned for wrestling.

Stirbling nailed his man and Scott went down for a count of five. Just as he rose a left to the stomach dropped the Englishman for a count of four.

Fighting like a tiger, Scott sailed into his man and dropped him again, this time for nine. Scott went down again just before the bell, but the going saved him.

ROUND TWO

ROUND THREE

LONG FLYING EXPERIENCE

Since that memorable time, Harold Bromley, native son of Victoria, has had all the experience a flier could desire in the air.

He has roamed over practically every state of the American Union, and up to the time he determined to attempt a non-stop flight across the Pacific had been a flying postman carrying U.S. mail over the Mexican border.

One man above all others, who is prepared to waste a fortune that Bromley can afford to waste the Pacific by air, is John Buffelin, millionaire lumberman of Tacoma.

He has financed three planes for the venture and the costly machines unfortunately came to grief before they really got started.

Bromley was at the controls when the first plane was wrecked in taking off from a temporary runway.

He was watching from the ground when the others cracked up while being tested out.

Undeterred by these mishaps, the Canadian airmen, with his backer, Buffelin, strongly behind him, proceeded with the design of another plane.

SURE OF SUCCESS

"We are convinced that our newest ship can do it, and we are going to show that it can be done," declared Bromley aboard the liner President Lincoln on Saturday, as he leaned over the rail of the promenade deck and cast an appraising eye over the big fuselage resting on the after hatch with "City of Tacoma" embossed in large letters on its side.

"And if we succeed, as we expect to do, the credit will not be mine, but ours," he earnestly declared as he drew his arm about Harold Gatty, his partner in the great adventure.

"What made you abandon your original plans for the westward attempt and decide to try the eastward flight from Japan?" Bromley was asked.

"The realization that the chances of success would be infinitely greater if the flight were made from the other side," replied Bromley.

ELEMENT OF FOG

"Starting from this coast we should be hampered by head winds. Then there is the element of fog to be considered, and I understand that a great deal of it exists on this ocean, particularly off the Aleutians."

A take-off of the new ship, carrying fueling while in the air, Bromley stated that it had been taken into consideration, and the idea was discarded because of the prevalence of fog at this season of the year.

"Just imagine what would happen if we struck fog at the point designated for refueling," he observed. "We would not be able to see the refueling plane and we would lose us. It would mean forced landing and probably not to our liking."

He grimaced at the possibility of having to make a forced descent on wheels somewhere near Nome of off Unimak Pass.

While on the question of refueling while aloft, Bromley was asked what he thought of the chances of Robert Wark and Eddie Green in beating him to Tokio in a non-stop refueling flight.

NOT COMPETING

"I would like it clearly understood that we are not competing in any way," he said.

"Wark makes it plain he should be first to congratulate him. As he has already stated, refueling in the air in the event of fog intervening would most assuredly result in disaster."

He went on to say that Wark's originally intended was to fly to Japan by way of Edmonton and Alaska.

"Do you expect to be aided by the wind to any marked degree in attempting the eastward flight?" Bromley was asked.

TAIL WIND TO AID

"After leaving Japan the prevailing winds are east by west, and that would give us a tail wind which would help the ship along considerably," he replied.

"We have carefully weighed every possibility of setback and figure on completing the flight from Tokio to Tacoma in fifty hours."

DATE OF TAKE-OFF

If all goes well, the two "Harolds" will take off from Tokio before the middle of August.

The President Lincoln is due to reach Yokohama on August 6 and the plane, after it has been assembled, will be flown to one of Tokio's three airports.

From that time onward it will be a question of weather conditions. The flight arrangements at Tokio are in the hands of the Japanese government and all the facilities of the Japanese Weather Bureau will be placed at the disposal of the flyers.

"If the weather is right we shall take off as soon as possible after we get there," said Bromley on being questioned as to the probable date of departure from Tokio. "Our objective is a non-stop flight and what we are most interested in is making it a complete success."

GAS CAPACITY

He proposes to take the Great Circle route followed by the passenger ships operating between this coast and the Orient.

The tanks of the monoplanes will be filled with 1,000 gallons of gas when it takes off from Tokio and if the fuel is not all used up by the time this coast is sighted the citizens of Victoria will be given an opportunity of getting a good view of the flyers.

CIRCLE OVER THIS CITY

"If the weather is right we shall take off, we shall circle over Victoria enroute to Tacoma," said Bromley, who is apprised of the great interest taken in the flight by the people of his home town.

And if other incentive is needed it must be remembered that the aviator's father and mother live here.

MET BY FATHER

As the President Lincoln docked at Pier 2 from Seattle on Saturday afternoon Harold Bromley's attention was closely riveted upon his father, who was smoking a pipe, awaiting the arrival of his son.

George Bromley, of 518 Frances Avenue, is a quiet and undemonstrative person, but he displayed his pride in his boy.

He was accompanied on the dock by his brother, John Bromley, his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Schnar and their daughter, Miss Dorcas Kenning.

Bromley asked after his mother after the family party had boarded the ship and appeared to be disappointed that she was not there.

His mother had remained at home during the time the son had sufficient time to visit her there. It was out of the question for Bromley to leave the ship, however, as he has given an undertaking to his backer that he will stay with the plane.

MOTHER HAS CONFIDENCE

Mrs. Bromley is not over anxious about her boy. "I have every confidence in him and I am sure he will make it," she told the Times to-day.

She said that the son's wife and their seven-year-old son were coming over to Victoria to stay with her during the anxious period.

"My husband and I went over to Tacoma when Harold arrived there two weeks ago and we inspected the plane. It is a lovely ship," she said.

WEIGHS FIVE TONS

The machine which Bromley plans to pilot across the Pacific is an Emco monoplane equipped with a 425 horse-power engine.

The plane has a cruising speed of ninety-five miles an hour, although it was designed for a speed of 115 miles an hour.

GATTY AN AUSTRALIAN

Harold Gatty, Bromley's navigator, co-pilot and radio operator, is an Australian, twenty-seven years of age and a graduate of the Sydney Naval College with considerable experience in the merchant service.

He is an unassuming fellow with a winning smile. Mrs. Gatty is in Los Angeles with their three boys, the oldest of whom is four years.

TAKE FEW CLOTHES

So hurried was the final decision to make a flight from the Japanese side that both Bromley and Gatty boarded the President Lincoln at Seattle without excess baggage. They just had the clothes they had in hand had hastily collected and thrown into a grip a few accessories and toilet articles.

Bromley, fresh from the ship's barber, was interviewed as he padded about the cabin in his socks while awaiting the return of his shoes from the polishers. Bromley said the plane was equipped with an emergency radio set for use in case of trouble.

He is an experienced mechanician and capable of effecting repairs if necessary.

At the age of thirty years he is on the threshold of realizing his ambition to be the first to fly across the Pacific Ocean.

LAUNDRY HOLDS ANNUAL PICNIC AT DEEP COVE

New Method Stages Enjoyable Function For Employees Saturday

Varied Sports Programme, Ball Game and Supper Feature Busy Day

The annual picnic of the employees of the New Method Laundry Limited was held at Deep Cove on Saturday. About 350 people attended.

The families and friends of the staff congregated at the laundry buildings on North Park Street at 11 o'clock, and left in six large motor coaches. On arriving at the Cliveden grounds Jim Keen, all decked out in a chef's uniform and wearing his best Irish smile, greeted the party and was all ready with tea and coffee for the luncheon which preceded the well-prepared sports programme.

The sports committee kept things happening for four hours with athletic events which held the interest throughout and also provided several amusing incidents.

The men's novelty race will in future be referred to as the "tale of a shirt."

The speed merchants were given an excellent opportunity to show their wares in a relay race, and the Kerr and Stephenson Cup was won by J. Jones's team.

From that time onward it will be a question of weather conditions. The flight arrangements at Tokio are in the hands of the Japanese government and all the facilities of the Japanese Weather Bureau will be placed at the disposal of the flyers.

"If the weather is right we shall take off, we shall circle over Victoria enroute to Tacoma," said Bromley, who is apprised of the great interest taken in the flight by the people of his home town.

FIFTY YEARS OF CONSTANT ENTERPRISE

A CROWD USED TO CATCHER

The proud owners of the first automobiles in Canada used to drive around to the Imperial Oil yard for gasoline. Filling the car with gasoline was a ceremony, and a crowd used to gather to watch it. The deed was done with a five gallon bucket.

The five gallon bucket was the first form of service station, and the next was a tank which Imperial Oil put on the wall of one of its plants to meet the growing demand.

Today, of course, there are Imperial service stations for motorists in every corner of Canada. And there are caches in the north for Arctic adventurers — distributing points across the prairies for the Western farmer — supply stations for the mines — airport stations at landing fields.

It has been the work of Imperial Oil for fifty years to meet the new needs of transportation and industry with new service and new perfection.

Because this work has been done well, Imperial has grown from one small plant at Sarnia, Ontario, to six great refineries — miles of tank cars — its ships on the Atlantic and the Pacific — nine thousand of its men at work from the Arctic to Peru.

Fifty years of constant enterprise are in the products Imperial Oil sells today.

Marvelube is Imperial's finest motor oil.

Imperial 3-Star and Imperial Ethyl are its best gasolines.

PRAIRIE STORM CAUSES LOSSES

Area in Saskatchewan Swept By Wind and Hail

On July 28 — A heavy wind storm, accompanied by hail and rain, swept over the Stoughton, Kirby and Govan districts shortly after 6 o'clock Saturday evening. In its wake came wind and hail damage of from 60 to 100 per cent.

The storm originated at a point south-east of Kirby and swept over an area four miles long and four miles wide. Thousands of fowls were killed when poultry houses were overturned. Hundreds of panes of glass in houses in the path of the storm were shattered and telephone service was disrupted.

Few of the farmers in the sections affected by the storm carried hail insurance and the crop hit will be a total loss in the majority of cases.

Charles Vivier, Portage la Prairie, and Ed Lafamme, Portage la Prairie, were killed.

Louis Ferry, Portage la Prairie, is the injured man.

According to Albert Hamel, who leaped as the truck sped over a crossing in the train's path, he shouted to Vivier, the driver, but evidently was not heard. Vivier was thrown beneath the train and killed instantly.

The impact tossed Ferry about forty feet from the tracks and Lafamme was car-

TRUCK HIT BY TRAIN AND TWO MEN KILLED

Winnipeg, July 28 — Two men were killed yesterday when the Canadian National Railway "Confederation Limited" struck a motor truck near Portage la Prairie, sixty miles west of Winnipeg. Another man riding in the truck with the two victims is in a serious condition today. A forth saved his life by jumping from the truck a moment before the collision.

Charles Vivier, Portage la Prairie, and Ed Lafamme, Portage la Prairie, were killed.

Louis Ferry, Portage la Prairie, is the injured man.

According to Albert Hamel, who leaped as the truck sped over a crossing in the train's path, he shouted to Vivier, the driver, but evidently was not heard. Vivier was thrown beneath the train and killed instantly.

The impact tossed Ferry about forty feet from the tracks and Lafamme was carried for some distance on the front of the engine.

The truck was demolished.

Both Ferry and Lafamme were rushed to a hospital, but the former succumbed within a few hours.

Chemainus

The Chemainus Musical Society last week held a party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Wilson, his father, Edgar Scholes, who is about to leave for Victoria. Mr. Scholes organized the society four years ago. The guest of honor was presented with a pair of gold cuff links engraved with the Masonic emblem.

Mr. Scholes spoke highly of the appreciation of the gift and the progress of the society.

A number of well-known people are going on this year's trail ride including W. H. Malkin, mayor of Vancouver; Carl Kungius, distinguished artist and one of the leading members of the National Council of New York. Two other well-known artists going on the ride are A. G. Leighton of London, England; and S. C. Valentine of Montreal.

20-FOOT PYTHON FREE IN LAKE WILDS; SUMMER COLONY STAYS INDOORS

Rochester, July 28 — Hardly daring to venture outside their doors, residents of the Sea Breeze summer colony on Lake Ontario gazed furiously at every step they took while Rochester, Monroe, Seneca Breeze police and Monroe County Sheriff's deputies beat the underbrush in search of a 20-foot 200-pound python which escaped from the Zoo at a nearby amusement park.

Scores of men and boys who had joined the search during the night were told to return home by Constable August Schicker of Sea Breeze as night approached, leaving the field open only to men with firearms. The snake, a native of India, is reckoned sufficiently strong to crush a horse to death.

The python was found to be missing early this morning when Edward Hayes, owner and exhibitor, discovered it had escaped from its packing box in which it had slept at night. He immediately sounded an alarm.

While hundreds locked their doors and kept their children inside, others joined Hayes in a hunt for the python. The region is thick with wooded areas, lagoons, bays and occasional swamps. The creature is believed able to secrete itself in any of these.

Peter Gruber, known all over the East as "Rattlesnake Pete," reptile expert, was called into the search late this afternoon. Under his direction the searchers armed themselves with forked sticks with which to pounce on the creature should it show itself.

EMPIRE TRADE BOARD URGED BY BALDWIN

British Conservative Leader Gives His Views in Economic Field

Bridgewater, Yorkshire, July 28 — The furnishing of an assurance to the Dominions that Britain would not remove the trade preferences in effect, and establishment of an Empire body to consider economic and industrial issues, were advocated by Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, in a speech here Saturday.

Businesses and countries were grouping themselves more and more into great units, Mr. Baldwin said. Above all there was that great unit, the United States of America.

"Two things must be done quickly and easily by the Empire Conference," he continued. "First there should be assurance given to the Dominions that under no circumstances whatever would the preferences that already exist within the limits of our own fiscal system be removed. Secondly we want to set up without delay, a central committee consisting of representatives of each Dominion and mother country, to sit permanently at the expense of the Dominions and Britain and work, day in day out, at those economic and industrial problems that are inter-related between the Dominions and the mother country."

Regarding the Imperial Economic Conference, Mr. Baldwin said there was a chance even now that the government might do something. The government was trying to deal with the question by appointing an import board. He believed there was no other method of greater helpfulness than the quota system, which, he concluded, was necessary in the interests of Britain might be able to offer great advantages to such of the Dominions as desired to export wheat, and might preserve the quota of business with those countries where they could get something in exchange for the benefits given under the quota.

A scorching sun, aided by unusually high humidity, drove city people from their homes and in all parts of the province highways were jammed with heat harassed folks seeking relief.

Lake and river resorts were crowded Saturday and Sunday with those choosing the water as a means of escape from the heat. Some who blazed down with thermometer recorders recorded new high temperatures for the summer in many parts.

Men, women and children, ranging in age from ten years to eighty-one, were among the victims. Ten were drowned, three of them losing their lives when a boat capsized in the lake, one falling plunged off a dock. Motor car accidents claimed four lives, while the heat accounted for two.

Three children in different parts of the province were victims of peculiar accidents. A two-year-old London girl died as the result of being attacked by a dog, while another young girl died in a house fire. Another boy was drowned.

A Toronto boy was fatally burned when, after emptying a large container of gasoline, he struck a match to ascertain if the can was empty.

A large building in Port Arthur collapsed in the heat. Both were killed.

Another victim apparently lay down on railway tracks to sleep and was killed when run over by a train.

In addition to the high fatality list of auto crashes, and it is expected the death record will mount higher.

On the next three hours were required to travel from Banff to the summit of Ball Pass yet this pass has hitherto been considered impassable except for Alpine climbers. Its easy access yesterday was due to the parks department having cut trails on each side of the road, causing the trail ride that will begin next Thursday.

Its easy access yesterday was due to the parks department having cut trails on each side of the road, causing the trail ride that will begin next Thursday.

The trail riders of the Canadian Rockies will this year not only follow an absolutely new trail through a virgin territory but will also travel along one that is of the most spectacular character in the Canadian Rockies.

The trail, with the two victims within sight of huge glaciers on the eastern side of Mount Bali and the western side of Mount Haiduk, from Ball Pass the trail continues to Floc Lake and the Wolverine Plateau. This year's trail ride will thus be at an elevation of over 6,000 feet for more than half the route and skirt and immense wall of hanging glaciers.

WILL HOLD POW-WOW

The first pow-wow will be held at Macmillan Canyon on the Banff Windermere Highway and about thirty-five miles from Banff. The pow-wow, which is usually attended by 400 to 500 trail riders and friends will this year be enlivened by leaders of the Alfred Heather Light Opera Company, who will stage a sing-song entitled "Around a Canadian Camp Fire" in which a number of trail rider songs are incorporated.

A number of well-known people are going on this year's trail ride including W. H. Malkin, mayor of Vancouver; Carl Kungius, distinguished artist and one of the leading members of the National Council of New York. Two other well-known artists going on the ride are A. G. ## MAKING THE PAVED PATH

By JOHN HUTCHISON, F.R.H.S.

While, perhaps, for real usefulness there is nothing better than gravel, and for real beauty nothing so charming as a grass path, still they have their disadvantages. The latter particularly is useful only at the height of summer, and takes a good deal of looking after to keep it in good condition.

The flagged or paved pathway is a return to a very old idea—but has become immensely popular during recent years. It is especially well suited to small gardens, and to those subdivisions of the garden which are devoted to one kind of plant, such as a rose garden, a garden of annuals and so on.

The great beauty of a flagged path is its subdued grey coloring which as-soothes the eye and makes it look good. It is also a good way to make a path in a garden which is not very large, and it is a good way to make a path in a garden which is not very large.

sociates perfectly with the brightly-colored flowers, and, moreover, it presents a dry footing at all seasons of the year. Further, the crevices between the flags may be planted with many tiny flowering plants which add to its decorative effect.

The question of what to make the path out of is a serious one. Real flagstones, while easy to get in the Old Country, are scarce and expensive here.

Sometimes it is possible to find good flat native rock that is excellent for the purpose. On some of the Gulf Islands it can be had for the picking up, and the questions of transportation and cost are not so serious as the cost of the stone.

It is better to use a natural stone which is cut out with one mould at first so as to get the hang of it.

There is one great advantage about these artificial slabs and that is that a slab may be made of any desired shape and size to fill a particular spot.

If there is a sudden curve to be taken—where the stone will not fit—the situation without any trouble, while it might be very difficult to find a natural stone that would fill the bill.

If you want a flagged path try this out early in the fall, which is the best time to make such a path and to plant it.

The sailing distance from New Orleans to Colon in the Canal Zone is 1,616 miles.

You Plan Your House, Why Not Your Garden?

Every main designs his house with the knowledge that he is going to live in it. A garden should be designed so that plants will live in it; and as there will be many different kinds of plants, a successful garden, in its way, is a rather more complicated thing to build than a house. We build more gardens in Victoria than any other firm because our gardens suit their owners' needs as closely as their houses do, and are very economical as well.

WORKS BOTH WAYS

THE INTERVENTION OF PROVINCIAL governments in federal elections is a two-edged weapon. While their political organization and patronage power may be of value to the federal party they support, in one sense, on the other hand there are many taxpayers who object to provincial funds being expended for federal election purposes. Those taxes are paid for provincial purposes. There are also many electors whose attitude to provincial political issues is different from their attitude to federal issues. They may be Conservative in British Columbia politics and Liberals in national politics. Hence provincial government participation in a federal campaign often weakens that government in public support.

It often happens, too, that the intervention of a provincial government actually injures the cause of the federal party it supports. It is doubtful if the activities of either the Ferguson government in Ontario or the Tolmie government in British Columbia are doing the federal Conservatives as much good as harm in the present election. While it is true the Ferguson government was sustained in its last appeal in undiminished strength in the Legislature, it suffered a decline in the popular vote and the federal candidates it is supporting now in that province will have to carry the load of whatever loss of popularity the provincial party has sustained.

In British Columbia a similar condition exists. The Tolmie government is much weaker in the public esteem than it was two years ago when it succeeded the MacLean government. It made many promises that it has not carried out, and these and the fulfilment of them are fresh in the public mind. Instead of reducing taxation and the public debt it has increased them. Instead of improving economic conditions as it promised to do, so as to "bring the boys home," it is now trying to pass the responsibility for its own failure to the Dominion government, although two years ago it declared that such responsibility belonged to the provincial government. It promised to abolish patronage and failed to do so. Therefore its influence with the electorate has waned considerably and the candidates in the federal election who have been depending upon its support are likely to find that this is doing them more harm than anything else. There are many Conservative electors in this province who feel that they would be doing the Tolmie government a service from which it might benefit if they voted against the candidates its ministers are helping in the federal election; that one of the results of such a reverse would be a better financial administration, more economy, less borrowing, an attempt to reduce taxation instead of increasing it, and more general efficiency.

Provincial governments as such should remember that their primary duty is to look after provincial affairs, not national affairs, which is the business of the national government; that, to the extent that there is government responsibility for the social and economic conditions of the provinces, that responsibility belongs mainly to them. They enjoy wide powers of administration under the constitution of the country. They have complete jurisdiction over the natural resources within their provincial boundaries. And they are elected to give good government. The spectacle of provincial ministers running around the country trying to convince the public that somebody else is responsible for provincial policies is an admission of incompetence which can not fail to be noted by the electors.

MAIZIE'S 1,000TH EGG

WHILE THIS PROVINCE HAS GIVEN itself up more or less exclusively to politics during the last two months, a fact which has caused us to overlook a few things that have been taking place at the same time, one busy being has been attending strictly to her "knitting." "Knitting" may not be the correct term to apply to her activities; but it will do as well as anything else because we now record the business as authorized. Hen No. 6, the famous White Leghorn owned by the University of British Columbia, and known to the world as Maizie, has just laid her thousandth egg and invites all those who will to join in a fitting celebration of this important fact.

Readers of The Times, of course, recall that Maizie started her feathered competitors by producing 351 eggs in 364 days, a triumph which held the world's record for some time. The news that she is still going strong therefore will be acclaimed. And Maizie is in the prime of life, as industrious laying hens go, for she is not yet five years old. Her fifth birthday is not until next March. Meanwhile she appears to be settling herself down for a long-distance record.

AND NOW OF OTHER THINGS

IN COMMON WITH ITS CONTEMPORARIES all over the country The Times sighs a sigh of relief that the general election of 1930 is all over but the shouting. It has been a fairly "warm" campaign, closing just as summer reached us in Victoria, which is a reminder that it is time to speak of a few things in connection with the out-of-doors and holidays.

The forest branch of the Department of Lands is more than ordinarily worried just now because of the dry condition of the countryside and the wooded areas. According to the weekly fire bulletin, no fewer than 150 new fires broke out last week, and the officials of the forestry service are expecting many more in the next few days unless showers replace sunshine and warm winds. An official view suggests that several of the outbreaks on Vancouver Island have been caused by incendiaries who have chosen this vicious course as one means of finding employment for themselves. It is difficult to believe this is true; but if it should turn out to be so, and the guilty ones are caught, severe punishment should be meted out to them. Not only is the destruction of valuable property involved; lives are just as much in jeopardy. Most of the forest fires every year, of course, are caused by sheer carelessness.

The warmer weather suggests bathing and boating. Each year these pastimes exact their toll of life, often because elementary precautions have been neglected. In this regard the Canadian National Safety League has issued a special bulletin of twelve suggestions to bathers and canoeists. These may be quite unnecessary to those who are experienced; but it is well that they be noted by all. Bathers are warned to use protected waters only, and they also are admonished to wait two hours after eating before venturing in. They are advised not to bathe or swim alone, and when diving to make sure the water is deep enough. Those with heart disease are cautioned not to go swimming.

Regarding canoeing, the bulletin suggests, those who can not swim or keep a cool head are advised to refrain from the sport altogether. Another warning is never to change seats or stand up in either canoe or rowboat, and if there is a lunatic aboard who tries to rock the boat, the advice is to put him, or her, ashore immediately. Riding the rollers from steamboats is another foolhardy practice that is condemned.

In addition to this timely advice, whether it be for the prevention of forest fires, or relating to precaution on or in the water, there should be a general disposition to take no chances. The foolishness of a moment may cause untold destruction of property; the so-called smart individual's "showing off" may cost human life.

A FINE SPEECH

AFTER TAKING PART IN SO MANY meetings on the Mainland, delivering dozens of speeches, it might have been supposed that even one who is so completely at home on the political platform as Mr. Dugald Donaghay, K.C., would have shown some signs of the strain at the Royal Victoria Theatre on Saturday. On the contrary, not only was he in excellent voice, with phrases well turned and points driven home with the forcefulness which has earned for him a high reputation as a political speaker, but his presentation to a large and keenly-interested audience of the issues upon which the Canadian people are giving their decision to-day, was one of the most convincing deliveries heard in Victoria during the campaign.

Unlike some speakers who have sought to discuss the Dunning budget and the British preference as if the policies involved were new jokes, Mr. Donaghay explained them in the fullest detail and in such a way that even the least interested in such matters could grasp their importance and significance. From the moment he began his address until he resumed his seat Mr. Donaghay held the attention of his audience, and we may be sure that those who were in attendance at the meeting, to say nothing of the thousands who listened over the radio, regarded the evening as one well spent.

JESSE JAMES AND PAUL REVERE

THE GRANDSON OF JESSE JAMES IS arrested in Chicago for trying to get a blank chequebook from a bank where he did not have an account, and a descendant of Paul Revere is arrested for driving his automobile too rapidly along the road where his illustrious ancestor made his famous break-neck ride; and the conjunction of these two incidents is bound to set one to musing momentarily on the changes that time has brought.

Jesse James went out boldly, gun in hand, to take what he wanted. He at least risked his life to perform his robberies. His modern prototype, however, is more likely to do the job without risk, by forgery. And the lonely country road over which Paul Revere galloped now is a metropolitan highway so thickly traveled that riders must keep their speed down or endanger the lives of others.

What does it all prove? Oh, nothing, probably—except that neither Paul Revere nor Jesse James would recognize things if they came back to take a look around.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

THE COUNTRY DOCTOR SHORTAGE

The New York Herald-Tribune

Again a rural medical survey, this time in north-eastern New York, reports a serious shortage of country doctors. In eighteen counties members of the staff of the Albany Medical College have found that more than one-third of the practicing physicians are sixty years old or older. Young men are not taking the places of the veterans as they drop out. It is practically a disappearance of the country general practitioner that is threatened if no way can be found to attract young medical graduates to the rural field.

CANADA'S GREATEST INVENTION

The New Outlook (Toronto)

When members of the American Institute of Engineers met at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, a few weeks ago, they listened to an address presented in a manner never before attempted and scarcely even dreamed of a few years ago, J. C. Burkholder, who developed the radio-telephone so that it could function from moving trains, spoke to them while speeding between Toronto and Montreal on the International Limited. In an editorial on the telephone and its origin, The Christian Science Monitor draws attention to the fact that "by telephone a man on a moving train in Canada may now converse with a friend in England; a member of the British government can leave a debate in Parliament a few minutes to consult an official in Borneo . . . while paths are being mapped out for a Commonwealth system, which will include a regular service between London and India." The Bell telephone system in Canada has just celebrated its fiftieth anniversary. The event was allowed to slip past too easily. It deserved something in the nature of imperial recognition. The telephone is Canada's greatest invention. Alexander Graham Bell of Brantford, Ontario, conducting his experiments there, and at Boston, Mass., gave the world one of its very greatest conveniences.

MATRICULATION examination results have just been announced and there is joy in many British Columbia households and despair in others. As the young presumably do not read this column for their matriculation literature is usually pretty respectable at that age, it is safe to say a few things about matriculation examinations and such dismal matters that it would never do to repeat to matriculants. In the first place, while this is rank heresy, there is no need for parents to imagine that the heavens are about to fall if their children have failed in their matriculation examinations, and conversely there is no reason for the parents of successful ones to suppose that their offspring are now on the highroad to success. Matriculation examinations have little to do with education, and college courses little more. Most men have found out long ago that the things they learn in school and college are never required for the ordinary business of life. Only the training of the mind, and not the things put into it, really matters. And judged by this standard, half the students who come out of college are never educated at all, while many who never get past entrance class are well equipped to face life.

WHEN THE WORLD WAS A MORE SIMPLE and quiet place, and a man who was born a noble lord or a blacksmith, inevitably a noble lord or blacksmith, he could consider his education complete when he had mastered the graces of a noble lord, with a little Latin thrown in, or the craft of the blacksmith. This was a convenient arrangement, which no longer obtains. The world to-day is so complicated there is so much happening so much that, to know that the best educated man is extremely ignorant. Indeed, if he has reached a point where he realizes his ignorance, he has just begun to get educated, a process which he can never hope to complete. Thus in our time there are no men educated to the same proportionate extent that Aristotle or Roger Bacon were educated in their time. Most men know more than either Aristotle or Bacon, but considering the existing store of human knowledge, then and now, we are far behind them. There wasn't much to know then and they knew it all; there is an incalculable amount to know now, and no one person knows it. All the schools can do is to train the young mind in the hope that it will acquire wisdom and, what knowledge it needs for its particular job later on. If it succeeds in the training process, it is small matter if the date of the Norman Conquest or the formula of hydrochloric acid are forgotten. Even I remember both those facts, but they have never helped me to make a dollar or live a better life.

THE GREAT thing for students who have passed their matriculation, as well as those who have failed, to remember is that their real education is only beginning when they leave school. From then on they begin to learn the wisdom of life, which is not and cannot be taught in school. There, in the very nature of things, the most vital issues of existence can scarcely be touched. All that can be done is to forge weapons for dealing with them when they arise. And it is when they arise that the human mind begins to acquire education through experience and through reading.

NOT ONLY does formal education, as well as those who have failed, to remember is that their real education is only beginning when they leave school. From then on they begin to learn the wisdom of life, which is not and cannot be taught in school. There, in the very nature of things, the most vital issues of existence can scarcely be touched. All that can be done is to forge weapons for dealing with them when they arise. And it is when they arise that the human mind begins to acquire education through experience and through reading.

WHAT MR. ROSE says about modern education is not kind. He says that the years of our youth are a third of our lives, when our capacities for life are far ahead of its responsibilities, and hopeful energy has not been discouraged by experience. It might be supposed, therefore, that we would agree above all things not to waste a moment of these years. But we do nothing of the sort because, he says, "our educational customs are entrenched in tradition, fortified by pedagogical obstinacy, and stoutly defended on all sides by a very natural human habit of hanging on to rubbish lest the house seems too empty when it is gone. We perpetuate absurdities because we don't know how to replace them with something reasonable. We even manage to make out an argument for doing so, just as a housekeeper can muster reason for keeping a little longer the trash in the attic." And in the end, this observer comes to the conclusion that education has produced "a generation that knows nothing because it was taught everything, except how to use its tools and talents for health and happiness."

THIS IS VERY sound, but should not be repeated to the young. We do the best we can for them, but it is a difficult job. Our supreme difficulty

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO TO-DAY

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES, JULY 28, 1905

Again to-day the water is rough in the straits. This makes the third similar day, and as a result the salmon traps are still full of fish, an opportunity to empty many of them not having presented itself.

The first meeting of the new council of the Victoria Board of Trade was held this morning. The business, however, was not of great public interest generally, most of the matters having been referred from the old council or from the annual meeting.

Weather forecast—Victoria and vicinity—Southerly winds, generally fair, not much change in temperature.

Although scheduled to reach Victoria on Saturday, the C.P.R. steamer Tartar created no great surprise when she reached here this morning from the Far East. It was Captain Davidson's first trip in charge, and officials of the company expected that if weather conditions on the voyage were at all favorable the Tartar would be along to-day.

By the kindness of J. P. Babcock, fishery commissioner of British Columbia, and C. F. Todd, a special limited excursion has been arranged for Wednesday next to see the fish traps raised at Sooke.

Arrangements for the annual regatta of the North Pacific Amateur Association of Oarsmen are rapidly nearing completion. The programme has been arranged and all that remains for the J.B.A.A. committee is to provide for the innumerable details requiring attention.

 NANAIMO, JULY 28.—A very pretty wedding took place on Friday afternoon at St. Paul's Rectory, when Canon Hitchcock united in marriage Miss Patricia Gard, eldest daughter of Mr. Edward Gard, Nanaimo, and James Kerr Smillie, Ladysmith. The bride was Lena Margaret, sister of the bride, and the groom was supported by his brother Robert. During the signing of the register, Miss Nova Black sang. After the ceremony the bride and groom left for the Mainland and on their return will reside in Ladysmith.

WHY are some women so patient with pain? Shopping with a head that throbs. Working when they ache all over. Sometimes it's hours before they take Aspirin and get relief! Most men take these tablets the moment that some sudden ache or pain threatens their comfort—and so should you. Aspirin is perfectly harmless; it cannot depress the heart. The tablets stamped Bayer are always genuine Aspirin; always the same, always safe. So it isn't sensible to suffer with a headache, a cold, neuralgic pains, or anything else that these tablets relieve almost as soon as swallowed. Buy by the bottle and save money. Any druggist has the 100-tablet size.

PAN-PACIFIC WOMEN TO MEET AT HONOLULU

Dean Mary L. Bollert Heads Canadians at August 9 Conference

With a delegation from Canada headed by Miss Mary L. Bollert, Dean of Women at the University of British Columbia, in attendance, the second Pan-Pacific Conference of Women will open in Honolulu on August 9. The Pan-Pacific Union Bulletin carries interesting reports of the various countries concerned in the conference, and these are from all parts of the rim of the Pacific Ocean. They include Canada, Australia, Chile, China, Costa Rica, Dutch East Indies, Fiji, Hawaii, India, Indo-China, Japan, Korea, Mexico, New Zealand, Panama, Peru, Philippines, Salvador, Samoa, Siam, Straits Settlements and United States.

RESEARCH WORK

A number of resolutions from the first conference have been sent to delegates, and several projects will be promoted, including a concerted inquiry into conditions and standards of living in Pacific countries with special reference to diet content; a study of standards of living and wages in Pacific countries which will make comparison possible; a survey of health of women in industry in Pacific countries; research and efforts to improve Pan-Pacific links forged through this conference; formation of a committee of experts for the initiation of health research projects of value to Pacific women; and research regarding electoral systems, women's place in political parties, effect of compulsory voting and legislation relating to women and children.

SOCIAL SERVICE

Endorsement was also given a resolution that women in countries of the Pacific should work toward an educational programme with a view to prepare professional workers for more effective service, and urged all women to draw the attention of official agencies to the findings of the child welfare committee of the League of Nations appointed to investigate the cinema question and the report of the royal commission on the part of the Australian Federal Government to inquire into the film industry of Australia.

It was decided by the executive committee to retain the five sections as used at the last conference, these were education, women in government, health, industry and professional services, and also to endeavor to find a guiding line for the entire deliberations of the conference, a co-ordination of each section with every other section.

In order to cover the great field of women's interests, five main divisions are planned, based on age periods as follows: Pre-natal and infancy; pre-school, school, adolescent and adult.

ROUND TABLES

Each subject will be considered at each round table at the same time, when summaries of papers previously submitted will be given and discussed. At the conclusion of the round tables, two speakers from each will be appointed to present the summary of the discussion to a forum of the whole conference at which the international chairman will preside. After presentation of round table reports, there will be an open discussion of these reports, and at the conclusion any conference resolutions will be put to vote. It is probable that there will be ten working days for the conference with no meeting in the afternoons, unless so desired by committees.

UNION OF GOODWILL

The Pan-Pacific Union, of which the women concerned are a part, is an organization in no way the agency of any Pacific government, yet having the goodwill of all, with the presidents and premiers of Pacific lands as its honorary heads. It is supported in part by government and private appropriations and subscriptions. Its central office in Honolulu because of its location at the center of the crossroads. Its management is under an International board.

Voting delegates to the women's conference will reside at Castle Hall on the Punahoa campus, as guests of the Pan-Pacific Union. It is probable that the international chairman will be the Hon. A. H. Neave, of Philadelphia, who is also liaison of the education section. She is president of the International Federation of Home and School, and former president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers of United States.

WED SATURDAY AT CATHEDRAL

Miss Dorothy W. Brooks of Goldstream School and J. T. Bruce of Colwood Married

At Christ Church Cathedral on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, the wedding of Dorothy Winnifred, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Brooks, 641 Main Street, and Mr. James Thomas Bruce, son of Mr. J. P. Bruce, 1732 Bay Street, was celebrated in the presence of a large assembly of friends of the bride and groom by Very Reverend C. S. Quatin, Dean of Columbiac. Mr. Stanley Bulley, organist of the cathedral, played the wedding music.

Given in memory of her father, the bride was dressed in ivory crepe-back satin, fashioned on Princess lines, with long-sleeved bodice and skirt flaring slightly at the hemline. Her embroidered net veil was interlined with soft tulle and arranged on her hair in cap-style with a circled arrangement of blossoms. She carried a bouquet of broad roses and lily of the valley.

Her only attendant was Miss Marjorie Donnelly of Kincaid, Saskatchewan, who wore a frock of yellow chiffon, and hat to match. Her bouquet was composed of mauve and yellow carnations, and lily of the valley with berries.

The bride's dress was the same as that of the groom, who wore a frock of green silk satin, yellow lace hat, and corsage of mauve and yellow sweet peas.

During the reception the bridal party stood in the drawing room under the roof of the paneled room and the super table was particularly attractive with an arrangement of mauve and white streamers with pendant wedding bell suspended from the chandelier. A three-tiered wedding cake occupied the place of honor, and mauve and white eggs were found in the floral decorations on the table. The decorations of the house were the handiwork of Mrs. Lorrie Campbell.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce left by motor for a trip to the Okanagan district, and on their return to Victoria will make their home on Carnarvon Street. For traveling the bride wore an ensemble of mauve and beige georgette with beige hat. Both the bride and groom have been identified with the teaching profession of British Columbia, the bride having been a teacher of the staff of the Goldstream School, and the groom the principal of the Colwood School.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Donnelly, of Kincaid, Saskatchewan, Magistrate J. A. Findlay, Miss Phoebe Findlay and Mr. Jim Findlay, of Vancouver. Mr. and Mrs. W. Smillie, of Courtenay, and Mrs. Strong and Mrs. Sewell, of Victoria.

Among the handsome wedding gifts was a case of flat silver from the children of the Goldstream School, and a manila clock and silver vase from the children of the Colwood School.

Ends Piles Quick
Without Salves or Cutting

Piles are caused by congestion of blood in the lower bowel. Only an internal medicine can remove the cause. That's why salves and cutting fail. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, removes this congestion and strengthens the affected parts.

HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere and has such a wonderful record of success even in chronic and stubborn cases that McFarlane and Vancouver Drug Stores invites every pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID and guarantees money-back if it does not end all pile misery.

J. BARRYMORE
DELIGHTED WITH
HOLIDAY IN B.C.

Noted Stage and Screen Star and Wife on Fishing Cruise in Yacht

Says Many Californians Will Make Summer Playground of British Columbia

Vancouver, July 28.—John Barrymore, with Mrs. Barrymore (Dolores Costello), were guests in the city Sunday at the Hotel Georgia and went to their home in Beverly Hills, Los Angeles, for a cruise of British Columbia waters. Accompanied by Mr. Joseph Cawthron and Mrs. Cawthron of Los Angeles, well-known comedy stars, Mr. and Mrs. Barrymore motored north and sailed from Vancouver for their first long trip on their new yacht, the Infanta, for salmon fishing. The yacht, which is of the cruiser type, 120 feet in length, with two Diesel engines, has a crew of thirteen men.

"British Columbia is one of the most beautiful spots in the world," Mr. Barrymore declared, "and I expect to come up every year."

"I'm crazy about fishing, and the salmon at Stewart Island was marvelously good—really extraordinary."

The scenery all along the coast is gorgeous, and next year I intend to go as far as Alaska. We left this time with the intention of going and spending six weeks in the north, but my wife so greatly missed the baby, I didn't have the heart to stay any longer."

"I was tremendously impressed with Powell River. There is a peculiar something about the atmosphere that is very appealing, and we were completely enchanted with the people there. I can't imagine a tollower place or people anywhere. But then, I have found all British Columbians delightful. Maybe it is because I am part English. My father was and all my family are English."

"I think another reason why this part of the world seems so heavenly to me is its restfulness. After living in beautiful Beverly Hills, where the sun is leading man all year round, an occasional change is welcome."

MAY HAVE SUMMER PLACE HERE

When asked if he thought Californians were beginning to consider British Columbia as a permanent playground, Mr. Barrymore said, "Well, at least all the intelligent and sensible ones will after they have been here once. They couldn't help but root for it."

Asked if he thought of establishing the most largely eaten.

YOUR BABY and MINE
by Marie Meyer Elledge

Mrs. Elledge will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

TWO BATHS DAILY WON'T WEAKEN CHILD

The bugaboo that baths are weakening has been so often to frighten young mothers. A too hot bath is undesirable, but a daily cleansing bath in the morning and a cool sponge at night are refreshing and necessary for even the small baby during the warm weather.

Use tepid water for the night sponge, washing first the face, then the hands, the legs, the back and stomach, and patting each dry. No soap need be used. The baby will have a better appetite for his night meal, and will go to bed in a mood to sleep. Be sure that his night clothes are fresh and un wrinkled; his day clothes these days consist of a diaper, so wrinkles except in his own fat baby aren't much of a problem.

AN "ELDRED" BABY

Mrs. B. C. T. writes: "I must tell you that my fourteen-month-old boy has been reared by your advice and is certainly a good advertisement for your department. He is the best natured, most chip, though as mischievous as any, baby I ever saw. He is a real joy to us."

"We have a young mother in the neighborhood who does not keep her baby on schedule and at one year of age he is still being nursed. She says she can't wean him in hot weather, but why did she nurse him until this time? He is so thin and pale, it is pitiful."

MOTHER MUST SEEK ADVICE

One of the lessons we should learn is that we have to let people go their own way, however ridiculous we think they are, until they ask for help. We can't all do alike, or think alike, and it doesn't pay to be upset by this condition, since it can't be altered. It is too bad, and I feel sorry for babies who are the victims of their mother's ignorance . . . but no one can help until the mother thinks she needs help.

Perhaps you would enjoy the leaflet we have on "Various Types of Baths," which any reader may have for a small donation stamped envelope. It is helpful in summer for babies who aren't fortunate enough to escape prickly heat.

"I think you're safe in believing the doctor and not the neighbors. The neighbors say it does, the doctor says not. We would like to know what you think."

"I imagine you are bored to tears by schedules, but I have found an ideal one for hot weather. My boy hasn't had prickly heat once. He wears a diaper and sandals all day long. At eleven-thirty I put out a dishpan full of water a summer place up the coast, he said, "I saw a little log cabin and when I saw my wife's reaction to it, I said to myself, 'Heaven help me, this is not the end of this.'

"It is just possible that I may have some sort of a place at Louise Inlet off Jervis Inlet. It is a charming situation and what could be more blissful than a log cabin and a baby?"

"I'm also looking forward to some hunting and hope to make the opportunity next fall. In any event, I'll be up next year for the salmon fishing."

Five of those arrested turned out to be men already officially expelled from France, who had illicitly returned.

AS ANARCHISTS

Paris, July 28.—Sixty-one alleged anarchists, mostly foreigners, were arrested by French police yesterday on the banks of the River Seine near the suburb of Villejuif-Saint Georges.

The arrests followed a meeting of an association known as "The Federation of the Spanish Tongue."

Five of those arrested turned out to be men already officially expelled from France, who had illicitly returned.

MRS. E. B. FENNER

OCEAN VOYAGEUR

Wife of Capt. Fenner of U.S. Navy Only Lady Passenger Aboard President Lincoln

Flood of Travel Through Canadian Mountains Predicted By Washingtonians

The distinction of being the only lady passenger on board the American Mail liner President Lincoln, which sailed from this port on Saturday evening for the Orient, goes to Mrs. Fenner, wife of Capt. Edward B. Fenner, of the United States navy, bound from Washington, D.C., to Manila.

Mrs. Fenner was not quite sure whether the long ocean voyage would be made more pleasurable, under the circumstances, with nothing but manfolk in the first cabin accommodation, or whether she would suffer from the lack of personal contact with members of her own sex.

In any case, Mrs. Fenner should have a good time as she will have plenty of dancing partners during the voyage.

The ship carries a full orchestra of university players, keyed up to jazz music.

Capt. and Mrs. Fenner are returning to the Asiatic station in the Philippines after spending several years in Washington.

They are former residents of Manila and have crossed the Pacific on a number of occasions, but this is the first time that Mrs. Fenner has not had the company of women companions on the passenger list.

CANADIAN ROUTE PLEASE

En route from Washington to Seattle, Capt. and Mrs. Fenner traveled for the first time over the Canadian Pacific Railway via Banff and Lake Louise.

Both are tremendously enthusiastic over the mountain scenery of the Canadian Rockies, and claim there is nothing like it in the United States.

They state they were sorry they had not time to see more of the mountain scenery.

Within the rugged beauty of the Canadian rail road becomes better known in the United States there will be a flood of American travel through Canada, in the opinion of Capt. and Mrs. Fenner.

Turk Born In 1774 Visits United States

Zaro Agha, 156, Who Claims to Be World's Oldest Human Being, Interviewed on Arrival at Providence

Providence, R.I., July 28.—Zaro Agha, the 156-year-old Turk, who came from Constantinople and entered the United States at this port, will, according to some, be examined by medical authorities, and according to others, will be used by the Drys as a trump card.

Agha, a huge, genial fellow with a face less lined than that of many a man of eighty, cannot read or write, and the immigration regulations of the United States bar illiterates. When the immigration officers asked him about his educational qualifications he admitted his illiteracy readily enough.

NO WRITTEN LANGUAGE

"But I am a native of Bitlis in Asia Minor, in the country of the Kurds," he explained. "It was many years ago, in 1869, that I first went to Istanbul (Constantinople). I was a grown man. And how could I learn to read and write? In the country of the Kurds where I was a boy we have no written language, only a spoken dialect. So, of course, I could not read and write."

A Kurdish interpreter was called in and he verified Zaro Agha's assertion about the language. Then Agha, to his Kurdish nativity to the very curious group in the immigration office on the pier, recited a Mohammedan prayer in Arabic.

The immigration officers straightway lifted the barriers, and there came into the New World a human being to be the oldest man human being on the globe.

FOUGHT AGAINST NAPOLEON

If Zaro's memory does not betray him and his records are correct, he was born in 1774, before the American Colonies revolted; he fought against Napoleon in the historic siege of Acre and against the Russians in the Crimea; he has outlived eleven successive wives and has taken a new bride of sixty-four, and the number of his descendants is so great that he would outnumber them only in round numbers.

Yet he feels that life for him is only well started.

"I want to live as long as the world lasts," he exclaimed, as an outburst of emotion caused him to raise his arms. "I have been happy. I am not bored yet. I no longer have to work. I can enjoy much more of life."

Zaro Agha arrived here alert and interested in everything about him, despite the dimness which has come to his ancient eyes.

DRINKS NO LIQUOR

His lips have never touched liquor, and Zaro himself affirmed this with great emphasis. Offers as an anti-alcohol propagandist had come to Zaro, it was said, but the temperance organizations had proposed to pay only the expenses of the venerable Turk, and that was not sufficient.

Zaro is to be saying up something for his old age.

PHOTOS TAKEN

Agha obliged the photographers willingly. In his prime—that is at about 145—he weighed 212 pounds and stood six feet high. He has sagged a bit since then and his once powerful frame has become stringy, so he still is a rugged figure. Under his close-clipped grey hair looms massive features—a heavy, dominant hooked nose and a great expanse of out-thrust chin, flanked by ears as big as Lymhaven oysters. A trim white mustache droops over his mouth. His skin is the color of mahogany. His face is seamed, the corners of his eyes are deeply lined. Though his face does not indicate his age, his hands, almost black and grotesquely wrinkled, might be those of Methuselah.

Zaro Agha wore a neat dark grey suit, black oxfords and a pearl grey fedora, with a lavender tie.

PARTIES STIRS ENTHUSIASM

The reporters earnestly sought to get from Zaro Agha some reminiscences of the Napoleonic wars, or of any war, for it appears he has fought in fourteen, but Zaro could not keep off the subject of a journey he had made to France, Germany and Italy four years ago and of the fun he had there.

"How did you like Paris?" someone asked him.

"It was—e-e-e!" he exclaimed shrilly. "That is Turkish for 'whoopie'."

Zaro's European trip, it developed, had been an attraction in a show in which he was billed as the oldest man in the world.

Zaro's domestic life was explained. "He had twelve wives, but he had them all on; after another, after the Kurdish fashion," his European manager explained. "They have all died, all but the last. She is sixty-four years old and he has been married to her twice."

"I got along nicely with all my wives. They were happy. They all died, all but the last," he said.

HIS DESCENDANTS

Zaro Agha was asked how many descendants he had. He figured seventy on his fingers for some minutes, then gave it up.

"Before the war," he finally said, "I had twenty-two great grandchildren in Istanbul, and now I have sixteen there. How many I have in the land of the Kurds I have never heard."

He finished with a gesture to indicate infinity.

"I have been happy all my life," said Zaro. "When I was young I was a powerful man. I worked, like a young man in a gun factory until I was 104 or 105. Then I got a job and went on working until I was 136. I don't care about money. Just happiness."

Zaro's first memory was of the death of the Sultan Mohammed I, 144 years ago, when Zaro was twelve years old. Zaro had lived through the reigns of twelve Sultans and dimly remembers hearing about Washington and Lincoln. Zaro at length was got on the subject of his wife.

"I was shot six times," he said. "At 103 I volunteered at Pleven. I carried heavy artillery guns on my shoulders up beyond where the horses could take them."

LEADS SIMPLE LIFE

"He leads a very simple life," said his "manager." "He never ate too much, never any meat, and he worked hard. He always went to bed early and got up early. He never touched liquor. Even on the ship, on July 4, when champagne was offered, everybody refused to taste it. He never smoked."

One of the ship's officers here interrupted to say that on the voyage

L. P. Roy. The lad fell into the Winnipeg River as he slipped along from rock to rock with a number of condemned pilings.

James Milne, thirty-three of Dugald, who saved the life of Mabel Geoffrey as she slipped and sank below the surface of a swimming hole at Bird's Hill. He struggled with her toward shore, but he drowned after placing her in the hands of rescuers.

Ernest Lamb, fifteen, of Winnipeg, who stepped into a hole in the bed of the Red River and sank to death at Lockport campers looked on.

Rhodes Busch, seventeen, of Grand

Creek, who took a canoe while bathing in western Manitoba. She sank suddenly after coming to the surface following a dive.

BASED ON CHEAP GRAIN, CANADA CAN AGAIN BUILD EXPORT ANIMAL TRADE

Toronto, July 28.—The present combination of low prices for grains and high prices for animals will lead automatically to increased animal production in Canada, in the opinion of John S. McLean, president of Canada Packers Limited. Very important problems remain, for the Canadian packing industry, as far as the market maintains at twice as much as the volume of business requires.

TREAT FARMING PROBLEM AS WHOLE

"A wise livestock policy can be arrived at only if considered in relation to Canada's total agricultural problem, which is the most important problem in the country," Mr. McLean said. "The new grain rates will be effective October 1st, and the new rates will be applied to the whole of the animal trade."

In recent years, grain prices—grain prices—dropped more and more out of proportion to agricultural products, especially in the case of hogs, and a mounting price has made prices too high locally to permit packers competing in a competitive market except at a loss. Sodas have been dropped so as to maintain uniform export shipments to Great Britain.

CANADA MUST ORGANIZE

The internal higher level can be maintained only by keeping production short of domestic requirements. The highest internal prices create the drop in times of flush production to bring price to world levels. The second course would commit Canada to a continued acceptance of world prices, and this is sound, says Mr. McLean, only on one condition, that Canada can produce at prices as cheaply as any other country.

British market, which practically owns the British market, has obtained that market by following the second policy consistently for thirty years.

Canada, therefore, would have to grow hogs as cheaply as Denmark. Every expert agrees that such conditions would put Canadian to do that, but the difficulty would be to organize Canadian hog growers as efficiently as are Danish hog growers.

The enormous size of Canada and the difference in the natural mental habits of Canadians make them less responsive to official efforts to maintain a high level of prices.

All experience indicates the latter is the safer course. It makes possible the advantages which derive from steady volume, and adds the safety that comes from an average price for total agricultural output.

FARMERS WILL RECOVER

"In the general decline of values which has recently taken place, the farmer has been one of the chief sufferers. Grain prices have already drastically declined, and animal prices undoubtedly must follow. To add to the misfortune of declining world prices, the American tariff at one stroke has subtracted one cent per pound live weight from the Canadian market, and castles in Canada. The average Canadian farmer, under previous conditions, had obtained a price which was double that of the world market.

To a wise livestock policy, however, the answer is a definite 'No.' The Canadian farmer operates in a market which is world-wide.

The higher internal prices create the drop in times of flush production to bring price to world levels. The second course would commit Canada to a continued acceptance of world prices, and this is sound, says Mr. McLean, only on one condition, that Canada can produce at prices as cheaply as any other country.

British market, which practically owns the British market, has obtained that market by following the second policy consistently for thirty years.

The enormous size of Canada and the difference in the natural mental habits of Canadians make them less responsive to official efforts to maintain a high level of prices.

"In developing such export outlets, special problems will arise in connection with each product. In respect of bacon, these problems have been indicated. Chief amongst them is the competition of Denmark."

This competition can be successfully met only by matching Denmark's organization with an equally efficient Canadian organization.

"To this end the whole livestock industry, which includes not only production, but manufacture and distribution, should be re-examined with the object of placing it upon the most efficient basis possible."

"The keynote is undoubtedly increasing efficiency. This has two major phases:

"(a) Better production methods, by which Canada's food animals shall be produced at a lower cost. This factor is enormously important. It is the production of the factors.

"(b) Better manufacturing and distribution methods. This is the problem of the packer."

"Within the last few years, the pack-a present rate of 30½ cents. To Baltimore from Omaha and Kansas City a rate of 31 cent was ordered, against the present rate of 38½. From Omaha to New Orleans the present rate of 23 cent, and from Kansas City to the same destination the present rate of 23 cent will become 21; from St. Louis to Baltimore the new rate will be 22 cents, against a present rate of 25 and from Chicago 14 cents, against 21, with a present rate of 11; Chicago to Baltimore will become 16 cents, against 21, and from central Illinois to Baltimore will become 23 cents, against 25.

No order was entered in preference to grain shipments from the lake ports for export. From Montana territory export and domestic rates on wheat were left at identical levels.

THE SPORTS MIRROR

Cochet Wins Easily From Tilden While Borotra Beats Lott

THERE was a time when hitters who could compile a batting average of .300 for the season in the major leagues were scarce. Pitchers were the heroes of the day. Usually they held the upper hand and seldom were they removed from the mound because of being unable to snuff out bating rallies. Hitters in the .300 class were supermen, fellows with unusually keen eyes and supple wrists. They connected for home runs occasionally, but never more than ten or a dozen times in one season.

But times have changed and knowing that they have, we looked at recent batting averages compiled for the National and American Leagues to note the difference. We are not surprised that an old-timer pitcher recently advised young men who contemplated big league careers to discard the pitching idea and go in for jobs that entail little, if nothing, more than bunting the ball to far corners of the major league parks.

National League averages at hand tell us that 70 athletes are rapping the ball at .300 or better clip. American League statistics reveal that 41 players top the .300 mark. That makes a total of 111 ball players, doesn't it, who are .300 hitters. And there are only 400 players in the major leagues.

In 1906, the National League had four players whose batting averages were in the charmed circle. The 1930 averages recently showed eight men with batting averages of better than .400. The Pirates led the team scoring of .350. Nineteen of the 16 teams to-day have club averages of more than .200. The 234 record of Pittsburgh 22 years ago just about matches the mark of the St. Louis Browns to-day.

Heros of the game back in 1906 were Donovan, Plant, Brown, Bender, Mathewson—all of them pitchers. Of course, a few cheers were distributed to the Wagners, the Cobbs, the Magers and one or two others. Donovan won 28 games, lost four and was not taken out of a game. Plant won 27, lost 11 and was taken out only once. Even the eccentric-Rube Waddell, playboy of the big leagues at that time, pitched 32 games and was taken out only seven times. And his was the poorest example of the year.

Names the big shorts to-day. They are Ruth, Gehrig, Simmons, Foxx, Wilson, Stephenson, Klein, O'Doul, Ott, Berger and a long list of other men—all sluggers. We send up a cheer now and then for Lefty Grove, Earnshaw, Ferrell, Walberg, Root, Luque, Hubbell and a few more.

Rube Walberg pitched a three-hit game for Philadelphia the other day, blanking the hard-hitting New York Yankees. Previous to that game, though, Walberg had been shelled from the box in seven consecutive starts.

And now Sammy Mandell takes his place along with Sharkey, Dempsey and Carpenter, fighters who have trained at Orangeburg and lost the fight for which they were training.

The lucky star right above Al Singer's heart, which Al says boomed him from a $40 to a $40,000 fighter in two years, looked like millions of stars to Mandell within one minute and 40 seconds.

Singer isn't superstitious; he walks under ladders, kicks black cats out of his way, and enters the ring first. But that birth mark is his lucky star.

A heading the other day said "Daughters Triumph Over Mother in Golf Final." Wasn't that old song "Everybody Works but Father?"

Then there was the fellow who commented on Gallois Fox, said, "Not many young men have become independently wealthy at the early age of three."

The symbol of victory between English and Canadian cricket teams is known as "The Ashes," and is contained in an urn now in the possession of the Marylebone Cricket Club at Lord's ground, London.

The largest lottery in the English Derby this year offered three prizes of more than $600,000 each. The lottery was known as the Calcutta Sweep.

Paulino Uzcudun, the Spanish heavyweight boxer who has met most of the prominent topnotchers, wears gloves that weigh 26 ounces each when he is in training.

HARRISON IS NET CHAMPION

Defeats Frank Gove in Finals For Western Canadian Championship

Vancouver, July 28.—Scoring brilliant placements and making sensational recoveries, Bradshaw Harrison, Tacoma, conquered Frank Gove, Oakland, in the finals of the Western Canadian lawn tennis tournament yesterday and captured his third consecutive net championship in the Pacific Northwest this season.

Playing as steadily as he did brilliantly, the former University of Oregon tennis captain, trounced the California in three straight sets 6-1, 6-1, 6-0.

Miss Miller and Mrs. Golda Myers Gross, Berkeley, won the women's doubles title when they defeated Mrs. H. Hagger and Miss R. Ellis, Vancouver, 6-2, 6-1.

Don Lewis, Portland, conquered his townsmen, Bob Johnson, 7-5, 10-8, to capture the boys' title.

After five torrid sets, Harrison and Bob Hooga, Eugene, defeated Joe Coughlan, San Francisco, and Frank Gove, Sacramento, 6-3, 6-2, to win the men's doubles crown.

Harrison and Mrs. Golda Myers Gross, Berkeley, won the mixed doubles title with a victory over Mrs. H. Hagger and George Starling, Vancouver. The scores were: 6-2, 4-6, 6-4.

Robins Pound Ball Hard For Twin Win Over Philadelphia

National League Leaders Gain Ground on Chicago, Who Lost to Cincinnati; Pittsburgh Pirates Sink Giants for Double Loss; Philadelphia Athletics and Yankees Both Beaten; Western Clubs of Both Major Leagues Have Edge Over East in Inter-sectional Series.

An unexpected display of strength on the part of the western clubs of both major leagues marked the series which wound up yesterday after a little over two weeks of east-west play.

In the National League, Chicago, after leading the way in the inter-sectional struggles with eleven victories and six defeats went down yesterday before the Cincinnati jinx and lost a game and a half to Brooklyn, who trounced the Phillies twice. The Robins pounded Philadelphia pitchers for twenty-six hits which produced nine home runs and won by scores of 10 to 6 and 9 to 6.

Against the New York Giants, Pittsburgh Pirates gained a victory yesterday. The Pirates bunched their hits for enough runs to offset a six-run Giant rally and win the first game, 10 to 8, then piled up an early lead off Pete Donohue for an 8 to 4 triumph in the second.

St. Louis Cardinals added to the prestige of the west by handing Boston Braves a double defeat, 2 to 0 and 6 to 1.

WEST HAS EDGE

Due to the surprising showing of Cleveland and Detroit at home, and Washington's slump, the American League's western division took thirty-eight contests to thirty-four for the east. The Indians scored a final triumph yesterday by sending the league leaders down to a 7 to 4 defeat.

Los Angeles gained three points as his pinch hitting act proved successful. Lou Gehrig and Babe Ruth both went hitless and dropped a few points.

Lou had one official time at bat and the Babe, two.

The Philadelphia rivals, Chuck Klein and Frank O'Dowd, are back in the tie for leadership in the Big Six, and in the National League batting lists, as the result of yesterday's slugging against Brooklyn.

Klein had a little the better of the wallowing, getting 11 hits including twenty-eight and twenty-nine homers in five times at bat, and leads again against Brooklyn.

O'Dowd, with four hits in nine times up, held his mark at .405, while Klein went up to .403.

Al Simmons and Elmer Stromberg also had good days yesterday. Simmons with two hits in three times, improved his third place mark by two points. Stromberg gained three points as his pinch hitting act proved successful. Lou Gehrig and Babe Ruth both went hitless and dropped a few points.

St. Louis Browns remained in seventh place by winning two of the day's most surprising games from the Boston Red Sox, 9 to 9 and 2 to 6.

Washington put on one of the rather infrequent displays of its early strength and slammed the Chicago White Sox fifteen hits and a 10 to 1 victory.

St. Louis Browns remained in seventh place by winning two of the day's most surprising games from the Boston Red Sox, 9 to 9 and 2 to 6.

Burrows Shatters Record To Win Times Swim

Slices Over Three Minutes From Time; Walker Junior Champ

Vancouver Youth in Splendid Performance to Complete Long Grind From Causeway to Gorge in 55 Minutes 19 4-5 Seconds; Walker Finishes Second in Senior Race After Lifting Junior Laurels; O. Findlay Second in Junior Event; Large Crowd Sees Marathons.

Ploughing through the waters with a steady six beat crawl, George Burrows, husky Vancouver long distance swimmer, won the annual Through-Victoria Swim from the Causeway to the Gorge, staged on Saturday afternoon under the auspices of The Victoria Times. Burrows not only retained the honors he won for the first time last year but succeeded in smashing his own record of 58 minutes and 53 seconds by 3 minutes 33 1-5 seconds. His time on Saturday was 55 minutes 19 4-5 seconds. Burrows swam a beautiful race to finish quarter-mile ahead of Denny Walker, sixteen-year-old Y.M.C.A. star, who was the winner of the junior event. Cooper, swimming under the colors of the Royal Canadian Navy, was third in the senior event, with Carrie Gray of Chemainus fourth.

Walker reached Point Ellice Bridge, the finish of the junior event, in thirty minutes and fifty-four seconds, just under six minutes after Burrows had passed under the span. Bill Findlay, of the Crystal Garden Swimming Club, finished second in the junior event, and Carrie Gray, third.

The swim was one of the most successful ever staged and drew a large audience to the start, while the John Street Bridge and the Point Ellice Bridge and advantages points along the course were lined with interested spectators who cheered the contestants as they ploughed along the waters of the Gorge.

BURROWS NEVER PRESSED

Burrows, who is the only swimmer to complete the three-mile grind under the hour, was never pressed. Swimming steadily with a rhythmic stroke, Burrows opened a wide lead soon after the start and increased it as the race progressed.

Plunging into the cold waters of the Inner Harbor along with the sixteen other senior and junior competitors, Burrows stepped out in front and at the C.N.R. docks, at which point the pilots took up their charges, he was leading Walker by fifty yards, with Cooper in third place, while Bill Findlay and Carrie Gray were close behind. The contestants were stretched out over the short distance. Upon reaching the Johnson Street Bridge, Burrows was 200 yards in the lead, with Walker still second and Cooper third. Findlay and

Pairs With Sister Hope to Win Canadian Women's Doubles Tennis Title

MARJORIE AND JOHN PROCTOR, FORMERLY OF VICTORIA, CAPTURE MIXED DOUBLES

At Curtis Point, Burrows had been in the water forty-nine minutes and was ploughing strongly, with half a mile lead over Walker. On reaching the point Burrows' father, who was acting as pilot, asked the timeskeeper if George had a chance of setting a new record and when told he had, proceeded to speed up his son. Fifty yards from the finish Burrows sprinted to the float, to the cheering of the large crowd lining the banks of the inlet. Burrows was quite fresh at the finish and eagerly waited for Walker to finish, congratulating the Victoria youngster as he touched the float. Walker finished about ten minutes behind Burrows, while Cooper was about two minutes behind Walker.

Carrie Gray, the plucky little girl from Chemainus, was next to reach the float, being the first woman to finish the senior event. George Driscoll, veteran Vancouver star, finished in fifth position, while Winnie Pollard of the Crystal Garden Swimming Club, was sixth. Alex Thompson was seventh and Chris Rasmussen of the Garrison eighth.

Rasmussen, although he had been in the water for nearly an hour and a half, declared at the finish he was ready to start on the return journey.

At the finish of the senior race the prizes were presented to the victors by Allene Clappett, daughter of Capt. Clappett, president of the B.C. section of the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association.

Walker was the lucky winner of three trophies. Besides receiving the two cups for winning the junior event, he was presented with a beautiful trophy for finishing second in the senior race.

—By Associated Screen News.

UNEASINESS STILL GRIPS BUSINESS ACROSS EUROPE

Unemployment Is Higher as Politics Is Disturbing to Business

Cable dispatches to The Business Week give the following swift survey of business abroad for the past week:

"Europe—The generally unsatisfactory European international situation has again caused a distinct feeling of uneasiness in business circles. The League of Nations is opposed to the threatened restoration of the monarchy in Hungary, following Carol's coup d'état. The situation in the Balkans gives little confidence to the outside world that the threat of a political brawl in these countries may not be translated into a actual fact before the end of the year.

"Musolini's continued bellicose utterances are no longer considered merely a gesture for home consumption. Observers hint that Il Duce desires the formation of a coalition of anti-Bolshevik powers, over which the French are much perturbed. It is rumored that Carol's restoration in Rumania was due to a French diplomatic counter move for a set-up of the pre-war bulwark in the Balkans.

"Trade, as usual in this season, is dull and weak, but there is a general improvement on any markets. Unemployment continues to increase.

"Russian orders continue to be a bone of contention in several countries, notably Great Britain, Germany, Italy and Poland. Unofficial reports on the harvest in Russia turn out to show that there is no rumor that rainy weather and heavy dews are interfering with work in the south while general growing conditions in the north are in some regions slightly below average.

"Great Britain—Business in general shows no improvement though a slight increase in the demand for cotton goods created a bit of optimism this week. The French gold drain continues on both sterling and dollar balances, with the expectation that France may eventually draw gold from New York.

"The political situation dominates business. The Government's narrow escape on the technical clause in the Finance Bill makes a general election a near possibility and therefore has set up a degree of uncertainty in business circles. Juries decide upon the excesses; imports, 8.8 per cent; exports, 14.1 per cent; re-exports, 18.1 per cent. Total exports were down 14.7 per cent and the excess of imports over exports increased 2.3 per cent compared with June, 1929. Heaviest declines were registered in cotton, coal, coke, pottery, glass and steel, electric machinery.

"Germany—The country's financial policy was made definite when the Cabinet enacted by decree its financial programme which taxes income more heavily and increases drastically the "back-tariffs" and trade taxes. The increasing financial crises resulting deficit of communal finances now aggregating $123,000,000; the deficit for the Federal railways, totaling $100,000,000. To cover the latter the Government has approved a slight increase in passenger rates, effective September 1, and a sum of $15,000,000 before the end of the year. Business sentiment generally is disappointed in the price reductions which resulted from recent agreements and lowered raw materials prices.

"France—General business activity is fair and shows slight improvement over last month. The coal market is calm, iron and steel production is higher, with increased export but lower domestic consumption of steel; the machinery industry is running at maximum capacity due to new replacement orders; electrical production is due to the reconstruction of existing new record—with the city of Paris planning the immediate construction of 20,000 workers' houses. The depression in the cotton industry continues with low prices and slack demand; wool is active. There is no improvement in the automobile industry, either. France's Agricultural agricultural outlook is unsatisfactory due to continuing unfavorable weather.

"Belgium—The stock market continues weak and the public uninterested in long term investment. Money is cheap with call money at 1.375 per cent. Coal demand is still poor and on hand are approaching 2,000,000 tons. Industrial grades have been reduced from seven to fifteen francs a ton but the demand is still insufficient to absorb the surplus. Textiles are weak with unemployment growing. Other industries have reduced output but as yet have not their personnel. Other textile centres have diminished from ten per cent to forty per cent of their personnel.

"Italy—American automobile agents, except Ford, are presenting a collective protest to the Government stressing the importance of saving their business and greater unemployment through the closing of offices, shops and service stations. Ford-Isetta agreement has been reached for the production of airplane engines to be followed by a similar arrangement for automobile manufacture. Apparently Fiat is inclined and will follow Ford with light, Isetta with heavy engines.

"A national commercial federation is studying the situation created by the American tariff. Olive oil exporters have resolved to organize propaganda to adopt a uniform sales policy and advertise collectively in the United States.

Natural Lenses

If modern man lived under conditions similar to those of his savage ancestors there would be little need of lenses to correct deficient vision or eyestrain. Modern life, with its brilliant lighting, motion pictures and countless books and periodicals, makes demands upon the eyes that they are unable to meet without the assistance of corrective lenses.

Consult our Registered Optometrist and learn whether or not your eyes are adapted to carry on efficiently through the exigencies of modern civilization.

Future Ruler Wanted to Become Musician

Prince Joseph wanted to be a musician. When he was a very tiny boy he began to love music. He could sit happily for a long, long time listening to the court musicians, and soon he began to learn to play something himself.

His father arranged for him to take music lessons, and he did so well that his teachers were greatly surprised. They encouraged the lad, and he practiced and practiced.

He thought it would be a fine thing if he could play in an orchestra when he grew up, and travel about giving concerts. He thought that if he worked hard this dream would come true.

However, when he told his father about his plan, the father explained that he was to be a ruler when he grew up, a great emperor, in fact, and that emperors couldn't go around playing the piano.

The young prince was a terrible disappointment for Joseph. Joseph I, Roman Emperor, was born in Vienna July 26, 1678.

Of Local Chamber To Unemployment Parley

George McGregor was appointed to the Chamber of Commerce's delegate to the unemployment conference of railway companies, industrial and labor organizations and collectors to be held in the Parliament Buildings on Wednesday and Friday, August 7 and 8, at the luncheon of the directors of the chamber to-day. Members of the chamber having suggestions to make regarding the meeting, are requested to communicate with him before the date of the meeting.

OBITUARY

The funeral took place on Friday afternoon at Alberni Cemetery of Dr. W. G. Kennedy of North Park Street, Victoria, who died at Alberni on Wednesday last. The service was held at all Saint's Anglican Church, Rev. R. D. Portier officiating. The late Dr. Kennedy was born at Londonderry, Ireland, seventy years ago, the son of Thomas Kennedy, and after practicing for many years at Salford, England, came to Victoria five years ago. He is survived by his widow and a stepson, H. Williamson of Alberni.

The remains of Mrs. Sarah Love Howlett were laid at rest in Ross Bay Cemetery Saturday afternoon. The funeral service was from Haywards' B.C. Funeral Chapel at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. O. L. Jull officiating. The hymns sung were "Abide With Me" and "Never, My God, to Thee." Many friends were present and the casket was hidden beneath many floral offerings. The pallbearers were: J. Berry, F. Green, W. White and S. Huston.

James Parfitt Tells Local Commerce Body of Activities of Associated Boards

A full report on the activities of the Associated Boards of Trade of Vancouver Island at the annual convention in Cumberland and Courtney was given to the directors of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce by Mr. James Parfitt meeting to-day by James Parfitt.

Speaking on behalf of the local delegation which included five other Victorians, he referred to the dinner in Cumberland and the session in Courtney the next day in Courtney.

Mr. Parfitt told the resolutions that had been drawn up at the meeting and told of the outcome of each. He reminded the members of the Victoria chamber that the next convention would be held in Duncan, and referred to the election of new officers.

Mr. Parfitt also noted that the convention had requested the doubling of Victoria's assessment. It was suggested that the assessment for this city be changed from $50 to $125, and was left over for the consideration of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

From the local delegation, F. B. Fowler, president of the Victoria chamber, was chosen chairman of the resolution committee, while W. A. Lune was named a member of the credentials committee, Mr. Parfitt reported.

More than 400 junior fire wardens or game by the association last spring are assisting fire rangers in the protection of timber stands from fire, it is reported.

The association is planning an exhibit in connection with Canada Pacific Exhibition at Hastings Park here August 6 to 16.

Slight rains and dull and cool weather which have been experienced the last couple of days have had a marked effect in reducing the fire hazard throughout British Columbia, it is stated, and most fires are now under control.

QUIET SUNDAY

No forest outbreaks were reported Sunday, according to provincial forestry department.

The fire at Vedder, near Chilliwack, on Dominion lands, in timber operated by Campbell River Timber Co., was brought under control yesterday. E. Wamaley, crown timber agent, reported.

It ran over an area of about 300 acres and was 100 per cent out.

It fought by 100 men, principally from the lumber company.

NEWS IN BRIEF

J. P. Robinson was fined $5 in City Court this morning for failing to have a license on a trailer attached to a motor vehicle.

Alterations to the Canadian National dock offices at Ogden Point will be carried out by Parfitt Brothers, according to a permit taken out at the City Hall this morning. The work will cost about $500.

An improved mail service is now being accorded residents in Saanich served from Saanichton post office. Mail collected on the rural route during the morning round now leaves the post office at 11:40 o'clock, enabling delivery in Victoria the same afternoon and making connection with the afternoon steamer to Vancouver, a saving of twenty-four hours.

The annual picnic of the Pro Patria Branch of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., will take place at Deep Cove on Saturday, August 2. Tallyhos will leave the headquarters on Courtney Street at 1 o'clock. A splendid programme of sports and novel and comic events will be carried out, and good prizes will be awarded. Persons intending to go are requested to advise the secretary before July 31, so that ample provision may be made. All are asked to bring their own provisions. The branch will provide tea, milk and hot water. Tickets should be secured as early as possible.

Polling Heavy Throughout City This Morning; Stations
Close at 6 o'clock

Local Liberals Say Large Vote Will Ensure Victory
For Stuart Henderson

Voting proceeded steadily at the eight-five polls throughout the city this morning with indications that a record vote would be cast before polling ends at 6 o'clock. It is estimated that there are from 6,000 to 8,000 new voters.

Local Liberal leaders were predicting that the 1928 total of 11,000 votes would be exceeded.

Up-town residents were the first to turn out in numbers to the polls with the vote in the Foul Bay zone particularly heavy. Sections 24, 27, 30 and 35 were also reported an early attendance at their stations.

VOTING IN HOSPITALS

The Victoria Liberals welcomed the heavy vote as increasing the chance for victory of Stuart Henderson, Liberal candidate for the constituency. It was a Conservative majority to a bare hundred, and with every increase in the total poll over the 11,000 figure of that year, the chances of victory loom brighter. The tide of political opinion has been swinging more and more towards Liberal policies for the last decade, and even without the Dunning budget, local leaders were anticipating a change in the Victoria seat. British preference and the nature of the campaign have also gained considerable Liberal strength.

Two fleet planes piloted by J. H. Holley, factory representative of the Fleet Corporation, and G. P. Silke of the Canadian Aircraft Corporation, and the Commercial Airways of Vancouver, B.C. dealers for the fleet, arrived by plane from the Mainland this morning.

Two fleet planes, from "Buffalo" to the coast, was in charge of the party. The Fleet planes, he said, were specially adapted for training purposes as well as for sport, having a slow landing speed, fast in the air, and excellent field record for the novice.

A flying club is forming here. It is possible Mr. McGregor will be retained as instructor, it was stated.

The party will probably fly back to Vancouver to-morrow.

Reached; Care is Asked

Reward Offered For Information on Incendiaries

With the 1930 forest fire total now surpassing by a large margin the fires of the last two years, the situation has reached its most critical stage, according to the weekly bulletin issued by the chief forest ranger.

Based on records of previous years it is expected this week will be the critical period of the fire season. Although reports from the northern interior and the Cariboo area indicate an easing of conditions by cool evenings and showers, the general outlook over the province is hazardous.

Nine hundred and twenty-nine fires have been reported in the province to date this year, as against 887 up to this time last year and 602 in 1928.

The Vancouver Island area, which is controlled from Vancouver, has had an increase, the total for the district being 218, compared with 169 last year.

Vancouver, July 23.—Forecasting a critical forest fire period during the next thirty days, Charles Williamson, British Columbia manager of the Canadian Forestry Association, has issued a warning to campers, hikers and picnickers to exercise the greatest possible care with fire in the woods.

He declares more than eighty percent of forest fires in British Columbia are caused through carelessness.

Forest branch officials are exercising the greatest vigilance and the entire force is organized to ward off forest fires which are so disastrous to the valuable asset of British Columbia, and pile up such a huge annual monetary loss, he says.

Fortunately, he states, up to the present few severe fires have been reported in coastal areas this year.

Two forest association's fire patrols are now in the field. Mr. Williamson says: One in charge of E. V. Abell is in Windermere district, and the other under T. G. Martin, left a few days ago for the Prince George district.

Volunteers at work in the forests are assisting fire rangers in the protection of timber stands from fire, it is reported.

The association is planning an exhibit in connection with Canada Pacific Exhibition at Hastings Park here August 6 to 16.

"Journey's End" is a slice of life that has been cut from the middle of one of the most intensely dramatic periods of the world's history—the late fiascos in France. The scene of the play is in the British trenches before St. Quentin. The entire action takes place in a single dug-out under a trench and covers a period of four days.

In short, it is the story of the effect that going into the trenches for the first time had on a youngster making the plunge from civilization to a battlefield dug-out.

Second Lieutenant Raleigh, the youngster, played by David Manners, and Captain Stanhope, the officer, played by Colin Clive, are the principals. Raleigh, who has been Stanhope's youthful school companion, arrives to find that this boy, who was his ideal, his former athletic hero, and now his war hero, Stanhope, who is all that he is now despite his heavy drinking, and who is in love with Raleigh's sister is forced to send the young man to almost sure death for the sake of getting certain information that must be had.

This great Universal super-production will come to the Capitol Theatre on Thursday for a nine day run.

The six other boys who play "Paul's" comrades, Russell Gleason, William Bakewell, Scott Kolk, Walter Bensinger, Ben Alexander and Owen Davis Jr., range in age from nineteen to twenty. When Remarque wrote "All Quiet on the Western Front" he stood most of all.

NANCY CARROLL LEADING LADY AT DOMINION

Plays Emotional Role in "The Devil's Holiday" Here For Three Days

There is something apropos in the fact that Nancy Carroll, who is one of Paramount's "biggest names" is now playing in a production which required the biggest and even controversial scenes of a talking picture.

The picture is "The Devil's Holiday," now at the Dominion Theatre for three days, a romance-drama of the American wheat-belt, written and directed by Edmund Goulding, writer and director of "Gloria Swanson's" "The Temptress."

Mrs. Carroll plays the role of a professional "good girl" who, as a man-curius in a big hotel, works hand-in-hand with double-crossing salesmen of farm implements to "trim down" their farmer customers.

Final shots in the Federal election campaign here were fired at the Royal Victoria Theatre Saturday night when an enthusiastic crowd of voters acclaimed the Liberal candidate, Stuart Henderson, and listened to an enlightening address by Dugald Donaghy, K.C., of Vancouver.

Mr. Henderson took the opportunity to answer certain charges which had been made against him by Provincial Government officials, dealing in particular with his refusal to put the proposed new courthouse here.

The candidate promised to take up the matter of sealing claims if he went back to Ottawa during the next administration.

Mr. Henderson next pointed out how Victoria had had an opposition member of Parliament for the last decade and had suffered for this reason. It was only natural that a government should treat its own supporters with greater consideration.

Problems facing this province were then discussed by Mr. Henderson.

With regard to the P. G. E. Railway, he said Premier King had already pointed out that the Peace River country should have a share in that outlet. Surely, it was only natural that when such a question came up the proper advocates should be present to argue it.

Capt. George McGregor, the chairman, in his opening remarks, spoke of the fact that there had been no "flag-waving" during the campaign. Although the Liberals had displayed patriotic fervor, they had not said much about them, he said.

The people of Canada must appreciate what the Liberal party has done and can show their appreciation by returning the King administration to office on Monday," he declared.

Songs by John McLean and Buster Brown enlivened the programme.

good theories, do not work out in practice."

After reviewing Mr. Bennett's attitude in regard to trade, did it not seem that his viewpoint was unconcerned? he asked. He went on to defend the countervailing duties imposed under the Dunsmuir budget.

MR. HENDERSON

Mr. Henderson, who was greeted with a hearty burst of applause when he rose to speak, expressed his sincere thanks to Mr. Donaghy for coming to speak for him.

At the outset, Mr. Henderson denied making any promises that the Federal Government would provide one-third of the cost for a new courthouse for Victoria. The Daily Colonist had printed this fact, he said, but it was not true. He had no intention of having "the trail" of the campaign. He attacked the Provincial Government on the propaganda which they were putting forth during the campaign as largely false.

The Liberal administration with its series of new laws, the nine measures, including debt reduction, taxation reduction and increased prosperity, was a direct answer to this sort of propaganda. The Liberal party, during this period, had been free from every sort of scandal.

CANADA BEST

On the question of unemployment Mr. Henderson showed that in the first four months of this year unemployment in the United States was almost greater than in Canada. Yet the U.S. was a land of high tariff. Great Britain and Germany also had greater unemployment per capita than Canada. It was not a matter which could be directly compared by the governments.

The candidate promised to take up the matter of sealing claims if he went back to Ottawa during the next administration.

Mr. Henderson next pointed out how Victoria had had an opposition member of Parliament for the last decade and had suffered for this reason. It was only natural that a government should treat its own supporters with greater consideration.

C.P.R. REPORTS STATE OF CROPS

More moderate weather during the week just past has had a more or less favorable influence on crop growth over the west, according to the weekly report from the agricultural department of the Canadian Pacific Railway to-day.

Although rainfall was belated in southern districts where damage from drought and other causes was imminent, it has done sufficient deterioration for the time being—and where the grain was practically out headed, will be beneficial to the late crop. Heavy showers were welcomed in Northwestern and Central Manitoba, East Central, Northern and West Central Saskatchewan and over most of Alberta, and were particularly heavy in South Saskatchewan where crops were in a critical condition. River valley of Manitoba reported excessive moisture, with some points in Northern Saskatchewan where it has caused grain to lodge, less heat and generally cool nights have helped filling conditions for all grains. Dry areas in South Saskatchewan report rapid ripening of proper development. Fall rye is being cut in all three Prairie Provinces, a condition expected to be general by the end of July. Barley cutting is reported in Manitoba and Alberta and small oats have been harvested at Irvine, Alta. Need of rain in South, Central and South Eastern Saskatchewan is urgent to help summer fallow crops to fill properly. Sunflower seedlings have withstood the extreme heat fairly well as reported last week, but will need more rain this week. Haymaking generally has stopped now almost generally needed. Haying progresses, except at a few points in Manitoba, where moisture has hindered up-erations.

It is considered still too early in its development to determine damage which may result from stem rust reappearing in the western provinces and Eastern Saskatchewan this week.

British Columbian raspberries are a heavy crop and moving rapidly. Tree fruits are ripening well and early apples, peaches and plums are moving from Okanagan to small lots.

GARY COOPER IN "ONLY THE BRAVE" AT THE CAPITOL

Romantic Sweethearts of
"The Virginian" Score New
Success in Fine Picture

Gary Cooper, recently seen and heard in the title role of "The Virginian," is doing his gallantries again to-day, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Capitol Theatre in a thrilling play, "Only the Brave." For many a feminine heart the foregoing statement, brief as it is, will no doubt be sufficient recommendation to his newest offering.

But in case there are other customers, it must be added that "Only the Brave" shows Cooper to a better advantage, for better, than his previous satisfactory best.

There is something about this tall, manly Montana youth that seems to shark him. He is virile and gallant, but yet gives off a sense of quiet strength of unyielding emotion. His quiet courage inspires hero-worship in the hearts of all who behold him and hear him in his masterful work upon the talking screen.

Paramount chose wisely when it selected Mary Brian as the sweetheart of Gary Cooper in this picture. Their tremendous scenes as the lovers in "The Virginian" found great favor with film fans everywhere.

"Only the Brave" is from an original story by Keene Thompson. It deals with the crinoline days when Grant and Lee were saying it with cannon and troops. Gary Cooper is a captain of cavalry on the Union side who, emulating his brother, his mother, who enlisted him, volunteers for spy duty. Accordingly he is sent behind the Southern lines with a packet of false dispatches. His plan is to be arrested and to have the false dispatches discovered by the enemy, who will then be misled into a fatal movement of attack.

But he meets Mary Brian, and the plot then becomes a series of adventures in which love and duty fight for eminence. The ending is a happy one.

There are eighteen rare earths, each of which is one of the ninety-two elements. The first discovered was Uranium, and the last Iridium.

Blondes seem to have the edge on the others in the movie colony this season.

At least that is the conclusion one would draw from looking over a group of moviedom's newcomers. We had that pleasure—and it was a pleasure—and discovered that three of five new actresses signed to long-term contracts by the Fox studio are blondes. The other two, sisters, have light brown hair. There's not a single brunet or red-head in the crowd.

All of these girls were recruited from the legitimate stage, which during the past two years has become the principal training ground for film notables. Althea Henley, Roxanne Curtis and Lucile Browne are the blondes. The Keating twins, Helen and Elizabeth, round out the group.

WILL THEY MAKE GOOD?

It will be interesting to see what happens to these five girls. Thousands of girls—tall, short, beautiful, homely, funny—migrate to Hollywood every year. A few make good. By far the greater percentage of them don't. Fox executives are staking their reputations as pickers of "comers" on this entire group.

Lucile Browne was born and received her early education in Memphis, Tenn. Then she attended the National Park Seminary in Washington, D.C. Incidentally, that school also turned out Sue Carol.

Two years ago Lucile won a photographers' beauty contest in Memphis and went to New York as a model for a dress concern. Later she went to Chicago to model for artists. It was in Chicago that she made her stage debut, playing in stock for six months. Then she was signed for the ingenue lead for the New York production of "Jarnegan."

To say that Lucile is pretty is rather superfluous in any story accompanied by a photograph. But even her picture doesn't reveal her personal charm and modesty, which went a long way toward getting her a start in pictures.

Although Roxanne Curtis is just starting in this business, she already has hopes of some day filling the shoes now worn by Louise Dresser. That's a pretty good-sized order, but Roxanne is confident. Her start in the acting practiced, foreign trade had been developed and expanded and the natural resources had been returned to the western provinces.

These were only some of the accomplishments the Liberal government should be credited with.

Premier King said that, in spite of the fact that Conservative speakers were alleging widespread unemployment, "I have not to this moment received a single communication from a provincial government which reflects the situation is of a character constituting a national emergency, and therefore one in which the Dominion must be expected to make its contributions to unemployment relief on the basis I have indicated." (Dollar for dollar with the provinces.)

Mr. King dealt with the extravagant claims of Mr. E. Bennett, Conservative leader. He asked what was to be said of the sincerity of a man "who is now prepared to commit the treasury to an expenditure of a billion dollars," but was alarmed last year at the proposal to spend forty or fifty million on the Montreal terminals.

CAMPAGN STARTED JUNE 10

Premier King's election campaign was opened with a keynote speech delivered in Brantford, Ont., on June 10. This speech was carried on a nation-wide radio hook-up. It set forth the position of the Liberal Party on the principal issues of the campaign.

From Brantford Mr. King proceeded east to the Atlantic Coast, addressing at least one meeting each day.

Toward the end of June he traveled westward. He spoke in each western province, spending the week-end in his constituency of Prince Albert, Sask.

After several meetings in British Columbia, Mr. King proceeded east again.

A number of meetings were held in the Province of Quebec, but as the campaign drew to a close, Mr. King concentrated on Ontario.

The Prime Minister concluded with the radio broadcast delivered from his residence here Saturday night.

Despite the large part played by radio in the present campaign, Premier King's meetings drew tremendous crowds.

By JOHN BUCHAN

"Now, who are we waiting for?" Tom Nantley fussed around. "Oh, Corrie, of course. Corrie is always late. Confound that girl! She has probably gone to sleep in her bath. Pan, you go and dig her out . . . Hullo, here she comes at last!"

In her hunting-kit she had looked handsome in an outlandish way, but as she swept down—without any apology—on our hungry mob there was no question of her beauty. For one thing, few women can walk, and the trouble about the new fashion in clothes is that it emphasizes ugly movement. She wore a gown of a shade of green which would have ruined most people's looks, but she managed to carry it off, and somehow, too. For a young girl far too heavily made up, but she had forced one to accept. I suddenly had a new view of her, and realized that there was quality here, a masterfulness which might charm, an arrogance which perhaps was not blase but virginal.

I realized, too, that I had seen her before. This was the girl whom Vernon and I had watched at my cousin's dance in July. I wondered if he had understood this in their encounter at the tea-table.

I had barely recovered from this surprise, when I had another. Polliot was on my arm and he was prepared to kiss me.

"We talked once of Shelley Arabin, and we left her to me, for that young lady is his daughter. She is the true Arabin girl, and all the unfathomable conceit. She is what in my day we would have called 'shocking bad form.' Rather common, I think."

From which I knew that she must have dealt hard with old Polliot.

At last we sat between Mollie and Mrs. Lamington. The Master had gilded the garrulous Chevion on his right hand, I devoted myself to my other neighbor. That charming lady, who gives so political intrigue what time she can spare from horseflesh, had also mentioned Polliot. I had no need to exert myself. She was interested on the immense importance of certain pending Imperial appointments, especially on the need of selecting men with the right kind of wives, the inference being that George Lamington's obvious deficiencies might be stoned for by the Assembly. I may have assumed to myself that she was referring to me; but I was scared to death.

"Well, isn't she rather—shall we say disconcerting? More by token, who is she?"

Poor little Corrie! She's the only child of a rather horribile man who died last year—Shelley Arabin. Did you never hear of him? He married a sort of cousin of mine and treated us shamefully. Corrie had the most miserable upbringing—somewhere in Greece, you know, and in Rome and Paris, and at the word 'kind-of-girl' she was rather happy, teaching the children to smoke and pour their woes and to confess. The school work hasn't mattered, for the Arabins are Romans, and Corrie couldn't be a snob if she tried, but her home life would have ruined St. Theresa. She was in London last summer with Erbergers, and I was rather happy about her living among cosmopolitan society. But she told Mollie afterwards that she had improved me enormously and had broadened my mind. But as a matter of fact I was thinking of Miss Arabin.

She sat nearly opposite to me, and I could see her smiling. Her manner seemed to alternate between almost hoydenish vivacity and complete abstraction. At one moment she would have her young neighbors laughing and protesting volubly, and then she would be apparently deaf to what they said, so that either talked across her or turned to the other partners. In these latter moments her eyes seemed almost sightless, so wholly were they lacking in focus or expression.

Sometimes they rested on the table. Sometimes, sometimes on the wall before her, sometimes on Mrs. Lamington and myself—but the Master had gilded them. Instead of their former sullenness, they seemed to have a brooding innocence.

I noticed, too, the quality of her voice when she spoke. It was singularly arresting—clear, high, and vital. She had the usual staccato along, but through the rapid fire she sounded grammatically, cadence and intonation were always rounded off to a satisfying close. Only her laugh was ugly, as if it were a force thing. Every other sound that came from her had a musical attractiveness.

She had the foreign trick of smoking before the close of dinner, so as to preserve her beautiful fingers from examination, before lighting a cigarette she would draw on her right hand a silk glove of the same color as her gown. The Nantley's seemed to be accustomed to this habit, but it at last withdrew from Washington from her Imperial propaganda.

"What an extraordinary young woman!" she whispered to me. "Who is she? Is she a little mad, or only a pure English, but lives abroad?" I paraphrased old Polliot in my reply:

The green glove somehow recalled that April evening at Flakon. This outside creature was interesting, for her upbringing, while strange things were in the dining room, she was a commoner.

"I try to be tolerant about youth," she added, "but I sometimes long to box her ears. Besides, there is the difference between us. I am quite sure she wants, too, for she loves England and English ways. But there is a touch of 'Englishness' about her, a kind of freakiness, which I never understand. I suppose it is the Arabin blood."

Mollie sighed.

"I try to be tolerant about youth," she added, "but I sometimes long to box her ears. Besides, there is the difference between us. I am quite sure she wants, too, for she loves England and English ways. But there is a touch of 'Englishness' about her, a kind of freakiness, which I never understand. I suppose it is the Arabin blood."

"Come on! Hurry up!" called the Bob Cat one day as he slunk into the den of the Fox, whose tail was as large as a dusting brush.

"What's the rush?" asked the Fox, trying not to feel proud of his fine tail as he looked at the silly little thing, no larger than your thumb, which the Bob Cat called his tail. "What's your hurry?"

"Uncle Wiggily is coming along the path through the woods," mused the Bob Cat. "I just saw him leave the hollow stump bungalow. If we skip down to the end of the path, where the woods are very dark, we can catch him as he comes along. Come on! On it!"

"What's the rush?" asked the Fox, don't you want to step on, especially not your tail, for it isn't long enough to step on."

"Never mind making fun of my tail!" snarled the Bob Cat. "If you want a rabbit potpie come along with me to the end of the path in the dark part of the woods and we'll wait for him to get there. It will be easy for us to hunt on him then, for it's the last he'll never see. Are you coming?"

"Sure I'm coming!" barked the Fox. Then the two Bob Cats went up the path beneath the trees, hurrying to reach the dark end of the long path through the woods to wait there for the rabbit gentleman to come.

As I went to bed I heard the jingling of dance music from the library, and I saw that the band of dances were not good for you. You can't mix old and new. You'll never fit Miss Arabin into your world. She belongs to a different one."

Are Children Victims of Parents?

Dorothy Dix

Finds Family
Quarrels
Warped
Lives

"Unless a Man and Woman Have the Strength of Character to Sink Their Own Personal Grudges For Their Children's Sake, It Is Better for Them to Part," Declares Dorothy Dix

WHEN we talk about divorce we say truly enough that the real victims are the children. They are the hapless and innocent sacrifices who end up on the altar of their selfishness, or their weakness, or their lack of self-control, or their passion.

Every child has a right to be born of parents who love each other to the core, in an atmosphere of harmony, quiet, and the guidance of both a father and a mother, and when it misses these it is more than a sentimental misfortune. It is a disaster that affects its entire life. Every poor little boy or girl who is pulled out of the womb into a broken home has received wounds in its soul from which it never recovers.

So well is this recognized that many husbands and wives who have actually come to hate each other continue to live together for the sake of the children." As the phrase goes, having made this concession to what they feel to be their duty they consider that leaves them free to vent their spite and animosity upon each other as they please, and to make their homes places of purgatory in which the little unfortunate that they have brought into the world are forced to live.

Still other disgruntled married couples hold to the theory that husbands and wives have a right to their daily spat, and that if they get a kick out of saying mean things to each other, it is nobody's business, not even their children's.

So the criminations and recriminations are recklessly hurled backward and forward, and father calls mother a fool and mother accuses father of being a woman, and then a drunkard, or a tightwad, or a lazy loafer, and the air grows filled with the sound of disappointment, and the children sit there drinking it all in with their little ears, their nerves rasped by the discord, their minds filling with a contempt for the man and woman whom they see fighting like cats and dogs.

Strange that parents so seldom consider the effect that their disagreements have upon their children. They would if they saw the thousands of pathetic letters that come to my desk from girls and boys who tell of their unhappy homes, and ask me if there is any way in which they can reconcile their quarreling parents to each other, and induce them to live together in peace and harmony.

"We have a beautiful home, and fine cars and plenty of money and everything to make us happy, but we are miserable because my father and mother are always fighting," one will write. "Neither one can say anything without starting something, and then they scream at each other and accuse each other of terrible things, and it is so awful that I am thinking about running away."

"My father is a good, kind man and he works hard and comes home tired to death, but the minute he opens the door mother jumps on him about something he has done, or has forgotten to do, and she just nags him and nags him, and frets and complains about his not making more money, and about her not having everything she wants, until she finally just goads him into saying something back to her. Then she begins to cry and says to us children: 'Just look how your father treats me,' and acts like a martyr. But we are so sorry for father we feel like crying over him. How can we get mother to treat father better? Another will ask.

Others tell of philandering fathers and jealous mothers who wash their dirty linen before their children's eyes, and who, in their fury, hurl insults at each other until they strip every shred of character away from each other and leave their children with no respect for either parent.

And still other children tell of fathers and mothers who try to make them take sides in the civil war that wages perpetually in their home, and who tear the poor, pitiful youngsters in twain between them. "We love both our father and our mother," they say. "They are both good to us. Why won't they get along together and let us have a happy home?"

Can you think of anything sadder than these children who are trying to reform their parents, who are reaching out their poor little helpless baby hands, trying to bring their fathers and mothers together, trying to bring peace to a stormy home, their poor little hearts heavy with the grief of their elders, the joy of life crushed out of them in their infancy by their having to live in a perpetual storm, controlled by such parents' continual bickerings in disposition, disillusioned, its nerves shattered.

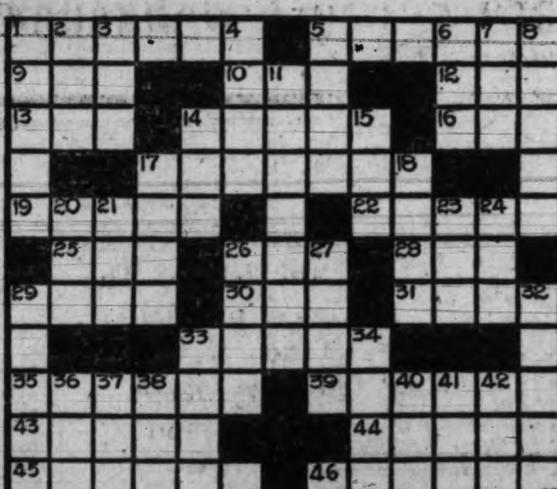

Husbands and wives think that their happiness or unhappiness affects themselves alone. It does not. It rests on their children. They pay the debt of their fathers' and mothers' lack of self-control.

And so unless a man and woman have the strength of character to sink their own personal grudges for their children's sake and get long together in outward amity and peace, it is better for them to part than it is for them to try to live together in discord. Far better for a child to be half-orphaned and have just one parent than to have two who are snarling and snapping at each other all the time.

TOWNS IN INDIA SWEEP BY FLOOD

Akarschi: India, July 28.—Sixteen villages were submerged in the Larkana and Bhakkar districts referred to as the worst was over in this district. The river at Sukkur was falling slightly to-day. Kotri and Hyderabad, however, both towns well below sea level, were still in danger. The Indus was rising rapidly in its lower reaches.

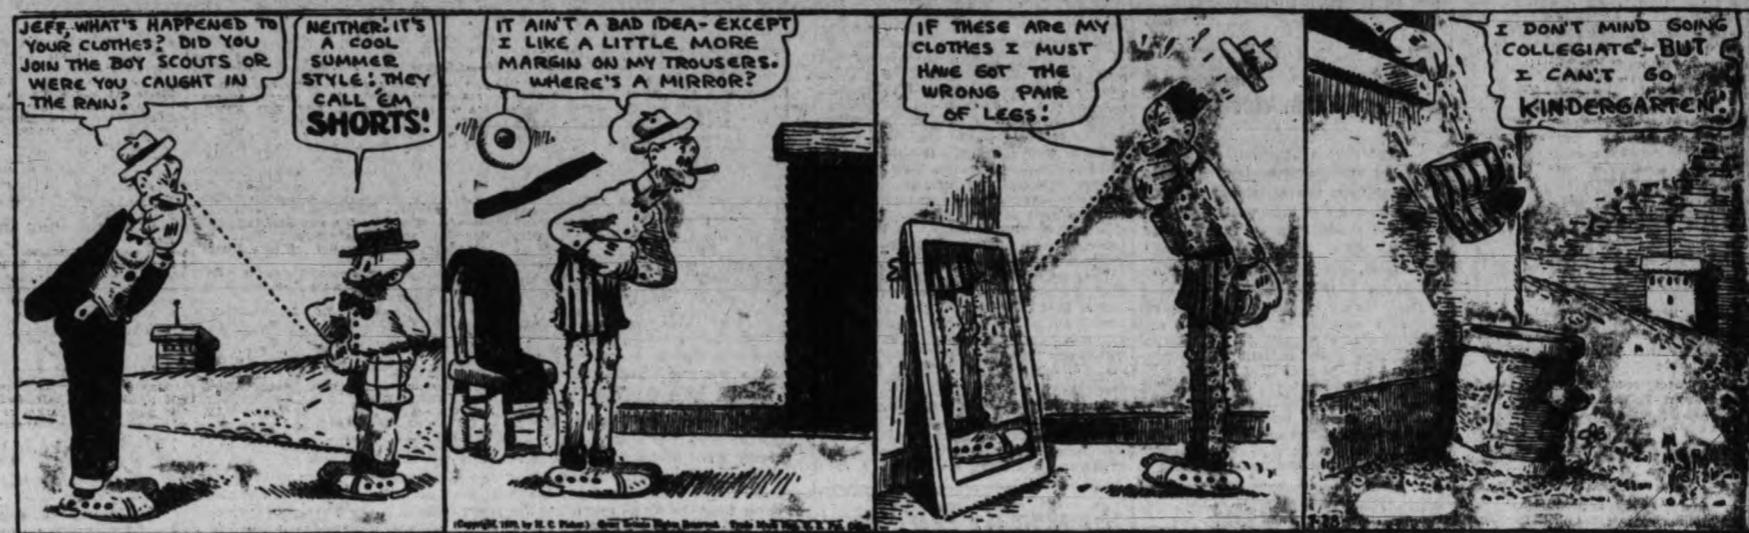

saved when this flood was only half a mile from the town by a cut dug in a neighboring canal which relieved the pressure.

Nineteen breaches in the river and canal embankments were reported to have been opened, and behind the worst was over in this district. The river at Sukkur was falling slightly to-day. Kotri and Hyderabad, however, both towns well below sea level, were still in danger. The Indus was rising rapidly in its lower reaches.

HALF WAY COUNT SHOWS NUMBER OF LEADERS OF BOTH PARTIES DEFEATED

Fight for Control of Next Parliament of Canada Will Be Close, With Majority of Cabinet Re-elected, But Hon. G. A. Dunning Runs Behind in Regina; Lower Mainland Swings Strongly to Liberals; A. W. McNeill, Ind., Re-elected in Alberni.

The final result of the Federal election remained entirely in doubt at 6:30 o'clock to-night, with returns from all over Canada indicating clearly that the fight for control of the next Parliament will be extremely close.

A Canadian Press summary at this hour showed thirty Liberals, seventy-five Conservatives, one United Farmer, two Independents and two Labor candidates definitely elected. These returns, for the most part, came from established Conservative strongholds, and few of the Government's former seats in Quebec and on the prairies had reported.

By provinces the definite results so far were:

Prince Edward Island, Conservatives 3, Liberal 1, a gain of two for the Conservatives.

Nova Scotia, Conservatives 8, Liberals 3, one doubtful, a gain of one for the Liberals.

New Brunswick, Conservatives 10, Liberals 1, a gain of three for Conservatives.

Quebec, Liberals 10, Conservatives 6, one Independent, a gain of two for Conservatives, with forty-eight seats doubtful.

Ontario, Liberals 5, Conservatives 25, no gain or loss either way.

Manitoba, no Liberals, 2 Conservatives, 2 Labor, gain of two for Conservatives.

Saskatchewan, no complete returns.

Alberta, 1 Conservative, who was a member of the last Parliament.

British Columbia, 3 Conservatives, 1 Independent. Liberals leading in five seats.

PROMINENT FIGURES DEFEATED

Some of the chief figures of the last Parliament went down to defeat. Hon. T. A. Crerar, Minister of Railways, formerly leader of the Progressive Party in the House of Commons, early conceded defeat in Brandon, formerly a Liberal seat held by Senator Robert Forke, former Minister of Immigration and Colonization.

Hon. Cyrus MacMillan, Minister of Fisheries, and a recent addition to the King Government, was defeated in Prince Edward Island.

Hon. P. J. Veniot, Postmaster-General, was elected in Gloucester, New Brunswick.

Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, Minister of National Revenue, was returned in his old seat of North Waterloo, Hon. J. H. Balston, Minister of National Defence won his riding of Shebbear-Yarmouth again.

TORONTO RETURNS LIBERAL

The biggest surprise of the Ontario poll was the return of Thomas Chipman, one of the best known figures of the Conservative Party in Toronto Northwest Centre. The Liberal elected there was the first candidate of his party to be returned in a Toronto seat in many years.

BENNETT RETURNED

Hon. E. B. Bennett, Conservative Leader, was conceded election Calgary West early in the evening.

Hon. W. F. Kay, Minister Without Portfolio, lost his seat in Brandon, Manitoba to a Conservative, Dr. F. H. Pidell.

In Wellington South, Ontario, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, one of Mr. Bennett's chief lieutenants, was elected.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, was returned in his old seat of Saguenay.

PREMIER LEADING

Only preliminary returns came from Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, where one poll out of 46 gave Premier King 544 to 383 for G. Braden, Conservative. Later returns indicated the Premier was gaining.

ROGERS RETURNS

Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works in the Borden Government, returned to the House of Commons in Vancouver South, defeating the Liberal candidate.

WOODSWORTH ELECTED

In Winnipeg North Centre, complete returns give Woodsworth, Labor, 535; T. Gargan, Ind.-Con., 2,010; M. Korkin, Communist, 610.

Invasive Hordes Reported to Have Taken Nanchang; Now Looting Changsha

Canadian Press

Shanghai, July 28.—Foreigners fled aboard British, United States and Japanese gunboats at Changsha, capital of Hunan province, to-day as Communists hordes poured into the city. The reds are reported to have looted and burned a portion of Changsha.

Only a few foreigners including three United States missionaries refused to leave the city. Lying in the Siang River the foreign gunboats offered a refuge to their nationals as the reds swept into the walled city of a half million population.

NANCHANG CHANGES HANDS

Peking, July 28.—The United States gunboat Palos to-day was reported to be evacuating all United States citizens from Changsha, Hunan, which Communists' troops were attacking.

The red army was reported to have captured Nanchang, the capital of Kiangsi province and to be within fifteen miles of Kiuksiang.

ELECTION HIGHLIGHTS

The first member of the King government to be returned to Parliament was Hon. J. M. Ralston, Minister of National Defence. He was elected in the Nova Scotia riding of Shebbear-Yarmouth. The same constituency he represented in the last Parliament, having been elected by acclamation at the election in November, 1926.

Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, Minister of Marine, was returned by his old riding of Michelin. He was the first election recorded from the province of Quebec.

Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of National Revenue, was returned for the riding of North Waterloo. He defeated K. K. Homuth, Conservative, who resigned his seat in the Ontario Legislature to go battle with the minister. Mr. Euler had represented North Waterloo since 1917.

One of the stormy petrels of Parliament, William Duff, Liberal, successfully contested the riding of Antigonish-Guysborough in Nova Scotia. He formerly represented the riding of Queen-Lunenburg, being elected in 1917 and in 1925, but was defeated in 1926. At the close of the 1925 session he was chosen deputy speaker of the House of Commons. Mr. Duff made a come-back in 1926, when a vacancy occurred in the riding he now represents.

W. H. Moore, Liberal, scored a notable victory in Ontario County, Ontario, where he defeated Dr. T. E. Kaiser, Conservative, who had represented the constituency since the general election of 1925. Mr. Moore resigned as chairman of the Tariff Board to contest the riding.

Hon. T. A. Cremer, Minister of Railways, was defeated in Brandon by D. W. Beaupre, Conservative.

Major C. G. Power, Liberal, commonly known as "Chubby," held the riding of Quebec South. He was chairman of the parliamentary committee on soldiers' pensions.

The first candidate conceded election in the west in to-day's balloting was J. S. Woodsworth, Labor, who was first elected to the House of Commons nine years ago. He is returned for Winnipeg North Centre over two. One seat was doubtful. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, was conceded election in West Calgary early in the evening. Mr. Bennett's election was never in doubt as returns trickled in.

The first province to give complete returns was Prince Edward Island, which returned three Conservatives and one Liberal. Hon. J. A. Macdonald, Conservative, was re-elected in Kings-A. Macdonald. He, too, was returned by W. C. McLean, Liberal, and J. H. Myron, both Conservatives, were elected for the two seats of Queen's. Standing in last House was Conroy; 1; Libs. 3.

Hon. W. A. Black, Conservative, Halifax, whose election was conceded early in the evening, was elected in the shadow government of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen. In the Maritimes he has been known as the champion of maritime rights. He was elected first for one of the Halifax seats at a by-election in 1923 and has held his seat in the Commons since. He was Minister of Railways and Canals in the 1925 Conservative cabinet.

Another of the Meighen "shadow government" to be elected in the Maritimes was Hon. G. B. Jones, who held the riding of Royal. He was elected to Parliament first in 1921 and has held the seat ever since. He was appointed Minister of Labor in the 1925 Ministry of Rt. Hon. A. Meighen.

Victoria-Carleton, New Brunswick, has returned to the Conservative column. BROMLEY'S AMBITION TO
IN TRENCHES

LONG FLYING EXPERIENCE
Since that memorable time, Harold Bromley, native son of Victoria, has had all the experience a flier could desire in the air.

He has roamed over practically every state of the American Union, and up to the time he determined to attempt a non-stop flight across the Pacific had been a flying postman carrying mail between the western borders.

One man, above all others, who is prepared to wager a fortune that Bromley can successfully negotiate the Pacific by air, is John Buffelin, millionaire lumberman of Tacoma.

He has financed three planes for the venture and the costly machines unfortunately came to grief before they really got started.

Bromley was at the controls when the first plane was wrecked in taking off from a temporary runway.

He was watching from the ground when the others cracked up while being tested out.

Undeterred by these mishaps, the Canadian aviator, with his backer, Buffelin strongly behind him, proceeded with the design of another plane.

SURE OF SUCCESS

"We are convinced that our newest ship can do it, and we are going to do it, that is what we are doing," declared Bromley aboard the President Lincoln on Saturday, as he leaped over the rail of the promenade deck and cast an appraising eye over the big fuselages resting on the after hatch with "City of Tacoma" embossed in large letters on its side.

"And if we succeed, as we expect to do, the credit will not be mine, but ours," he earnestly declared as he drew and appeared to be disappointed that she was not there.

His mother had remained at home in the hope that her son would have time to visit her there. It was out of the question for Bromley to leave the ship, however, as he has given an undertaking to his backer that he will stay with the plane.

MOTHER HAS CONFIDENCE

Mrs. Bromley is not over anxious about her boy. "With every confidence in him, and I am sure he will make it," she told The Times to-day.

She joyously added that the aviator's wife and their seven-year-old son were coming over to Victoria to stay with her during the anxious period.

"My husband and son were over to Tacoma last Friday and arrived there two weeks ago and we inspected the plane. It is a lovely ship," she said.

WEIGHS FIVE TONS

The machine which Bromley plans to pilot across the Pacific is an Enac monoplane equipped with a 425 horse-power Wasp motor.

The plane has a cruising speed of ninety-five miles an hour, although it was designed for a speed of 118 miles an hour.

GATTY AN AUSTRALIAN

Harold Gatty, Bromley's navigator, co-pilot and radio operator, is an Australian, twenty-seven years of age and a graduate of the Sydney Naval College, with considerable experience in the merchant service.

He is an unassuming fellow with a winning smile. Mrs. Gatty is in Los Angeles with their three boys, the oldest of whom is four years.

TAKE FEW CLOTHES

So hurried was the final decision to make in flight from the Japanese side that both Bromley and Gatty boarded the President Lincoln at Seattle without any excess baggage. They just had the clothes they stood in and had hastily collected and thrown into a grip a few accessories and other articles. Bromley, fresh from an engine search, was interested as he padded about the cabin in his socks while awaiting the return of his shoes from the polishers. Bromley said the plane was equipped with an emergency radio set for use in case of trouble.

He is an experienced mechanician and capable of effecting repairs if necessary.

At the age of thirty years he is on the threshold of realizing his ambition to be the first to fly across the Pacific Ocean.

ELEMENT OF FOG

The realization that the chances of success would be infinitely greater if the flight were made from the other side, relieved Bromley.

STARTING FROM THIS COAST WE SHOULD BE HAMPERED BY HEAD WINDS

Then comes the element of fog to be considered, and I understand that a great deal of it exists on this ocean, particularly off the Aleutians."

Asked if he had contemplated refueling while in the air, Bromley stated that it had been taken into consideration, and the idea was discarded because of the prevalence of fog at this season of the year.

"I was thinking what would happen if we struck fog at the point designated for refueling," he observed. "We would not be able to see the refueling plane and they would lose us. It would mean a forced landing and probably not to our liking."

He grimaced at the possibility of having to make a forced descent on wheels somewhere near Nome or off Unimak Pass.

WHILE ON THE QUESTION OF REFUELING WITH AIRCRAFT, BROMLEY WAS ASKED WHETHER HE THOUGHT THE CHANCES OF ROBERT WARK AND EDIE BROWN IN BEATING HIM TO TOKIO IN A NON-STOP REFUELING FLIGHT WOULD MOST ASSUREDLY RESULT IN DISASTER.

He went on to say that Wark's original intention was to fly to Japan by way of Adak and the Alaskans.

"Do you expect to be aided by the wind to any marked degree in attempting the eastward flight?" Bromley was asked.

He went on to say that Wark's originally intended route was to fly to Japan by way of Adak and the Alaskans.

"Do you expect to be aided by the wind to any marked degree in attempting the eastward flight?" Bromley was asked.

TAKE WIND TO AID

"After leaving Japan the prevailing winds are east by west, and that would give us a tail wind which would help the ship along considerably," he replied.

"We have carefully weighed every possibility of setback and figure on completing the flight from Tokio to Tacoma in fifty hours."

DATE OF TAKE-OFF

If all goes well, the two "Harolds" will take off from Tokio before the middle of August.

The President Lincoln is due to reach Yokohama on August 6 and the plane, after it has been assembled, will be flown to one of Tokio's three air-fields.

From that time onward it will be a question of weather conditions. The first engagements at Tokio are in the hands of the Japanese government and all the facilities of the Japanese Weather Bureau will be placed at the disposal of the fliers.

"The weather is right we shall take off as soon as possible," he said. "We then said to Bromley on board that he had to be to the probable date of departure from Tokio. "Our objective is a non-stop flight and what we are most interested in is making it a complete success."

GAS CAPACITY

He proposes to take the Great Circle route followed by the passenger ships operating between this coast and the Orient.

The tanks of the monoplanes will be filled with 1,000 gallons of gas when taken off from Tokio and if the fuel is not all used up by the time this coast is sighted the citizens of Victoria will be given an opportunity of getting a good view of the fliers.

CIRCLE OVER THIS CITY

"If we keep aloft and the fuel holds out, we shall circle over Victoria enroute to Tacoma," said Bromley, who is appreciative of the great interest taken in the flight by the people of his home town.

And if other incentive is needed it must be remembered that the aviator's father and mother live here.

MET BY FATHER

As the President Lincoln docked at Pier 2 from Seattle on Saturday afternoon, Harold Bromley's attention was closely riveted upon his father, who was on the wharf, calmly smoking a pipe, awaiting the arrival of his son.

George Bromley, of 618 Frances Avenue, is a quiet and unostentatious person, but he displayed his pride in his boy.

He was accompanied on the dock by his brother, John Bromley, his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Schuer and her daughter, Miss Dorothy Koenig.

Bromley asked after his mother after the family party had boarded the ship.

LAUNDRY HOLDS ANNUAL PICNIC AT DEEP COVE

Varied Sports Programme, Ball Game and Supper Feature Busy Day

The annual picnic of the employees of the New Method Laundry Limited was held at Deep Cove on Saturday. About 330 people attended.

The families and friends of the staff congregated at the laundry buildings on North Park Street at 11 o'clock, and left in six large motor coaches. On arrival at the Chalet grounds Jim Keen, all decked out in a chef's uniform and wearing his apron, was the first to greet the party and was all ready with tea and coffee for the luncheon which preceded the well-prepared sports programme.

The sports committee kept things humming for four hours with athletic events which held the interest throughout and also provided several amusing incidents.

The men's novelty race will in future be referred to as the "tale of a shirt."

The speed merchants were given an excellent opportunity to show their wares in the relay race, and the Kerr Jones and Stephenson Cup was won by J. Jones.

TUG-OF-WAR CUP

Another feature event was the tug-of-war between the girls of the finishing department and the semi-finish department. The cup emblematic of the championship which was presented for the first time last year and won by the finishing girls, was again won by Lightfoot's girls after a great tussle.

In the men's tug-of-war the salesmen, who were also defending the championship won last year, put up a dour struggle to retain the honor and will hold the cup for another year.

After the tug-of-war the salesmen, who were also defending the championship won last year, put up a dour struggle to retain the honor and will hold the cup for another year.

Immediately following the sports the prizes were presented by Mrs. W. F. Finfold, wife of the president. Supper was then served, after which a ball game was staged between company's ball team and other members of the staff. Some snappy ball was served up and the game resulted in a win for Dundee's team.

Arrangements for the picnic were in the hands of the following committees:

- Planning committee, W. F. Finfold.
- Awards committee, W. P. Finfold, F. A. Gibbs and Meers, Hartley and Jones; finance and ticket committee, Mr. Masters and Miss Elliott; refreshment committee, Miss Lightfoot and J. Keen; transportation committee, Meers, Jones and Hartley; handicapped, W. Jones and T. Ruskin; course awards, Geo. Lee, A. Mair, E. Collier, D. Belgrave, A. Dundee, C. Pimlott, W. Hoy, V. Harford, judges, E. Meadows, J. Smith, D. Pye; records, Mr. Masters; advance guard, Jim Keen and his squad; prize committee, J. Gardiner and M. Cooper.

The prize-winners were as follows:

- Tiny tots' race, 4 years and under—First, Venice Rose; second, Billy Hay; third, Gordon McWilliam.
- Girls' race, over 4 and under 7—First, Elaine Goaks; second, Alice Murray.
- Boys' race, over 4 and under 7—First, Eddie Brown; second, Douglas Kenny; third, Bobby Clark.
- Girls' race, over 7 and under 12—First, Nellie Bowers; second, Edith Jones; third, Marjorie White.

A CROWD USED TO GATHER

The proud owners of the first automobiles in Canada used to drive around to the Imperial Oil yard for gasoline. Filling the car with gasoline was a ceremony, and a crowd used to gather to watch it. The deed was done with a five gallon bucket.

The five gallon bucket was the first form of service station, and the next was a tank which Imperial Oil put on the wall of one of its plants to meet the growing demand.

Today, of course, there are Imperial service stations for motorists in every corner of Canada. And there are caches in the north for Arctic adventurers — distributing points across the prairies for the Western farmer — supply stations for the mines — airport stations at landing fields.

It has been the work of Imperial Oil for fifty years to meet the new needs of transportation and industry with new service and new perfection.

Because this work has been done well, Imperial has grown from one small plant at Sarnia, Ontario, to six great refineries — miles of tank cars — its ships on the Atlantic and the Pacific — nine thousand of its men at work from the Arctic to Peru.

Fifty years of constant enterprise are in the products Imperial Oil sells today.

Marvelube is Imperial's finest motor oil.

Imperial 3-Star and Imperial Ethyl are its best gasolines.

PRAIRIE STORM CAUSES LOSSES

Area in Saskatchewan Swept By Wind and Hail

Regina, July 28.—A heavy wind storm, accompanied by hail and sweeping sand, swept through Regina and surrounding districts shortly after 6 o'clock Saturday evening. One man, 60 to 65 years of age, was killed and another severely injured. Political motives are believed to be the reason for the crime.

FASCIST MILITIA OFFICER KILLED

Milne, July 28.—Oratio Perni, an official of the Fascist militia, was stabbed and killed Saturday night in an alteration with Fred Perry, Portage la Prairie. The storm originated at a point southeast of Kisby and swept over an area four

TRUCK HIT BY TRAIN AND TWO MEN KILLED

Winnipeg, July 28.—Two men were killed yesterday when the Canadian National Railway "Confederation Limited" struck a motor truck near Portage la Prairie, sixty miles west of Winnipeg. Another man, riding in the truck with the two victims, is in a serious condition to-day. A fourth saved his life by jumping from the truck moments before the collision.

Charles Vivier, Portage la Prairie, and Ed Lafamme, Portage la Prairie, were killed. Lowes Perry, Portage la Prairie, is the injured man.

According to Albert Hamel, who leaped as the truck sped over a crossing the tracks — path — he should have seen the driver, but evidently did not. Vivier was thrown beneath the train and killed instantly. The impact tossed Perry about forty feet from the tracks and Lafamme was carried for some distance on the front of the engine.

The truck was demolished. Both Perry and Lafamme were rushed to a hospital, but the former succumbed within a few hours.

Chemainus

The Chemainus Musical Society last night held a party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Noel Lang to bid farewell to Edgar Scholes, who is about to leave for Victoria. Mr. Scholes organised the society four years ago. The pair of riders and friends will this year be entertained by leaders of the Alfred Light Opera Company, who will stage a sing-song entitled "Around a Canadian Camp Fire" in which a number of trail ride songs are incorporated.

A number of well-known people are present at the affair, including W. H. Malkin, mayor of Vancouver; Carl Kengius, distinguished artist and one of the leading members of the National Academy of New York. Two other well-known artists going on the ride are A. C. Leighton of London, England; and S. C. Valentine of Montreal.

About sixty members have made reservations, including fourteen young ladies from a summer school at Lake Windermere. They are from Chicago and Minneapolis.

NEW MOUNTAIN TRAIL BLAZED

Horses Ridden Over Ball Pass From Banff Springs Hotel to Mountain Summit

Banff, Alta., July 28.—For the first time in history horses were ridden over Ball Pass, yet the pass has hitherto been considered impassable except for Alpine climbers. Its easy access yesterday was due to the parks department having cut trails on each side of, and to within a few hundred yards of, the summit.

Only three hours were required to travel from Banff to the summit of Ball Pass, yet the pass has hitherto been considered impassable except for Alpine climbers. Its easy access yesterday was due to the parks department having cut trails on each side of, and to within a few hundred yards of, the summit.

The trail riders of the Canadian Rockies will now not only follow an absolutely new trail through a virgin territory but will also travel along one that is of the most spectacular character in the Canadian Rockies for the new trail passes within sight of huge glaciers on the eastern side of Mount Edith. From Ball Pass the trail continues to Pine Lake and the Wolverine Plateau.

This year's trail ride will thus be at an elevation of over 6,000 feet for more than half the route and skirt and immense wall of hanging glaciers.

WILL HOLD POW-WOW

The final pow-wow will be held at Marble Canyon on the Banff Windermere Highway and about thirty-five miles from Banff. The pow-wow, which includes a pow-wow, will be held on Saturday, Aug. 12, and the entire program will be presented with a pair of moccasins.

Charles Vivier, Portage la Prairie, and Ed Lafamme, Portage la Prairie, were killed.

THE INTERVENTION OF PROVINCIAL governments in federal elections is a two-edged weapon. While their political organization and patronage power may be of value to the federal party they support, in one sense, on the other hand there are many taxpayers who object to provincial funds being expended for federal election purposes. Those taxes are paid for provincial purposes. There are also many electors whose attitude to provincial political issues is different from their attitude to federal issues.

They may be Conservative in British Columbia politics and Liberals in national politics. Hence provincial government participation in a federal campaign often weakens that government in public support.

It often happens, too, that the intervention of a provincial government actually injures the cause of the federal party it supports. It is doubtful if the activities of either the Ferguson government in Ontario or the Tolmie government in British Columbia are doing the federal Conservatives as much good as harm in the present election. While it is true the Ferguson government was sustained in its last appeal in undiminished strength in the Legislature, it suffered a decline in the popular vote and the federal candidates it is supporting now in that province will have to carry the load of whatever loss of popularity the provincial party has sustained.

In British Columbia a similar condition exists. The Tolmie government is much weaker in the public esteem than it was two years ago when it succeeded the MacLean government. It made many promises that it has not carried out, and these and the unfulfilment of them are fresh in the public mind. Instead of reducing taxation and the public debt it has increased them. Instead of improving economic conditions as it promised to do, so as to "bring the boys home," it is now trying to pass the responsibility for its own failure to the Dominion government, although two years ago it declared that such responsibility belonged to the provincial government. It promised to abolish patronage and failed to do so. Therefore its influence with the electorate has waned considerably and the candidates in the federal election who have been depending upon its support are likely to find that this is doing them more harm than anything else. There are many Conservative electors in this province who feel that they would be doing the Tolmie government a service from which it might benefit if they voted against the candidates its ministers are helping in the federal election; that one of the results of such a reverse would be a better financial administration, more economy, less borrowing, an attempt to reduce taxation instead of increasing it, and more general efficiency.

Provincial governments as such should remember that their primary duty is to look after provincial affairs, not national affairs, which is the business of the national government; that, to the extent that there is government responsibility for the social and economic conditions of the provinces, that responsibility belongs mainly to them. They enjoy wide powers of administration under the constitution of the country. They have complete jurisdiction over the natural resources within their provincial boundaries. And they are elected to give good government. The spectacle of provincial ministers running around the country trying to convince the public that somebody else is responsible for provincial policies is an admission of incompetence which can not fail to be noted by the electors.

WHILE THIS PROVINCE HAS GIVEN itself up more or less exclusively to politics during the last two months, a fact which has caused us to overlook a few things that have been taking place at the same time, one busy being has been attending strictly to her "knitting." "Knitting" may not be the correct term to apply to her activities; but it will do as well as anything else because we now record the business as authorized. Her No. 6, the famous White Leghorn owned by the University of British Columbia, and known to the world as Maizie, has just laid her thousandth egg and invites all those who will to join in a fitting celebration of this important fact.

Readers of The Times, of course, recall that Maizie started her feathered competitor by producing 351 eggs in 364 days, a triumph which held the world's record for some time. The news that she is still going strong, therefore will be acclaimed. And Maizie is in the prime of life, as industrious laying hens go, for she is not yet five years old. Her fifth birthday is not until next March. Meanwhile she appears to be settling herself down for a long-distance record.

AND NOW OF OTHER THINGS

IN COMMON WITH ITS CONTEMPORARIES
 all over the country The Times sighs a sigh of relief that the general election of 1930 is all over but the shouting. It has been a fairly "warm" campaign, closing just as summer reached us in Victoria, which is a reminder that it is time to speak of a few things in connection with the out-of-doors and holidays.

The forest branch of the Department of Lands is more than ordinarily worried just now because of the dry condition of the countryside and the wooded areas. According to the weekly fire bulletin, no fewer than 150 new fires broke out last week, and the officials of the forestry service are expecting many more in the next few days unless showers replace sunshine and warm winds. An official view suggests that several of the outbreaks on Vancouver Island have been caused by incendiaries who have chosen this vicious course as one means of finding employment for themselves. It is difficult to believe this is true; but if it should turn out to be so, and the guilty ones are caught, severe punishment should be meted out to them. Not only is the destruction of valuable property involved; lives are just as much in jeopardy. Most of the forest fires every year, of course, are caused by sheer carelessness.

The warmer weather suggests bathing and boating. Each year these pastimes exact their toll of life, often because elementary precautions have been neglected. In this regard the Canadian National Safety League has issued a special bulletin of twelve suggestions to bathers and canoeists. These may be quite unnecessary to those who are experienced; but it is well that they be noted by all. Bathers are warned to use protected waters only, and they also are admonished to wait two hours after eating before venturing in. They are advised not to bathe or swim alone, and when diving to make sure the water is deep enough. Those with heart disease are cautioned not to go swimming.

Regarding canoeing, the bulletin suggests, those who can not swim or keep a cool head are advised to refrain from the sport altogether. Another warning is never to change seats or stand up in either canoe or rowboat, and if there is a lunatic aboard who tries to rock the boat, the advice is to put him, or her, ashore immediately. Riding the rollers from steamboats is another foolhardy practice that is condemned.

In addition to this timely advice, whether it be for the prevention of forest fires, or relating to precaution on or in the water, there should be a general disposition to take no chances. The foolishness of a moment may cause untold destruction of property; the so-called smart individual's "showing off" may cost human life.

A FINE SPEECH

AFTER TAKING PART IN SO MANY
 meetings on the Mainland, delivering dozens of speeches, it might have been supposed that even one who is so completely at home on the political platform as Mr. Dugald Donaghay, K.C., would have shown some signs of the strain at the Royal Victoria Theatre on Saturday. On the contrary, not only was he in excellent voice, with phrases well turned and points driven home with the forcefulness which has earned for him a high reputation as a political speaker, but his presentation to a large and keenly-interested audience of the issues upon which the Canadian people are giving their decision to-day, was one of the most convincing deliverances heard in Victoria during the campaign.

Unlike some speakers who have sought to discuss the Dunning budget and the British preference as if the policies involved were new jokes, Mr. Donaghay explained them in the fullest detail and in such a way that even the least interested in such matters could grasp their importance and significance. From the moment he began his address until he resumed his seat Mr. Donaghay held the attention of his audience, and we may be sure that those who were in attendance at the meeting, to say nothing of the thousands who listened over the radio, regarded the evening as one well spent.

THE GRANDSON OF JESSE JAMES IS
 arrested in Chicago for trying to get a blank chequebook from a bank where he did not have an account, and a descendant of Paul Revere is arrested for driving his automobile too rapidly along the road where his illustrious ancestor made his famous break-neck ride; and the conjunction of these two incidents is bound to set one to musing momentarily on the changes that time has brought.

Jesse James went out boldly, gun in hand, to take what he wanted. He at least risked his life to perform his robberies. His modern prototype, however, is more likely to do the job without risk, by forgery. And the lonely country road, over which Paul Revere galloped now is a metropolitan highway so thickly traveled that riders must keep their speed down or endanger the lives of others.

What does it all prove? Oh, nothing, probably—except that neither Paul Revere nor Jesse James would recognize things if they came back to take a look around.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY*THE COUNTRY DOCTOR SHORTAGEThe New York Herald-Tribune*

Again a rural medical survey, this time in northeastern New York, reports a serious shortage of country doctors. In eighteen counties members of the staff of the Albany Medical College have found that more than one-third of the practicing physicians are sixty years or older. Young men are not taking the places of the veterans as they drop out. It is practically a disappearance of the country general practitioners that is threatened if no way can be found to attract young medical graduates to the rural field.

CANADA'S GREATEST INVENTIONThe New Outlook (Toronto)*

When members of the American Institute of Engineers met at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, a few weeks ago, they listened to an address presented in a manner never before attempted and scarcely even dreamed of a few years ago. J. C. Burkholder, who developed the radio-telephone so that it could function from moving trains, spoke to them while speedily between Toronto and Montreal on the International Limited. In an editorial on the telephone and its origin, The Christian Science Monitor draws attention to the fact that "by telephone a man on a moving train in Canada may now converse with a friend in England; a member of the British government can leave a debate in Parliament a few minutes to consult an official in Borneo . . . while paths are being mapped out for a Commonwealth system that will include a regular service between London and India." The Bell Telephone system in Canada has just celebrated its fiftieth anniversary. The event was allowed to slip past too easily. It deserved something in the nature of Imperial recognition. The telephone is Canada's greatest invention.

Alexander Graham Bell of Brantford, Ontario, conducting his experiments there, and at Boston, Mass., gave the world one of its very greatest conveniences.

MATRICULATION examination results have just been announced and there is joy in many British Columbia households and black despair in others. As the young presumably respectable at that age, it is safe to say a few things about matriculation examinations, and such dismal matters that it would never do to repeat to matriculants. In the first place, while this is rank heresy, there is no need for parents to imagine that the heavens are about to fall if their children have failed in their matriculation examinations, and conversely there is no reason for the parents of successful ones to suppose that their offspring are now on the highroad to success. Matriculation examinations have little to do with education, and college courses little more. Most men have found out long ago that the things they learn in school and college are never required for the ordinary business of life. Only the training of the mind, and not the things put into it, really matters. And judged by this standard, half the students who come out of college are never educated at all, while many who never get past entrance class are well equipped to face life.

PAN-PACIFIC WOMEN TO MEET AT HONOLULU

Standards of Living and Wages, Social Service on Full Agenda

Dean Mary L. Bollert Heads Canadians at August 9 Conference

With a delegation from Canada headed by Miss Mary L. Bollert, Dean of Women at the University of British Columbia, in attendance, the second Pan-Pacific Conference of Women will open in Honolulu on August 9. The Pan-Pacific Union Bulletin carries interesting reports of the various countries concerned in the conference, and these are from all parts of the rim of the Pacific Ocean. They include Canada, Australia, Chile, China, Costa Rica, Dutch East Indies, Fiji, Hawaii, India, Indo-China, Japan, Korea, Mexico, New Zealand, Panama, Peru, Philippines, Salvador, Samoa, Siam, Straits Settlements and United States.

RESEARCH WORK

A number of resolutions from the first conference have been sent to delegates, and several projects will be promoted, including a correlation of standards of living and wages in Pacific countries with special reference to diet content; a study of standards of living and wages in Pacific countries which will make comparison possible; a survey of the health of women in the various Pacific countries; through an expert committee with Pan-Pacific links forged through this conference; formation of a committee of experts for the initiation of health research projects of value to Pacific women, and research regarding electoral systems, women's place in political parties, effect of compulsory voting and legislation relating to women and children.

SOCIAL SERVICE

Endorsement was also given a resolution that the various countries of the Pacific should work together on an educational programme which will help to prepare social workers for more effective service, and urged all women to draw the attention of official agencies to the findings of the child welfare committee of the League of Nations appointed to investigate the elements of poverty and the work of the rural commission appointed by the Australian Federal Government to inquire into the film industry of Australia.

It was decided by the executive committee to retain the five sections as units at the last conference; these were education, health, government, health, industry and professions, social service, and also to endeavor to find a guiding line for the entire deliberations of the conference, a co-ordination of each section with every other section.

In order to cover the great field of women's interests five main divisions are planned, based on age periods as follows: Pre-natal and infancy; pre-school, school, adolescent and adult.

ROUND TABLES

Each subject will be considered at each round table at the same time, when summaries of papers previously submitted will be given and discussed. At the conclusion of the round tables, two speakers from each will be appointed to present the summary of the discussion to a forum of the whole conference at which the international chairman will preside. After presentation of round table reports, there will be an open discussion of these reported topics at which the conference resolutions will be put to vote. It is probable that there will be ten working days for the conference with no meeting in the afternoons, unless so desired by committees.

UNION OF GOODWILL

The Pan-Pacific Union, of which the women's conference is a part, is an organization in no way the agency of any one Pacific government, yet having the good will of the predominant peoples of Pacific lands as its honorary heads. It is supported in part by government and private appropriations and subscriptions. Its central office is in Honolulu because of its location at the ocean's crossroads. Its management is under an international board.

Visitors desirous to the women's conference will reside at Castle Hall on the Punahoa camp, as guests of the Pan-Pacific Union. It is probable that the international chairman will be Mrs. A. H. Reeve of Philadelphia, who is also leader of the education section of the International Federation of Home and School, and former president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers of United States.

WED SATURDAY AT CATHEDRAL

Miss Dorothy W. Brooks of Goldstream School and J. T. Bruce of Colwood Married

At Christ Church Cathedral on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, the wedding of Dorothy Winnifred, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Brooks, 1732 Hill Street, Victoria, and Mr. J. P. Bruce, 1732 Bay Street, was solemnized in the presence of a large assembly of friends of the bride and groom by Very Reverend C. S. Quain, Dean of Columbius. Mr. Stanley Bulley, organist of the cathedral, played the organ music.

Given in marriage to her father, the bride was gowned in ivory crepe-back satin, fashioned on Princess lines with long-sleeved bodice and skirt flaring slightly at the hemline. Her embroidered net veil was highlighted with tulle and adorned with a bouquet of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lily of the valley.

Her only attendant was Miss Marjorie Donkin of Kindersley, Saskatchewan, who wore a frock of yellow chiffon and hat to match. Her bouquet was a spray of yellow carnations.

Without Salves or Cutting

Piles are caused by congestion of blood in the lower bowel. Only an internal medicine can remove the cause. That's why salves and cutting fail. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, removes this congestion and strengthens the affected parts.

HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere and has such a wonderful record of success even in chronic and stubborn cases that McFarlane and Vancouver Drug Stores invite every pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID and guarantee money-back if it does not end all pile misery.

J. BARRYMORE DELIGHTED WITH HOLIDAY IN B.C.

Noted Stage and Screen Star and Wife on Fishing Cruise in Yacht
Says Many Californians Will Make Summer Playground of British Columbia

Vancouver, July 28.—John Barrymore, with Mrs. Barrymore ( Dolores Costello), were guests in the city Sunday evening. They came on route to their home in Beverly Hills, Los Angeles, after a cruise of British Columbia waters. Accompanied by Mr. Joseph Cawthorn and Mrs. Cawthorn of Los Angeles, well-known comedy stars, Mr. and Mrs. Barrymore motored north and sailed from Vancouver for their first long trip on their new yacht, the Imperial, which cost $100,000. The boat, which is of the cruiser type, is 120 feet in length, with two Diesel engines. It carries a crew of thirteen men.

"British Columbia is one of the most beautiful spots in the world," Mr. Barrymore declared. "I expect to come up every year."

"I'm crazy about fishing, and the salmon at Stewart Island was unusually good. Really delicious. The salmon all along the coast was excellent, and next year I intend to go as far as Alaska. We left this time with the intention of going and spending six weeks in the north, but my wife so greatly missed the baby, I didn't have the heart to stay any longer."

"I was tremendously impressed with Powell River. There is a peculiar something about the atmosphere there is very appealing, and I am simply enchanted with the people there. I can't imagine a lovelier place or people anywhere. But then, I have found all British Columbians delightful. Maybe it is because I am part English. My father was and all my family are English."

"I think another reason why this part of the world seems so heavenly to me is its restfulness. After living in the sun and heat of California, where the sun is leading man all year round, an occasional change is welcome."

MAY HAVE SUMMER PLACE HERE

When asked if he thought California was beginning to consider British Columbia a summer playground, Mr. Barrymore said, "Well, at least all the intelligent and sensible ones will after they have been here once. They couldn't help but root for it."

Asked if he thought of establishing

Mrs. Elder will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

TWO BATHS DAILY WON'T WEAKEN CHILD

The bugaboo that baths are weakening has been used so often to frighten young mothers. A too hot bath is undesirable, but a daily cleansing bath in the morning and a cool sponge at night are refreshing and necessary for even the small baby during the warm weather.

Use tepid water for the night sponge, washing from head to foot, the legs, the back and stomach, and patting each part dry. No soap need be used. The baby will have a better appetite for his night meal, and will go to bed in a mood to sleep. Be sure that his night clothes are fresh and un wrinkled; his day clothes these days consist of a diaper, so wrinkles except in his own fat baby aren't much of a problem.

AN 'ELDRED' BABY

Mrs. B. C. T. writes: "I must tell you that my fourteen-months-old boy has been reared by your advice and is certainly a good advertisement for your department. He is the best baby I ever had, though he mischievous and full of fun as any healthy child should be."

"I had him vaccinated twice this spring and it did not take either time. Does this mean that he is immune? The neighbors say it does, the doctor says not. We would like to know what you think."

"Perhaps you are bound to learn by schedules, but I have found an ideal one for hot weather. My boy hasn't had prickly heat once. He wears a diaper and sandals all day long. At eleven-thirty I put out a dishpan full of water a summer place up the coast he said. "We saw a little log cabin and when I saw my wife's reaction to it, I said to myself, 'Heaven help me, this is not the end of this.'

"It is just possible that I may have some sort of a place at Louise Inlet, off Jervis Inlet. It is a charming situation and what could be more blissful than a log cabin and a baby?"

"I'm also looking forward to some hunting and hope to make the opportunity next fall. In any event, I'll be up next year for the salmon fishing."

Five of those arrested turned out to be men already officially expelled from France, who had illicitly returned.

Flood of Travel Through Canadian Mountains Predicted By Washingtonians

The distinction of being the only lady passenger on board the American Mail liner President Lincoln, which sailed from this port on Saturday evening for the Orient, goes to Mrs. Fenner, wife of Capt. Edward R. Fenner, of the United States navy, bound from Washington, D.C., to Manila.

Mrs. Fenner was not quite sure whether she would be allowed to make more pleasureous, under the circumstances, with nothing but manfolk in the first cabin accommodation, or whether she would suffer from the lack of personal contact with members of her own sex.

In any event Mrs. Fenner should have a good time as she will have plenty of company partners during the voyage.

The ship carries a full orchestra of university players keyed up to jazz pitch.

Capt. and Mrs. Fenner are returning to the Asiatic station in the Philippines after spending several years in Washington.

They are former residents of Manila and have crossed the Pacific on a number of occasions, but this is the first time that Mrs. Fenner has not had the company of women companions on the passenger list.

They state they were sorry they had not time to see more of the mountain resorts.

When the rugged beauty of the Canadian rail roads become better known in the United States there will be a flood of American travel through Canada, in the opinion of Capt. and Mrs. Fenner.

On Saturday afternoon the Sea Cadets in camp at Brentwood held their sports day, under ideal weather conditions and with an attendance of about 200 guests, including representatives of the Royal Canadian Legion and Navy League, I.O.D.E. The camp, which has been in charge of Lieut. Tribe and Capt. J. Phillipson during the fourteen days at Brentwood College, will break up to-morrow morning. P. F. Curtis, president of the Victoria branch of the Navy League of Canada, inspected the cadets and the camp immediately before the sports.

WINNERS OF CONTESTS

The winners were as follows:

Three-legged race—1. Campbell and Harnon; 2. Campbell and Redgrave.

Three-legged race—1. Campbell and Henry; 2. Cutforth and H. Clowes.

ture house with a Spanish roof. It will have a cement floor and will represent the best kept tents. Each tent bore the name of a battleship and the points were to be red, white and blue.

A bright fire will blaze merrily in a fire basket at one end. At the other the iron fireman will be demonstrated.

The exhibit will advertise coal mined by the Canadian Collieries Limited at Nanaimo, Ladysmith and Comox, and will be aimed to encourage the use of coal instead of fuel oil.

Kennedy-Latin Construction Co. is in charge of the construction, and the plastering will be done by Pottinger.

The exhibit will be in charge of John

Turk Born In 1774 Visits United States

Zaro Agha, 156, Who Claims to Be World's Oldest Human Being, Interviewed on Arrival at Providence

Providence, R.I., July 28.—Zaro Agha, the 156-year-old Turk, who came from Constantinople and entered the United States at this port will, according to his story, be examined by medical authorities, and according to others, will be used by the Dry as a trump card.

Agha, a huge, genial fellow with a face less lined than that of many a man of eighty, cannot read or write, and the immigration regulations of the United States has ill-treated him. When the immigration officers asked him about his educational qualifications he admitted his illiteracy readily enough.

NO WRITTEN LANGUAGE

"But I am a native of Asia Minor, in the country of the Kurds," he explained. "It is many years ago, in 1806, that I first went to Istanbul (Constantinople). I was a grown man. And how could I learn to read and write? In the country of the Kurds there is only a spoken dialect. So, of course, I could not read and write."

A Kurdish interpreter was called in and he verified Zaro Agha's assertion about the language. Then Agha, to his Kurdish nativity, turned to the immigration office at the pier, recited a Mohammedan prayer in his native tongue. The immigration officers straightway lifted the barriers, and there came into the New World a man who claims to be the oldest human being on the globe.

FOUGHT AGAINST NAPOLEON

If Zaro's memory does not betray him and the records are correct, he was born in 1774, before the American Colonies revolted; he fought against Napoleon in the historic siege of Acre and against the Russians in the Crimea; he has outlived seven successive husbands and taken a new bride of sixty-four, and the number of his descendants is so great that we can estimate them only in round numbers.

Yet he thinks that life for him is only well started.

"I want to live as long as the world lasts," he exclaimed, with an outflung hand, gesturing of his long and grizzled arms. "I have been happy. I am not bored yet. I no longer have to work. I can enjoy much more of life."

Zaro Agha arrived here alert and interested in everything about him, despite the dimness which has come to his ancient eyes.

DRINKS NO LIQUOR

His eyes have never touched liquor, and Zaro himself affirmed this with great emphasis. Offers as an anti-alcohol propagandist had come to Zaro, it was said, but the temperance organizations had proposed to pay only the expenses of the venerable Turk, and that was not sufficient. It is time for Zaro to be saving up something for his old age.

PHOTOS TAKEN

Zaro obliged the photographers willingly. In his prime, it is said, he was about 165—he weighed 212 pounds and stood six feet high. His skin is still since he is bald and his once powerful frame has become stringy, but he still is a rugged figure. Under his close-clipped grey hair loom massive features—a heavy, dominant hooked nose and a great expanse of out-thrust chin, flanked by ears as big as Lynnhaven oysters. A trim white moustache droops over his mouth. His skin is the color of parchment. His face is wrinkled and the corners of his eyes are deeply lined. Though his face does not indicate his age, his hands, almost black and grotesquely wrinkled, might be those of Methuselah.

Zaro Agha wore a neat dark grey suit, black oxfords and a pearl-grey fedora, with a lavender tie. He was a neat figure, with a trim physique.

PARIS STIRS ENTHUSIASM

The reporters earnestly sought to get from Zaro Agha some reminiscences of the Napoleonic wars, or of any wars, for it appears he has fought in fourteen, but Zaro could not keep off the subject of a journey he had made to France, Germany and Italy four years ago—and of the fun he had there. "How did you like Paris?" he exclaimed shrilly. "That is Turkish for 'whoopées.'

Zaro's European trip, it developed, had been as an attraction in a show in which he was billed as the oldest man in the world.

Zaro's domestic life was explained.

"He has had two wives, but he has married one after another, after the Kurdish fashion," his "European manager" explained. "They have all died, all but the last. She is sixty-four years old and he has been married to her two years."

"I got along nicely with all my wives. They were happy. They all died, but the last," he said.

HIS DESCENDANTS

Zaro Agha was asked how many descendants he had. He figured zealously on his fingers for some minutes, then gave up.

"Before the war," he finally said, "I had twenty-two great grandchildren in Istanbul, and now I have sixteen there. How many I have in the land of the Kurds I have never heard."

He finished with a gesture to indicate infinity.

"I am very happy all my life," said Zaro. "When I was young I was a powerful man. I worked like a young man in a gun factory until I was 104 or 105. Then I got an easier job and went on working until I was 125. I don't care about money. Just happiness."

Zaro's last memory was of the death of Sultan Mohammed I, 144 years ago, when Zaro was twelve years old. Zaro had lived through the reigns of twelve Sultans and dimly remembered hearing about Washington and Lincoln.

Zaro at length was got on the subject of the war.

"I was born six times," he said. "At 100 I volunteered in the Bulgarian army and fought at Pleven. I carried heavy artillery guns on my shoulders up beyond where the horses could take them."

"He leads a very simple life," said his "manager." "He never eats too much, never any meat, and he worked hard. He always went to bed early and got up early. He never drank any liquor. Even on the ship on July 4, when champagne was offered everybody, he refused to taste it. He never smoked."

One of the ship's officers here interrupted to say that on the voyage

L. P. Roy. The lad fell into the Winnipeg River as he skinned along from rock to rock with a number of companions.

Elmer Milne, thirty-three of Dugald, who saved the life of George Milne as she slipped and sank below the surface of a swimming hole at Bird's Hill. He struggled with her toward shore, but he drowned after placing her in the hands of rescuers.

Doris Lamb, fifteen, of Winnipeg, who stepped into a hole in the bank of the Red River and sank to death. Lockwood campers looked on.

Rhoda Busch, seventeen, of Elm Creek, who took a camp while bathing at Delta Beach, a popular resort in western Manitoba. She sank suddenly after coming to the surface following a dive.

RAILWAYS LOSE MUCH REVENUE BY NEW ORDER

Western Grain Rates in United States Are Reduced By Commission

Washington, July 28.—A general reduction in grain rates throughout western territory and to principal seaports, ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission, will become effective October 1.

Members of the commission estimated the application of the new schedules would reduce earnings of western railroads by $150,000,000 per annum, but that some of this had been compensated for by recently granted increases in classified freight rates.

A new method of making schedules described as "the ratebreak basis" was prescribed for the railroads to follow. This rate form was sought by the bushmen in their efforts to allay the western primary grain market cities.

Fixing specific grain rates, the order prescribed twenty-nine cents a hundred pounds from Kansas City and Omaha to Montreal, against

MacBRIE'S FLIGHT

Calgary, July 28.—Major-General J. H. MacBrien, president of the Aviation League of Canada, arrived here yesterday on his return flight to Ottawa. General MacBrien left Vancouver in his airplane early Sunday morning.

BASED ON CHEAP GRAIN, CANADA CAN AGAIN BUILD EXPORT ANIMAL TRADE

Toronto, July 28.—The present combination of low prices for grains and high prices for animals will lead automatically to increased animal production in Canada, in the opinion of John S. McLean, president of Canada Packers. Much heavier deliveries of hogs are anticipated beginning about October. "More and more," he said, "of our swineherds at a loss will be surplus over and above domestic requirements, and Canada should return to the list of hog exporting countries. That, points out Mr. McLean, can only be accomplished through a decline in the price of hogs to the world market."

In recent years Canada has produced, dressed, more and more out of grain, the color of which is above the British, bacon markets. This has been because a scarcity of hogs in Canada and a mounting price have made prices too high locally to permit packers competing in a competitive market except at a loss. Some have been driven to the market as or near the world level. There have been drops in the fall when the heavy rain of hog season has been above the situation created by Canadian hogs being above world levels. Two courses are open to Canada, to aim at a restricted production below domestic requirements or to aim at a production above domestic requirements so as to maintain uniform export shipments to Great Britain.

Canada must organize

The internal higher level can be maintained only by keeping production short of domestic requirements. The higher the external price, the greater the drop in times of flush production to bring prices to world levels. The second course would commit Canada to a continued acceptance of world prices, and in this case, says Mr. McLean, only on one condition, that Canada can produce bacon as cheaply as any country in the world. The British market, has obtained that market by following the second policy consistently for thirty years. Canada, therefore, would have to grow hogs as cheaply as Denmark. Every expert agrees that natural conditions permit Canada to do this, but the Canadian hog growers as efficiently as are Danish hog growers. The enormous size of Canada and the difference in the natural mental habits of Canadians make them less responsive to official leadership.

Canada, in her unorganized condition, tends toward the restricted production course with a high internal price. Within the last decade Canada has ceased to be an exporter, and on balance has become an importer of lamb, butter and eggs. She has shipped more grain and less animal products. She sold $220,372,772 worth of exports in 1929. The reverse was true in 1930. The reverse was true with animal products exported, the trend being from $150,000,000 in 1929 to $85,267,777 in 1930.

The course of shipping her surplus chiefly in the form of grain is, in the long run, neither safe nor profitable. Mr. McLean points out the relative position of grain and food products as an emphatic illustration of his point.

MUST DIVERSIFY PRODUCTS

The logic of the above proposition, says Mr. McLean, undoubtedly lies in the demand and sale policy for the Canadian farmer to diversify his production. In order to keep up agriculture on a sound basis, Canada should, in addition to grains, be a continuous exporter of those animal products which are naturally endowed to produce cheaply. This list includes beef, bacon, butter, eggs, cheese.

"In developing such export outlets, special problems will arise in connection with each product. In respect of bacon, these problems have been indicated. Chief amongst them is the competition of Denmark.

This competition can be successfully met only by matching Denmark's organization with an equally efficient Canadian organization.

"To this end the whole livestock industry, which incudes not only production, but manufacture and distribution

France Retains the Davis Cup For Fourth Successive Year

THE SPORTS MIRROR

Cochet Wins Easily From Tilden While Borotra Beats Lott

Former Returns to Form to Hand Tilden as Bad a Trouncing as He Has Ever Taken, Scores Being 4-6, 6-3, 6-1, 7-5; Lott Carries Borotra to Five Sets Before Going Under 5-7, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2, 8-6; France Won Series, Four Matches to One; Tilden and Borotra Announce Retirement From Davis Cup Play.

Auteuil, France, July 28.—Once more the tennis musketeers of France have beaten off the challenge of the United States for the Davis Cup.

Capturing both of the final singles matches yesterday, France retained the cup by a margin of four victories to one and left no doubt of the superiority of the French aces, Henri Cochet and Jean Borotra, over the best the United States can offer in a tennis way at the present time.

PHIL SCOTT TO FIGHT STRIBLING THIS EVENING

Heavyweights to Battle at Wimbledon Stadium; Expect Crowd of 30,000

London, July 28.—W. L. (Young) Stribling of Macon, Ga., and Phil Scott, the London fireman, meet in a ten-round bout at Wimbledon Stadium to-night in what is ballyhoed as a match for the world's heavyweight championship.

British boxing followers, believing Scott was the victim of an unjust decision in his Miami Beach, Fla., bout with Jack Sharkey, have declined to recognize the authority of Max Schmeling's title claim, hence the difficult recognition of to-night's bout.

Barring rain, the young US promoter, Jeff Dickson, was counting upon a crowd of 30,000 to see the battle. Although Scott holds the heavyweight championship of his native land, he has found few Britons eager to back him in his claim against the German Stribling ruled the Associated Press he was through with cup play.

In the four last challenge rounds all between France and the United States, the French have won fourteen matches to six for the United States. France lifted the cup in 1927 at Germantown, Pa., margin of 3-2, defended it in 1928 and won 4-1, won again by 3-2 last year, and now by 4-1 again.

Heros of the game back in 1908 were Donovan, Plank, Joss, Brown, Bender, Mathewson—all of them pitchers. Of course, a few cheers were distributed to the Wagners, the Cobbs, the Magees and one or two others. Donovan, however, was the only one not taken out of a game: Plank won 24, lost 16 and was not relieved; Joss won 27 and lost 11 and was taken out only once. Even the eccentric Rube Waddell, playboy of the big leagues at that time, pitched 32 games and was taken out only seven times. And his was the poorest example of the year.

Name the big shots to-day. They are Ruth, Gehrig, Simmons, Foxx, Wilson, Stephenson, Klein, O'Doul, Ott, Berger and a long list of other men—all sluggers. We send up a cheer now and then for Lefty Grove, Eshelman, Ferrell, Walberg, Root, Luque, Hubbard and a few more.

Rube Walberg pitched a three-hit game for Philadelphia the other day, bunting the hard-hitting New York Yankees. Previous to that game, though, Walberg had been shelled from the box in seven consecutive starts.

And now Sam Mandell takes his place along with Sharkey, Dempsey and Carpenter, fighters who have trained at Orangetown—and lost the fight for which they were training.

The lucky star right above Al Singer's heart, which Al says boomed him from a $40 to a $40,000 fighter in two years, looked like millions of stars to Mandell within one minute and 40 seconds.

Singer isn't superstitious; he walks under ladders, kicks black cats out of his way, and enters the ring first. But that birth mark is his lucky star.

A headline the other day said "Daughter Triumphs Over Mother in Golf Final." Wasn't that old song "Everybody Works but Father?"

Then there was the fellow who, commenting on Galant Fox, said: "Not many young men have become independently wealthy at the early age of three."

The symbol of victory between English and Australian cricket teams is known as "The Ashes," and is contained in an urn now in the possession of the Marylebone Cricket Club at Lord's ground, London.

The largest lottery in the English Derby this year offered three prizes of more than $600,000 each. The lottery was known as the Calcutta Sweep.

Paulino Uzcudun, the Spanish heavyweight boxer who has met most of the present topnotchers, wears gloves that weigh 26 ounces each when he is in training.

HARRISON IS NET CHAMPION

Defeats Frank Gove in Finals For Western Canadian Championship

Vancouver, July 28.—Scoring brilliant placements and making sensational recoveries, Bradshaw Harrison, Tacoma, conquered Frank Gove, Oakland, in the finals of the Western Canadian indoor tennis tournament here yesterday and captured his third consecutive net championship in the Pacific Northwest this season.

Playing as steadily as he did brilliantly, Harrison, the former University of Oregon tennis captain, trounced a supposedly out-of-fit Gove, a total of 27, a stroke less than Tony Manero, who had finished before him. A small protest had been made, but that was received with congratulations.

"Wait until they're all in," said Johnny Farrell, the smiling pro from Manaroneck, N.Y., had practically been conceded the championship. He came in before Gove and Harrison with a total of 27, a stroke less than Tony Manero, who had finished before him. A small protest had been made, but that was received with congratulations.

Then came the amazing reports from the court, it was learned, that Gove, the supposedly out-of-fit Gove, was 18 holes below par coming up to the seventeenth tee and Gove, four times winner of the Canadian open, was three below, if they shot the last two holes in par they would tie for the lead with 66 and 67 for 277.

Miss Miller and Mrs. Golda Myer Green, Berkeley, won the women's doubles title when they defeated Mrs. H. H. Hagerty and Miss R. Ellis, Vancouver, 6-2, 9-1.

Don Lewis, Portland, conquered his townsmen, Bob Johnson, 7-5, 10-8, to capture the boys' title.

After five torrid sets, Harrison and Bob Hoog, Eugene, defeated Joe Coughlin, San Francisco, and Frank Gove, 6-0, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3, 2-6, to win the men's doubles title.

Frank and Mrs. Golda Myer Green, Berkeley, won the mixed doubles title with a victory over Mrs. H. H. Hagerty and George Snarling, Vancouver. The scores were: 6-2, 4-6, 6-4.

Robins Pound Ball Hard For Twin Win Over Philadelphia

National League Leaders Gain Ground on Chicago, Who Lost to Cincinnati; Pittsburgh Pirates Sink Giants for Double Loss; Philadelphia Athletics and Yankees Both Beaten; Western Clubs of Both Major Leagues Have Edge Over East in Inter-sectional Series.

An unexpected display of strength on the part of the western clubs of both major leagues marked the series which wound up yesterday after a little over two weeks of east-west play.

In the National League, Chicago, after leading the way in the inter-sectional struggles with eleven victories and six defeats went down yesterday before the Cincinnati jinx and lost a game and a half to Brooklyn, who trounced the Phillies twice. The Robins pounded Philadelphia pitchers for twenty-six hits which produced nine home runs and won by scores of 10 to 6 and 9 to 6.

Against the New York Giants, Pittsburgh Pirates scored two victories yesterday. The Pirates blunted their hits for enough runs to offset a six-run Giant rally and win the first game, 10 to 8, then piled up an early lead off Pete Donohue for an 8 to 4 triumph in the second.

St. Louis Cardinals added to the prestige of the west by handing Boston Braves a double defeat, 2 to 0 and 6 to 1.

WALL

The Philadelphia rivals, Chuck Klein and Frank O'Doul, are back in their race for leadership in the Big Six, and in the National League batting lists, as the result of yesterday's slugging contests.

Klein had a little the better of the walloping, getting five hits, including his twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth homers, in five times at bat, and leads by a few small fragments of a percentage point.

O'Doul, with four hits in nine times up, held his mark at .406, while Klein was at .404.

Al Simmons and Rags Stephenson also registered gains yesterday. Simmons with two hits in three times, improved his third place mark by two points. Stephenson gained three points as his pinch hitting act proved successful. Lou Gehrig and Babe Ruth both went hitless and dropped a few points.

Lou had one official time at bat and the Babe two.

New Westminster In Great Display To Defeat Hearts

Largest Crowd to Ever Attend Cup Tie in Winnipeg Sees Coast Football Champions Reach Dominion Finals by 3 to 0 Victory Over Manitoba Champions; Royals Will Meet Montreal C.N.R. in Final; Royals Win Round by 3 to 1; Jack Coulter Scores Goal.

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Man., July 28.—New Westminster Royals, soccer threat from the far west, broke down the mightiest defense in Canadian football Saturday night and marched into the Dominion final. After an earlier reverse of 1-0 Royals turned in a series triumph by defeating Winnipeg Hearts, Manitoba champions, 3 to 0, before the largest crowd that ever saw a cup tie match in old Carruthers Park. Close to eight thousand fans witnessed the British Columbia eleven's startling victory.

Hardened football random, that has seen them come and go in Canadian play-offs for a dozen years, whispered to-day in awe of New Westminster's display. The home team, ball control, showed, matched Glasgow Rangers and great Old Land teams of the past. Hearts, hard shooting, driving local team, were outclassed Saturday once the Royals swung into their stride, and the famous backfield duo of Kings-Dan and Art—softer and fell before the scintillating onslaught for the west coast.

NETS C.N.E.

In Tuesday and Thursday New Westminster will clash with the present Canadian nationalists, for Dominion Canadian Nationals, for the Dominion Football Association championship here. The Nationals held the title in 1929.

With their single loss and to work for a repeat of last year's half of the first period. They checked fiercely at the midfield and the Kings were staunch. Hearts, in that time, shot their bolt. As goal goal, after a smartly conceived play that started at center field, gave "Red" Jackson, speedy outside, a quick path into the goal mouth. Jackson had only Goals Sanford to heat, and he drove into the net minders' shin.

Hearts had other chances, but none as outstanding as Jackson's. The Westminster gradually took control of the play, and there were few more Winnipeg chances.

ROYALS WIN

Miss Phillipson, who is favored to win the women's singles crown, ran into her first real opposition when Miss Elkington carried her to three sets, only to lose out, 5-7, 4-3, 4-6. Both played a steady, hard-driving base-line game, with the winner being a little more accurate with her placement.

For more matches are scheduled to be played to-day, with the final of the men's consolation expected to provide the thrills of the play.

Slices Over Three Minutes From Time; Walker Junior Champ

Vancouver Youth in Splendid Performance to Complete Long Grind From Causeway to Gorge in 55 Minutes 19 4-5 Seconds; Walker Finishes Second in Senior Race After Lifting Junior Laurels; O. Findlay Second in Junior Event; Large Crowd Sees Marathons.

Ploughing through the waters with a steady six beat crawl, George Burrows, husky Vancouver long distance swimmer, won the annual Through-Victoria Swim from the Causeway to the Gorge, staged on Saturday afternoon under the auspices of The Victoria Times. Burrows not only retained the honors he won for the first time last year but succeeded in smashing his own record of 58 minutes and 53 seconds by 3 minutes 33 1-5 seconds. His time on Saturday was 55 minutes 19 4-5 seconds. Burrows swam a beautiful race to finish a quarter-mile ahead of Denny Walker, sixteen-year-old Y.M.C.A. star, who was the winner of the junior event. Cooper, swimming under the colors of the Royal Canadian Navy, was third in the senior event, with Carrie Gray of Chemainus fourth.

Walker reached Point Ellice Bridge, the finish of the junior event, in thirty minutes and fifty-four seconds, just about six minutes after Burrows had passed under the span. Bill Findlay of the Crystal Garden Swimming Club, finished second in the junior event, and Carrie Gray, third.

The swim was one of the most successful ever staged and drew a large audience to the start, while the Johnson Street Bridge and the Point Ellice Bridge and advantages points along the course were lined with interested spectators who cheered the contestants as they ploughed along the waters of the Gorge.

BURROWS NEVER PRESSED

Burrows, who is the only swimmer to complete the three-mile grind under the hour, was never pressed. Swimming steadily with a rhythmic stroke, Burrows opened a wide lead soon after the start and increased it as the race progressed.

Plunging into the cold waters of the Inner Harbor along with the sixteen other senior and junior competitors, Burrows stepped out in front and at the C.N.R. docks, at which point the pilots took up their charges, he was leading Walker by fifty yards, with Cooper in third place, while Bill Findlay and Carrie Gray were swimming a dead heat. The remainder of the contestants were stretched out over the short distance. Up the Johnson Street Bridge, Burrows was 200 yards in the lead, with Walker still second and Cooper third, Findlay and

TIMES THANKS ASSISTANTS IN ANNUAL SWIMS

The Times extends its thanks to those who assisted so ably in making the annual Through Victoria Swims, staged by the newspaper's successors. Officials and pilots of the special boats did their work extremely well and every courtesy was shown the swimmers at the changing rooms before and after the events.

BURROWS NEVER PRESSED

Carrie Gray were staging a great race for fourth place honors. The contestants were given a great hand as they passed under the bridge.

Upon arrival at the Point Ellice Bridge the relative positions of the swimmers had remained unchanged, although Burrows continued to widen his lead. Burrows passed under the Point Ellice Bridge in exactly twenty-four minutes.

SPRINTS AT FINISH

At Curtis Point, Burrows had been in the water forty-nine minutes and was swimming strongly, with half a mile lead, over Walker. On reaching this point, Burrows' father, who was acting as pilot, and his timekeeper if George had a chance of setting a new record and when told he had succeeded to speed up his son. Fifty yards from the finish Burrows sprinted to the float to the cheering of the large crowd lining the banks of the inlet. Burrows was quite fresh at the finish and eagerly waited for Walker to finish, congratulating the Victoria youngster as he touched the float. Walker followed ten minutes behind Burrows, while Cooper was about two minutes behind Walker.

Carrie Gray, the plucky little girl from Chemainus, was next to reach the float, being the first woman to finish the senior event. George Driceo, veteran Vancouver star, finished in fifth position, while Winnie Pollard of the Crystal Garden Swimming Club, was sixth. Alex Thompson was seventh and Chris Rasmussen of the Garrison eighth.

Rasmussen, although he had been in the water for nearly an hour and a half, declared at the finish he was ready to start on the return journey.

At the finish of the senior race the prizes were presented to the victors by Allene Clappett, daughter of Capt. Clappett, president of the B.C. section of the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association.

Walker was the lucky winner of three trophies. Besides receiving the two cups for winning the junior event, he was presented with a beautiful trophy for finishing second in the senior race.

JUNIOR RACE

Keeping ahead of the junior field just as Burrows led the seniors, Denny Walker swam to an easy victory in the under eighteen years class. He completed the course from the Causeway to Point Ellice Bridge, a distance of one and one-half miles, in thirty minutes, fifty-four seconds, finishing over two minutes ahead of Orville Findlay and Carrie Gray, both swimmers for Crystal Garden, who took second and third places respectively. Findlay's time was thirty-three minutes flat and Carrie's just three-tenths of a second more.

Findlay, who had decided to swim in the two races, was completely tired out at the end of the shorter grind and left the water for the relief boat. Walker and Miss Gray, apparently fresh after the first event, continued up the Gorge.

Uruguay Gains Final Round In Soccer Turney

Montevideo, Uruguay, July 28—Uruguay gained the final round of the world's soccer football championship tournament yesterday by defeating Argentina 6 to 1.

The Uruguayans will meet Argentina for the title later this week. Argentina eliminated the United States 6-1 in the semi-final yesterday.

ELLSWORTH WINS

New York, July 28—Ellsworth Vines Pasadena, youngster, clinched a week of brilliant play in the Metropolitan turf court tennis championship yesterday with a title-winning five-set victory over the veteran internationalist, Francis T. Moore, No. 10, of the U.S. ranking, 1-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-1.

After a shaky start, the shock-haired youth from the west coast outplayed the New Rochelle, N.Y. veteran, in all departments of the game, brought match to deuce sets and then ran out the last and deciding set in easy fashion.

Play in Cricket Match Is Halted To-day By Rain

Manchester, Eng., July 28—No play was possible at opening time today in the first of a series of test matches between Australia and England at Old Trafford on account of wet grounds. After a drizzle had fallen during the night, the skies seemed to open this morning and rain fell in torrents on the crowds gathered in the hope of play being resumed. After a while the rain stopped and spectators were relieved by a gleam of watery sun which broke through the clouds. Another downpour fell again and prospects for play to-morrow became remote.

UNEASINESS STILL GRIPS BUSINESS ACROSS EUROPE

Unemployment Is Higher as Politics Is Disturbing to Business

Cable dispatches to The Business Week give the following swift survey of business abroad for the past week: "Europe—The generally unsatisfactory European international situation has again caused a distinct feeling of uneasiness in business circles. The Little Entente is faced to the threatening separation of the monarchy in Hungary, following Carol's coup d'état. The situation in the Balkans gives little confidence to the outside world that the threat of a political broil in these countries may not be translated into an actual fact before the end of the year."

"Musolin's continued bellicose utterances are no longer considered merely a gesture for home consumption. Observers hint that Il Duce desires the formation of a new combination of European powers over which the French are much perturbed. It is rumored that Carol's restoration in Rumania was due to a French diplomatic counter move for a set-up of the pre-war bulwark in the Balkans. Trade, as usual in this season, is dull and there is no evidence of general improvement on any markets. Unemployment continues to increase. Russian orders continue to be a bone of contention in several countries, notably Great Britain, Germany, Italy and Poland. Unofficial reports on the harvest in Russia turned out to be accurate, with the result that rainy weather and heavy dews are interfering with work in the south while general growing conditions in the north are in some regions slightly below average.

"Great Britain—Business in general shows no improvement though a slight increase in the demand for cotton goods created a bit of optimism this week. The French gold drain continues on both sterling and dollar balances, with the result that many western and heavy dews are interfering with work in the south while general growing conditions in the north are in some regions slightly below average.

"Germany—The country's financial policy was made definite when the Cabinet enacted by decree its financial programme which taxes income more heavily and increased drastically the bachelors' and heads taxes. The important financial features remain—the state of communal finances now aggregating $125,000,000; the deficit for the Federal railways, totalling $100,000,000. To cover the latter the Government has approved a slight increase in passenger rates, effective Sept. 1, expected to yield $10,000,000 before the end of the year. Business sentiment generally is disappointed in the price reductions which resulted from recent agreements and lowered raw materials prices.

"France—General business activity is fair and shows slight improvement on the market. The coal market is calm, iron and steel production is higher, with increased export but lower domestic consumption of steel; the machinery industry is running at maximum capacity due to new replacement orders; electrical equipment is dull. Cotton spinning is setting a new record with the city of Paris planning the immediate construction of 20,000 workmen's houses. The depression in the cotton industry continues with low prices and slack demand; wool is active. There is no improvement in the textile industry, either French or American. The agricultural outlook is unsatisfactory due to continuing unfavorable weather.

"Belgium—The stock market continues weak and the public uninterested in long term investment. Money is cheap with call money at 1.5% per cent. Coal demand is weak and steel has been approaching 2,000,000 tons. Industrial grades have been reduced from seven to fifteen francs a ton but the demand is still insufficient to absorb the surplus. Textiles are weak with unemployment growing. Other cotton mill reductions put out yet have not cut their personnel. Other textile centres have dismissed ten per cent to forty per cent of their personnel.

"Italy—American automobile agents, except Ford, are presenting a collective protest to the Government, demanding losses through ruin of their business and greater unemployment through the closing of offices, shops and service stations. Ford-Isetta agreement has been reached for the production of airplane engines to be followed by a similar arrangement for automobile manufacturing. Apparently Fiat is included and will furnish Ford with light, Isetta with heavy engines.

"A national commercial federation is studying the situation created by the American tariff. Olive oil exporters have resolved to organize propaganda to adopt a uniform sales policy and advertise collectively in the United States.

"ALL DISORDERS OF MEN"

Take Our Herbal Remedies

Send for our latest pamphlet—"Man Know Thyself"—a list of diseases of men, skin and blood diseases with advice. In plain envelope free by mail. Address: H. E. A. Courtney, 1017 Government Street, Victoria, B.C.

Twenty-five commercial travelers, seamen and railway employees took out advance certificates Saturday, and these added to the totals of the two preceding days, brought the final figure to sixty-seven.

NEWS IN BRIEF

J. P. Robinson was fined $5 in City Police Court this morning for failing to have a license on a trailer attached to a motor vehicle.

Alterations to the Canadian National doc offices at Ogden Point will be carried out by Parfitt Brothers, according to a permit taken out at the City Hall this morning. The work will cost about $800.

An improved mail service is now being accorded residents in Saanich served from Saanichton post office. Mail is now carried on the regular route during the morning round now leaving the post office at 11:40 o'clock, insuring delivery in Victoria the same afternoon and making connection with the afternoon steamer to Vancouver, a saving of twenty-four hours.

The annual picnic of the Pro Patria Branch of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., will take place at Deep Cove on Saturday, August 2. Tallywags will leave the headquarters on Courtney Street at 1 o'clock. A splendid programme of sports with novel and comic events will be carried out and good prizes will be awarded. Those intending to go are requested to advise the secretary before July 31, so that ample provision may be made. All are asked to bring their own provisions. The branch will provide tea, milk and hot water. Tickets should be secured as early as possible.

VOTING IN HOSPITALS

For the first time in the history of the city, patients and attendants at the two big hospitals were able to vote in the hospital buildings.

Victoria Liberals welcomed the heavy vote as increasing the chance for victory of Stuart M. Ross, Liberal candidate for the Victoria seat. It was the largest vote in 1928, which cut the Conservative majority to a bare hundred, and with every increase in the total poll over the 11,000 figure of that year, the chances of victory loom brighter. The tide of political opinion has been swinging more and more towards Liberal policies for the last decade, and even without the Dunning budget, local leaders were anticipating a change in the Victoria seat. British preference and the nature of the campaign to date have gained considerable Liberal strength.

FLYING CLUB HERE MOOTED

Fleet Aircraft Party Arrives to Promote Flying Interest

With plans to promote interest in flying here through introduction of planes for training and sport purposes, representatives of the Fleet Airship Division and the Commercial Airways of Vancouver, B.C. dealers for the fleet, arrived by plane from the Mainland this morning.

Two fleet planes, piloted by J. H. Holley, factory representative of the Fleet Corporation, and G. F. Sherriff of the Commercial Airship Division, landed shortly after 11 o'clock. Maurice McGregor, a Victoria boy who has entered the flying game, and T. S. Houston of the Commercial Airways, were passengers.

This afternoon the visiting party interviewed fleet enthusiasts and discussed possibilities of forming a club here for training and sport purposes. It is hoped to introduce the Fleet machines here. The Vancouver Flying Club, it was pointed out, has secured two of the machines as have also the Commercial Airways.

McGregor, who flew one of the Fleet planes from Buffalo to the coast, was in charge of the party. The Fleet planes, he said, were specially adapted for training purposes, as well as for sport, having a slow landing speed, being fast in the air and generally rugged for the novice.

If a flying club is formed here, it is possible Mr. McGregor will be retained as instructor. It was stated.

The party will probably fly back to Vancouver to-morrow.

OBITUARY

The funeral took place on Friday afternoon at Alberni Cemetery of Dr. W. G. Kennedy of North Park Street, Victoria, who died at Alberni on Wednesday last. The service was held at St. Anne's Anglican Church, Rev. R. D. Porter officiating. The late Dr. Kennedy was born at Londonderry, Ireland, seventy years ago, the son of Thomas Kennedy, and after practicing for many years at Salford, England, came to Victoria five years ago. He is survived by his widow and a stepson, H. Williamson of Alberni.

The remains of Mrs. Sarah Love Howlett were laid at rest in Ross Bay Cemetery Saturday afternoon, the service conducted from Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. O. L. Jull officiating. The hymns sung were "Abide With Me" and "Never, My God, to Thee."

Many friends were present and the casket was hidden beneath many floral offerings. The pallbearers were: J. Berry, F. Green, W. White and S. Huston.

"Journey's End" is a slice of life that has been cut from the middle of one of the most intensely dramatic periods of the world's history—the late frays in France. The scene of this play is in the British trenches before St. Quentin, where the action takes place in a single dug-out under a trench and covers a period of four days.

In short, it is the story of the effect that going into the trenches for the first time had on a youngster making the plunge from civilization to a battlefield dug-out.

Second Lieutenant Raleigh, the younger, played by David Manners, and Captain Stanhope, the officer, played by Colin Clive, are the principals. Raleigh, who has been Stanhope's schoolmate, arrives at the gates to fight under this man who was his ideal, his former athletic hero, and now his war hero. Stanhope, who is all that he is now despite his heavy drinking, and who is in love with Raleigh's sister, is forced to send the young man to almost sure death for the sake of getting certain information that must be had.

Plays Emotional Role in "The Devil's Holiday" Here For Three Days

There is something apropos in the fact that Nancy Carroll, who is one of Paramount's "biggest names" is now playing a production which required the biggest set ever constructed for the

The picture is "The Devil's Holiday," now at the Dominion Theatre for three days. It is a romance-drama of the American wheel-belt, written and directed by Edmund Goulding, writer and director of Gloria Swanson's "The Temptress."

Miss Carroll plays the role of a professional "good girl" who, as a manculturist in a big hotel, works hand-in-hand with double-crossing salesmen of farms implements to "firm down" their farmer customers.

Compared to the size of the picture, labor is little in hotel lobby. The monster represents the lobby and interior stores of the huge hotel. Included in the set are a clerk's desk, telephone operator's switchboard, lobby, entrance to the dining room, a complete cigar stand, and a modiste's shop.

Eight cameras were required to photograph the action which continues from one spot to another in the hotel sequences.

Popular Stars Play in Pretty Musical Comedy at Local Theatre This Week

Because John Francis Dillon,
First National-Vitaphone director remembered Olive Williams and her technique at flipping pancakes in a Los Angeles downtown restaurant, Olive was the movie now.

When the opening scenes of "Sally," starring Marilyn Miller, at the Coliseum Theatre, were made in Hollywood, a girl was needed to stand in the window of the cafe and flip flapjacks.

None of the waitresses at the First National Studios could qualify for the job, and the casting department was at a loss to find a girl who could photograph well, and who still carried on the almost lost art of flipping pancakes in the air and making them right side up.

Then Dillon remembered Olive, a pretty blonde whom he had seen in the Los Angeles Cafe. Olive was summoned, and she was perfectly willing to lay aside her real pancakes turner for a movie pro.

GARY COOPER IN "ONLY THE BRAVE" AT THE CAPITOL

Romantic Sweethearts of
Success in Fine Picture

Gary Cooper, recently seen and heard in the title role of "The Virginian," is doing his gallantries again to-day, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Capitol Theatre in a thrilling play, "Only the Brave." For many a feminine heart the foregoing statement, brief as it is, will no doubt be sufficient recommendation to his newest offering.

But in case there are any doubts, it must be added that "Only the Brave" shows Cooper to a better advantage, for better, than his previous satisfactory best.

There is something about this tall, muscled Mountie youth that seems to mark him as the most perfect American type. He is virile and gallant, but yet not given to thunderous outpourings of unseemly emotion. His quiet courage inspires hero-worship in the hearts of all who behold him and hear him in his masterful work upon the talking screen.

Paramount chose wisely when it selected Mary Brian as the sweetheart of Gary Cooper in this picture. Their tremendous success as the lovers in "The Virginian" found great favor with film fans everywhere.

"Only the Brave" is from an original story by Keene Thompson. It deals with the critical days when Grouard and Lee were saving it with cannon and troops. Gary Cooper is a captain of cavalry on the Union side who, embittered because his sweetheart has jilted him, volunteers for spy duty. Accordingly he is sent behind the Southern lines with a bucket of false documents. His plan is to be arrested and to have the false dispatches discovered by the enemy, who will then be misled into a fatal movement of troops.

But he meets Mary Brian and the plot then becomes a series of adventures in which love and duty fight for eminence. The ending is a happy one.

There are eighteen rare earths, each of which is one of the ninety-two elements. The first discovered was Tuttonium and the last Illinium.

THESE NEW FILM BEAUTIES GOT THEIR START ON STAGE

Blondes seem to have the edge on things around the movie colony this season.

At least that is the conclusion one would draw from looking over a group of moviegoers' newcomers. We had that pleasure—and it was a pleasure—and discovered that three of five new actresses signed to long-term contracts by the Fox studio are blondes. The other two, sisters, have light brown hair. There's not a single brunet or red-head in the crowd.

All of these girls were recruited from the legitimate stage, which during the past two years has become the principal training ground for film notables. Althea Henley, Roxanne Curtis and Lucile Browne are the blondes. The Keating twins, Helen and Elizabeth, round out the group.

WILL THEY MAKE GOOD?

It will be interesting to see what happens to these five girls. Thousands of girls—tall, short, beautiful, homely, funny—migrate to Hollywood every year. A few make good. By far the greater percentage of them don't. Fox executives are staking their reputations as pickers of "comers" on this entire group.

Lucile Browne was born and received her early education in Memphis, Tenn. Then she attended the National Park Seminary in Washington, D.C. Incidentally, that school also turned out Sue Carol.

Two years ago Lucile won a photographers' beauty contest in Memphis and went to New York as a model for a dress concern. Later she went to Chicago to model for artists. It was in Chicago that she made her stage debut, playing in stock for six months.

The she was signed for the ingenue lead for the New York production of "Jarnegan."

To say that Lucile is pretty is rather superfluous in any story accompanied by a photograph. But even her picture doesn't reveal her personal charm and modesty, which went a long way toward getting her a start in pictures.

Although Roxanne Curtis is just starting in this business, she already has hopes of some day filling the shoes now worn by Louise Dresser. That's a pretty good-sized order, but Roxanne is confident. Her start in the acting profession came while she was attending high school in Hackensack, N.J.

"I played small parts in school productions and then started working with a local stock company at night. I was afraid to tell my parents, for fear they would make me stop, but instead, when they did learn of my activities with the stock company, they encouraged me to continue."

The third blonde of the group, Althea Henley, crashed the movies via the dancing route. She started taking dancing lessons while still a schoolgirl in Allentown, Pa., and then went to New York, where she broke into vaudeville.

Then she was given a featured role in "Three Cheers," with Will Rogers and Dorothy Stone. Florence Ziegfeld then signed her for "Show Girl."

THE KEATING TWINS

Helen and Elizabeth Keating, who defy anyone but their parents to tell them apart, made their stage debut as twin dancers in Boston. Now they play in the Boston company presenting "On Kay," and then went to New York to appear in "Broadway Nights." The only thing the twins dislike about coming into pictures is the fact that they may be separated for some pictures. Since they were tiny girls they have been together almost constantly and neither has ever worked alone.

The only way in which Helen and Elizabeth differ is in temperament—at least so far as Hollywood has been able to discover. Helen admits having the most violent temper.

practiced, foreign trade had been developed and expanded and the natural resources had been returned to the western provinces.

These were only some of the accomplishments the Liberal government should be credited with.

Premier King said that, in spite of the fact that Conservative speakers were alleging widespread unemployment, "I have not to this moment received a single communication from a member of the opposition which alleges the situation is of a character constituting a national emergency, and therefore one in which the Dominion must be expected to make its contributions to unemployment relief on the basis I have indicated." (Dollars for dollars) with the provinces.

Mr. King dealt with an "extravagant" proposal of Hon. W. B. Bennett, Conservative leader. He asked what was to be said of the sincerity of a man "who is now prepared to commit the treasury to an expenditure of a billion dollars," but was alarmed last year at the proposal to spend forty or fifty million on the Montreal terminals.

CAMPAIGN STARTED JUNE 16

Premier King's election campaign was opened with a keynote speech delivered in Brantford, Ont., on June 16. This speech was carried on a nationwide radio hook-up. It set forth the position of the Liberal Party on the principal issues of the campaign.

From Brantford Mr. King proceeded east to the Atlantic Coast, addressing at least one meeting each day.

Toward the end of June he traveled westward. He spoke in each western province, spending the week-end in his constituency of Prince Albert, Sask.

After several meetings in British Columbia, Mr. King proceeded east again.

A number of meetings were held in the Province of Quebec, but as the Prime Minister concentrated to a very considerable extent on Ontario.

The Prime Minister concluded with the radio broadcast delivered from his residence here Saturday night.

Despite the large part played by radio in the present campaign, Premier King's meetings drew tremendous crowds.

Turning to the two other special features of the campaign he mentioned, the Prime Minister said in spite of the introduction into the campaign of other issues, the great question they must decide to-day remained the same. They must pass on the May Day budget of Hon. C. A. Dunnigan with its provisions for defending the British market and extending trade within the empire. Retention of the British market was vital to the future of Canada, Mr. King declared, and the great object of the government's trade policy as indicated in the budget was to secure that market.

"It is, I think, of special significance that in the present election, there are no fewer than nine women candidates in the various constituencies, and not one of them is running as a Conservative candidate," commented Mr. King. "In fact," he added, "all except one have been nominated as Liberal, Progressive and Labor candidates."

GOVERNMENT'S RECORD

The record of the government was reviewed by the Prime Minister. "We ask to be judged by the service we have rendered to those who entrusted us with the responsibilities of government," he said. He spoke of his government's reductions in the national debt over a period of seven years amounting to $200,000,000. Taxes had been reduced, the tariff on imports of production and necessities of life had been cut down, economy had been

TO-DAY'S GRAIN MARKETS

(By Branson, Brown & Co. Limited)

Winnipeg, July 28.—The wheat market acted heavily to-day and was devoid of any interest until prices declined about two cents under the close Saturday and getting into the daily bids which brought in a little support. Trade was not large but the demand was very thin and the market saw the time. Liquidation of long wheat by tired holders was the principal selling. There was a little short covering based on the weakness in corn. Outside of a little buying by Chicago at the start there was no outstanding show of interest. Domestic wheat bought a little, while the price down. The cash market was dull, there being a very little demand for any, but offerings were not pressing for sale outside of odd cars and spreads were unchanged to fractionally easier. The big increase in the United States visible supply of 1,503,000 bushels was not visible as before when the Canadian visible decreased only 2,883,000 bushels. Temperatures are more moderate over the spring wheat belt, some rains or showers were received in Saskatchewan with a rather severe hailstorm west of Saskatoon. A few degrees of frost were actually reported from districts northward, but nothing but a light frost was anticipated. World shipments last week totalled 12,875,000 bushels which North America cleared 9,94,000 bushels. On passage stocks showed only a small increase of 176,000 bushels. December wheat made a new low for the year since coming on the board the market closed weak and around the lows for the day as follows, wheat 2½ to 3½ lower.

Coarse grains—These markets were also lower on scattered liquidation going on with demand for both cash and futures very poor. There was a little business with eastern Canada, but no business or inquiry from abroad. Deliveries of barley and rye on contract showed that they have been going in indication of the poor cash demand with holders getting tired. Oats closed ½ to 1½ lower, barley 1 cent lower, and rye 1½ lower.

Flax—A little firmer in the cash month with referred months weak. There was no particular trade outside of spreading operations.

Montreal July 28—Stock prices were generally stronger at the close of the Montreal Stock Exchange to-day. Gains of from 1 to 3 points were registered by Massey-Harris, Canadian Pulp, Steel of Canada, Hamilton Bridge and Dominion Bridge, while fractional advances were recorded by Nickel, Bramalea, Canada Car, Montreal Power, National Breweries, Power Corporation and Shawinigan Power.

PEACE RIVER CROPS MENACED BY EARLY FROSTS; CORN BREAK CARRIES WHEAT PRICES DOWN

After making new highs on the move in the first half hour, corn prices to-day broke around three cents or more, carrying wheat prices down. December wheat in Winnipeg made a low for the year by a fraction and the other options in Winnipeg and Chicago came near making new lows.

Edmonton, July 28.—The Government Telegraph Service to-day carried the report of one to four degrees of frost at Poucette, Valhalla, Fairview and Sexsmith on Friday night and Saturday morning.

The extent of the damage is not known, but it is causing apprehension as the wheat in the district is in the milk stage, where it can suffer real damage by frost.

Canadian weather forecast for western provinces is fair to-day and Tuesday, cool to-night.

Weather report to-day shows: Saskatoon, clear, 75 rain last night; Edmonton, shower over weekend, now clear, 56; Calgary, clear, 56; Moose Jaw, fine, 55, 35 showers last night; Regina, clear, calm, 56, two showers on Sunday; Winnipeg, part cloudy, cooler, 65.

Regina, July 28.—Severe hailstorm is reported around Govan and Weyburn area, with half as big as hen's eggs. Hundreds of square miles in the southern part of the province were at first reported levelled to the ground.

London, July 28.—Russia recently sold 4,000,000 bushels of wheat on the continent, probably to Holland, a leading London grain merchant told the Wall Street Journal, but made no sales in Great Britain. These 4,000,000 bushels had been offered all around the continent, taking the best credit terms which probably led to the story current that Russians were offering a much larger quantity, estimated by one American house of upwards of 12,000,000 bushels.

Donovan to-day reported by wire from Fargo, N.D.: "Wheat all through the Red River valley on both the Dakota and Minnesota side is mostly above average, with harvesting now general. But going westward to Valley City, the crops are gradually becoming poorer and become still poorer further west. Black rust damage is light, only a few late bread wheat fields being in serious danger. Corn, which is of small acreage in these sections, is still holding up well and was helped through here by Saturday's heavy showers."

RISE TO NEW HIGHS BLOCKED BY BREAK IN WARNER BROS.

U.S. Steel To-day Reached
170 and General Motors
47 1/4 Before Setback

But Industrial Averages Close Fractionally Up at Over the 240 Mark

Wall Street Prices Cut in Warner Bros.' Dividend May Be Likely

New York, July 28 (B.C. Bond)—At the close of the market this afternoon, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials stood at 240.81 up 0.30 points for the day; for 20 rails at 134.35, up 0.32 points, and for 20 utilities at 88.65, up 1.41 points. Sales for the day totaled 2,422,500 shares.

Early in the session it looked as if the averages would go definitely through the point which Wall Street has come to regard as a resistance level, but it did not materialize, conformably at new highs for the recovery. U.S. Steel common reached 170 and General Motors 47 1/4.

Late in the morning, however, heavily selling developed in Warner Bros., which had the effect of checking advances in other sections of the market, and it did not proceed to general weakness.

It was reported that a reduction in Warner Bros. dividend might be considered advisable in view of the supposed decline in earnings.

In the afternoon, Stoway Stores was under pressure, although there was nothing definite in a news way to explain.

Weakness in these isolated issues gave the market an air of confusion, although the main body of stocks were fairly stable.

OUTSIDE INTEREST INCREASES

Call money held at 2 per cent all day. Outside interest in the market increased somewhat over the week-end, but the end of the day had not settled the question of whether leading stocks could break out of the relatively narrow trading area and the point the way to a substantial extension of the recovery and the establishment of the market in new high ground.

CHRYSLER ORDERS GAIN

It was announced that a large volume of orders came in from the plants of the Chrysler straight eight and it is possible that total deliveries will set a record, according to J. W. Frazer, general sales manager.

MADE RAZOR MERGER

Recent simultaneous strength of Gillette and Auto Stop Safety Razor lends more color to the rumors of an agreement between the two companies, perhaps an early settlement of the patent litigation. Such a settlement would probably work to the advantage of both.

GENERAL MOTORS DIVIDEND

The appearance of the report of General Motors for the first six months, showing earnings of $2.2 a share and an increase in cash of over $48,000,000 from the end of 1929, has definitely set at rest rumors that the current dividend is in any danger.

RAIL GROSS DOWN

New York Central gross for June are reported at $6,364,063, compared with $9,709,482 in June, 1929. Total for the first six months this year stands at $32,160,278, compared with $61,008,733 for the first six months of 1929.

Pennsylvania Railroad June gross were $7,150,265, compared with $11,873,461 in June, 1929. Total for first six months this year is $45,336,673, compared with $64,657,052 for the first six months of last year.

Great Northern for June showed $1,729,322, compared with $2,816,439 in June, 1929.

Reo Motor Car for the quarter ended June shows a net loss of $173,961, after depreciation, etc., compared with a net profit of $1,148,844 a year ago. Net loss for the first six months this year stands at $349,397, compared with a net profit of $1,056,358 in the corresponding period of last year.

WRIGLEY BENEFITS

Wrigley's earnings for the first six months continue the upward trend which has been in evidence during the last decade, net for the period equaling $2.23 a share, as compared with $2.76 a share for the corresponding period of 1929. Under the recent tariff bill, cigarette, one of the important commodities used in the manufacture of the company's products, is placed on the export list. As a result of this, the company's profit margin has been substantially increased and earnings for the final six months should make an even better showing.

STEEL CORPORATION REPORT

Wall Street Mirror to-day issued the following to its clients:

"A picking up in the volume of trading and better prices will be seen in the market this week. Several reports of particular interest are due to be made public this week, the main one being that of the U.S. Steel Corporation, which will be issued after the close of business to-morrow.

STABILIZATION MOST SOUGHT

"What is sought now more than anything else in the business world and the general market is a period of stabilization. The belief in good quarters is that the depressions has flattened and that the next movement will be an upward swing. The stock market which has always been looked upon as something which discounted good or bad news before it really developed, has had an upward movement, which those close to the situation declare is forecasting better business later in the year. This forward movement has not been completed and once again it is advised that stocks be bought on days of strength for the best price later on."

"A new group is operating in commercial solvents and is predicting much better prices for the stock. Some selling is likely to be seen in Electric Auto Life because earnings are not likely to come up to expectations."

"Corn Products is another of the companies which has done much better the first half of this year than was expected. The stock has been well bought right along."

JULY 28

WHITNEY LETTER

By Branson, Brown & Co. Limited

New York, July 28.—Whitney of Wall Street Financial Bureau says to-day:

EXPECT HIGHER MARKET

"What has transpired during the past week is of some technical interest in that we have practically witnessed two phases of market performance work out in line with prediction. In the first place, the advance in the averages was a little over a week ago carried to within two or three points of the 245 level in the Dow Jones Industrial averages, a prediction repeatedly made here, after which they dropped back to about one point below the 230 level commented upon here last Monday.

With this drop back last Tuesday came a distinct support, followed by a gradual little rally from the lowa level at the end of the week we find the market well under control and exhibiting the type of performance which plainly shows that those back of it have made up their mind not to let any gains gain headway, but to strongly protect the prices at which stocks were accumulated during the four-week period between mid-June and mid-July."

"This simply means that the range previously accepted as that of accumulation and which in the Dow Jones Industrial is bound by the June lows at 210 and a top of 230, constitutes more territory which I do not believe is going to be successfully invaded for more than a few points of a few days from now on."

"Before any attempt is made to repeat the test of last Tuesday on this range, I believe we are going to witness a market performance which will carry the market upwards to about the point of immediate interest bearing that this prediction would call for an advance of some 15 points from present levels. Give us a week in the market in which we can forge a good deal of the conservative attitude of the past month or so, and something which can be gauged by the name of satisfaction day to day profits on upside."

COMMENT

"Colorado Fuel has started an advance in the last two weeks, carrying it 10 points from where you bought it in it to make new commitments profitable."

"American Gas has likewise sufficient advance left to make its purchase advisable and the time to buy is approaching as other recent recommendations show. American Motors, American Telephone and Telegraph, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Radio and U.S. Steel."

"For to-day's new trading commitments—advancing National Power and Light under S.A. Westinghouse Electric under 50; Westminster Electric under 150 and Loew's under 77; all of which should end up the week at materially higher prices than they are beginning it."

COURTEENAY TEAM WIN GAME

Special to The Times

Nanaimo, July 28.—A wonderful finish to a splendid week's cricket took place on Saturday when Portobello's Vancouver XI defeated Cowichan by 12 runs. Although the time for drawing stumps had been fixed at 6 o'clock, the visiting skipper gave the home skipper the option of continuing. The position at 6 p.m. was Portobello's 234 and Cowichan 213 for six wickets, rather in favor of Cowichan. However, when Walton was caught, a change came in the game, and separated Cornett's punish the local bowler to the tune of 19 runs, being a determined effort to pull the match out, the match ended 254 to 241. The last player, Corriveau, was unable to bat as his house was endangered by fire.

RECORD VOTE IS EXPECTED IN ONTARIO

Many Believe Province's Results Will Be Deciding Feature in Federal Contest

Toronto, July 28.—As a climax to weeks of arduous and intensive electioneering on the part of Federal political workers in every part of the province, citizens of Ontario went to the polls to-day, the majority believing Ontario would be the deciding factor in the election.

That a record vote would be cast in the three ridings, was predicted by seventy-five men, who were registered voters lists in the three ridings, being 43,000 more than on the lists at the last general election in 1926, a record vote was expected. Enumeration of voters was more thorough than ever before.

Some mistakes were made in preparing the lists, but these were rectified as far as possible. In Burrard a number of persons were enumerated, but their names were omitted from the voters' list. To these certificates entitling them to vote were issued by the returning officer.

The usual interesting sidelights on human nature were noted at the various booths to-day. In hundreds of cases women who were with their children came to the booths while they voted. It was not an unusual sight to see one woman with three or four children trailing after her, all greatly interested in the business of voting.

More women stood in this election than ever before. Also, there were fewer children coming to the booths with their mothers.

MISS MACPHAIL CANDIDATE

The once-powerful United Farmers' political party had dwindled until only one candidate remained to-day. Miss Agnes MacPhail, contesting her constituency of South Vancouver, was the only representative of the Progressive Party and the Labor Party. The Conservative Party had a candidate in each riding and the Liberals in

The Johnson-Comiskey friendship was classic in baseball for more than thirty years, but even this friendship was not allowed to interfere with the iron discipline Johnson enforced for the good of the game.

The arbitration commission was abolished in 1919 and the clubhouses made Judge Kenesaw M. Landis chief baseball during the last four years Ban Johnson has been enjoying a much needed rest. Twenty-six years he had spent eight to ten hours a day at his desk and his health had become so endangered that annual trips to sports gave

"Now, who are we waiting for?" Tom Mantley fussed around. "Oh, Corrie, of course. Corrie is always late. Confound that girl, she has probably gone to sleep in her bath. Pam, you go and dig her out. . . . Hullo, here she comes at last!"

In her hunting-kit she had looked harrumphing in an ostentatious way, but as she stepped down the steps of apology—on our hungry mop there was no question of her beauty. For one thing she walked superbly. Few women can walk, and the trouble about the new fashion in clothes is that it emphasizes ugly movement. She wore a dark, short-sleeved dress which would have ruined most girls' looks, but she managed to carry it off, and something more. For a young girl far too heavily made up, but that, too, she forced one to accept. I suddenly had a new view of her and realized that there was quality here, a masterfulness which might obtain an audience which perhaps she did not blithely expect.

I realized, too, that I had seen her before. This was the girl whom Vernon and I had watched at my cousin's dance in July. I wondered if he had understood this in their encounter at the tea table.

I had barely recovered from this surprise, when I had another. Folliot was on my arm, and he was purring in my ear:

"We talked once of Shelly Arabin, and I said to him we left no children. My memory betrayed me, for that young lady is his daughter. She has the true Arabin eyes and all their unfathomable conceit. She is what in my day we would have called 'shocking bad form.' Rather common, I think."

Folliot which I knew that she must have dealt hardly with old Milburne again. It looks so well, Ned. Dear, you ought to get him to go about more, for he's really a little old maidish. He was scared to death by Corrie Arabin."

"I am glad to see Colonel Milburne again."

"It looks so well, Ned. Dear, you ought to get him to go about more, for he's really a little old maidish. He was scared to death by Corrie Arabin."
